(d) The record herein certified to the Commission by the Hearing Examiner on June 10, 1960.

It appearing, that, at the time Barnes entered into the agreement with Western Union to acquire the cable system, it did not have the financial means to do so, nor had arrangements for such finances been made at that time;

It further appearing that since that date Barnes has made efforts to secure the financing;

It further appearing that according to the Barnes proposal, total financing in the sum of approximately $34,000,000 is necessary;

It further appearing that according to the record, as of June 8, 1960, Barnes did not have an unqualified commitment for any part of this sum;

It further appearing that evidence was presented that one entity had made a qualified commitment to make available $5 million on condition that another entity enter into an agreement which would require the second entity to obligate itself to acquire a total of $3 million of the securities covered in the aforementioned $5 million commitment;

It further appearing that counsel for Barnes offered an authorized representative of the second entity as a witness in the course of the hearing on June 8;

It further appearing that such witness testified that he, the general attorney of the second entity, had not personally seen the agreement which his company would have to sign before the commitment of the first entity became unconditional, that he did not of his own knowledge know whether such agreement had in fact been submitted to his company, that, while his company would act as promptly as possible, consistent with obtaining full information, he could not indicate when its studies would be completed, when the matter would be submitted to its Board of Directors, when the Board of Directors would act, or what action they would take;

It further appearing that another witness called by counsel for Barnes at the aforementioned June 8 hearing, who has been given the right to place the various securities and debentures for Barnes, felt that a further period of approximately four months would be necessary for Barnes to complete its financing;

It further appearing that almost six months have elapsed since Western Union advised the Commission that it was accepting the Barnes offer and almost five months have elapsed since the joint petition for approval of such agreement was filed;

It further appearing that Barnes has not, as required in our Memorandum Opinion and Order herein released April 22, 1960, presented satisfactory evidence that funds are available and committed for a term sufficiently long to permit consummation of the plan for divestment presently before the Commission, and, that there is no unconditional commitment of any funds whatever; and

It further appearing that it would be helpful to the Commission to have the parties herein present their views and arguments as to the disposition that should be made of this proceeding at this time, in view of the evidence of record, particularly the present status of, and future expectations with respect to, Barnes financial arrangement to enable it to consummate the proposed divestment plan embodied in the Agreement presently before the Commission;

It is ordered, That, oral argument herein on the disposition to be made by the Commission of the pending joint petition in light of the record now before it shall be held before the Commission, en banc, at its office in Washington, D.C., beginning at 3 p.m., on the 22d day of June 1960.

It is further ordered, That counsel for Barnes shall be permitted thirty minutes to present such argument; that counsel for Western Union shall be permitted thirty minutes; that counsel for any other party which has participated in the proceedings herein shall be permitted ten minutes provided that each of the foregoing shall on or before June 20, 1960, file a Notice of Intention to Participate at such oral argument.

It is further ordered, That, any party which has participated in the proceeding herein may file no later than June 20, 1960, a written brief presenting its views and arguments as to the disposition that should be made of the proceeding.

Released: June 15, 1960.

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

[Docket No. IT-5961]

LUZ Y FUERZA SAN PEDRO, S.A., AND CENTRAL POWER AND LIGHT CO.

Notice of Application

JUNE 15, 1960.

Take notice that on May 31, 1960, Luz y Fuerza San Pedro, S.A. (Mexican Company), incorporated under the laws of the Republic of Mexico, with its principal place of business at Miguel Aleman, Tamaulipas, Mexico, and Central Power and Light Company (Central), incorporated under the laws of the State of Texas, with its principal place of business at Corpus Christi, Texas, filed a joint application for authorization, pursuant to section 202(e) of the Federal Power Act, to transmit electric energy from the United States to Mexico, Docket No. IT-5961.

The above-mentioned application indicates that Mexican Company has succeeded Jose Barrera Gonzalez with respect to ownership and operation of an electric system, which includes certain electric facilities at the international border between the United States and Mexico covered by a Presidential Permit released to Mr. Gonzalez on March 6, 1946, Docket No. IT-5960, and that Mexican Company proposes to transmit electric energy from the United States to Mexico over such facilities.

By order issued September 1, 1955, Docket No. IT-5961 (14 FPC 943), the Commission authorized Mr. Gonzalez and Central to transmit electric energy from the United States to Mexico in an amount not in excess of 1,000,000 kwh. per year at a rate of transmission not to exceed 400 kw. over the facilities referred to above for use in and around San Pedro Roma, Tamaulipas, Mexico. The order recited that Mr. Gonzalez would purchase the energy to be exported from Central.

Mexican Company, as successor to Mr. Gonzalez, and Central seek to increase to 5,000,000 kwh. the maximum amount and to 1,000 kw. the maximum rate of electric energy which may be exported annually over the aforementioned facilities for use in and around Miguel Aleman (formerly San Pedro Roma), Tamaulipas, Mexico. Central will continue to be the supplier of the exported energy.

Any person desiring to be heard or to make any protest with reference to the application should, on or before July 6, 1960, file with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D.C., a petition or protest in accordance with the Commission's rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10). The application is on file with the Commission and available for public inspection.

UNITED GAS PIPE LINE CO.

Order Fixing Date for Oral Argument

JUNE 15, 1960.

On April 5, 1960, the Presiding Examiner issued a decision in the above-captioned proceedings. Exceptions thereto were filed on May 25, 1960 by Mississippi River Fuel Corporation, and on May 27, 1960 jointly by Memphis Light, Gas and Water Division and the City of Memphis, Tennessee and Mississippi Valley Gas Company. On May 27 exceptions were also filed by Texas Gas Transmission Corporation, United Gas Improvement Company, United Gas Pipe Line Company and Commission staff. Wilmut Oil & Gas Company filed a "Memorandum in Nature of Exceptions" on May 31, 1960. United Gas Pipe Line also filed a motion for opportunity to present oral argument before the Commission in support of its exceptions.

The Commission finds: It is appropriate in carrying out the provisions of the Natural Gas Act that oral argument be had before the Commission in these matters as hereinafter ordered and provided.

The Commission orders:

(A) Oral argument shall be had before the Commission on July 12, 1960, at 10:00 a.m., e.d.s.t., in a Hearing Room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D.C., concerning the matters involved and the issues presented by the above-mentioned exceptions to the Presiding Examiner's decision herein.

(B) Those parties to this proceeding who intend to participate in the oral argument shall notify the Secretary of the Commission on or before June 28, 1960 of such intention and of the time required for presentation of their argument.

PAN AMERICAN PETROLEUM CORP. ET AL.

Order Denying Reconsideration and Amending Previous Order

JUNE 14, 1960.

In the matter of Pan American Petroleum Corporation, Docket Nos. RI60-208, -209; Pan American Petroleum Corporation (Operator), et al., Docket No. RI60-210; E. J. Hudson, et al., Docket No. RI60-211; Elliott Production Company, Docket No. RI60-212; Western Natural Gas Company, Docket No. RI60-213; The British-American Oil Production Company, Docket No. RI60-214; Sinclair Oil & Gas Company, Docket No. RI60-215; Socony Mobil Oil Company, Inc., Docket No. RI60-216; The Shamrock Oil and Gas Corporation (Operator), Docket No. RI60–217.

On May 20, 1960, Western Natural Gas Company (Western Natural) filed a motion[1] seeking reconsideration of the "Order Amending 'Order Permitting Filing, Providing for Hearings on and Suspension of Proposed Changes in Rates, and Allowing Increased Rate to Become Effective Subject to Refund'" issued in the above-entitled matter on April 22, 1960. This order amends an order issued March 25, 1960, which listed certain information under the heading "Rate in Effect." The order of April 22, 1960, provided for a footnote to the heading "Rate in Effect," which reads as follows:

The rates listed in this column are those claimed by the respondents to be the presently effective rates. The reflection of these rates in this manner is not a Commission determination that these are the presently effective legal rates.

Western Natural contends that the Commission has erred by disclaiming a determination as to the presently effective rate provided by Western Natural's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 17, which involves a sale to Cities Service Gas Company and which is the rate schedule involved in the filing in Docket No. RI–60–213. Western Natural states that the failure to determine the presently effective rate "prevents" it from attaching a "satisfactory" undertaking to a motion to put the proposed increased rate into effect because the amount of potential obligation under the undertaking is unknown. There is no merit in this contention. There is a pending controversy involving the question of presently effective and past rates between Western Natural and Cities Service Gas Company as seller and buyer of natural gas. It would be improper to allow a suspension order to have an effect upon that controversy.

Western Natural also contends that the order of March 25, 1960, is in error in stating that Western Natural claimed that the presently effective rate for the sale in question is 11.0 cents per Mcf, and should read 11.055 cents per Mcf. An appropriate amendment is hereafter provided.

The Commission orders:

(B) In all other respects the Motion for Reconsideration, filed May 20, 1960, by Western Natural Gas Company, is hereby denied.

By the Commission.

JOSEPH H. GUTRIDE,
Secretary.

[F.R. Doc. 60–5641; Filed, June 17, 1960; 8:51 a.m.]

[1] Western Natural submitted a document entitled "Petition for Rehearing" which has been accepted for filing as a motion for reconsideration pursuant to § 1.12 of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure. A "petition for rehearing" of an interlocutory order such as is here involved, may not properly be filed (§ 1.30(e) of rules).

[Docket No. G–20106]

KANSAS-NEBRASKA NATURAL GAS COMPANY, INC.

Notice of Application and Date of Hearing

JUNE 14, 1960.

Take notice that on November 10, 1959, as supplemented on December 14, 1959, February 16, 1960, and April 18, 1960, Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Company, Inc. (Applicant) filed in Docket No. G–20106 an application pursuant to section 7 of the Natural Gas Act for a certificate of public convenience and necessity authorizing the installation and operation of a 1,000-horsepower compressor unit addition to its existing main line compressor station at Palco, Kansas, and for permission and approval to abandon approximately 2.2 miles of 8-inch lateral pipeline and measuring facilities near Grand Island, Nebraska, all as more fully set forth in the application and supplements which are on file with the Commission and open to public inspection.

Applicant states that the proposed 1,000-horsepower compressor unit addition is the most suitable and economical means of increasing existing natural gas service to Central Kansas Power Company's electric generating plant at Hill City, Kansas, necessitated by a 22,000 KW addition to that plant now under construction, and at the same time providing a facility available for emergency service to compress Kansas gas for further transmission into Nebraska. Applicant does not request authorization for the subject compressor unit for its operation to increase delivery to Central Kansas Power Company's Hill City plant on the grounds that said operation is entirely an intrastate service. Authorization is sought only for the emergency interstate operation of the proposed compressor unit.

The estimated cost of the proposed construction is $236,000 which it is stated will be paid from current working capital. Proposed additional deliveries to the Hill City plant are estimated at 1,250,000 Mcf per year.

The facilities for which permission and approval to abandon are sought are stated to have been used solely for service to the Riverside Power Plant of the Nebraska Public Power System, which service was abandoned September 1, 1959, following abandonment of the plant and cancellation on July 30, 1959, of the contract between Applicant and Nebraska Public Power System for said service. Applicant states that no other customers or communities are affected and that the abandonment of the Riverside Power Plant, which had been using 50,000 Mcf of natural gas per year, has resulted in complete idleness of the 8-inch line and measuring facilities to be abandoned. Applicant estimates the total cost of removing the facilities at $6,100 and their salvage value at $12,100.

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a hearing will be held on September 12, 1960, at 10:00 a.m., e.d.s.t., in a Hearing Room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D.C., concerning the matters involved in and the issues presented by such application.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D.C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before July 1, 1960.

Secretary.

[Docket No. RP60–13]

NORTHERN NATURAL GAS CO.

Order To Show Cause

JUNE 14, 1960

Northern Natural Gas Company (Northern) a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business at Omaha, Nebraska, is a "natural-gas company" within the meaning of section 2(6) of the Natural Gas Act (Act) and as such is subject to the provisions thereof, and the Rules and Regulations of this Commission promulgated thereunder, Northern Natural Gas Co., Docket No. G–280, 3 FPC 967.

On November 3, 1939, this Commission issued an order, pursuant to authority granted by the Act, particularly sections 8(a), 10(a) and 16 thereof, prescribing a uniform System of Accounts for Natural Gas Companies under the Act. One of the accounts maintained under said system is Account 507, Taxes. Account 507 A provides: This account shall include the amount of Federal, State, county, municipal, and other taxes, which are properly chargeable to gas operations.

Northern is required by § 260.1 of our Regulations, to file an annual report (Form No. 2) setting forth, inter alia, the taxes it was charged during the year and which it has included in Account 507. The annual reports filed by Northern for the years 1957 and 1958 show that Northern included in Account 507 amounts of $11,515,707 and $9,708,000 purportedly reported as Federal Income Taxes paid during those two years.

Investigation by the staff of this Commission of Northern's books and records reveals that Northern filed, for 1957 and 1958, consolidated Federal Income Tax returns for itself and its subsidiaries: Northern Natural Gas Producing Company (Producing Company), Northern Plains Natural Gas Company and Permian Basin Pipeline Company. Said investigation also revealed that Producing Company had substantial tax losses for both the years 1957 and 1958, and as a result thereof there were reductions in the consolidated tax payable for those years in the amounts of $1,020,000 and $1,842,400, respectively. Northern paid Producing Company for said reductions in the consolidated taxes caused by Producing Company's tax losses, and charged said payments to Account 507.

The aforesaid charges by Northern to Account 507 are contrary to the provisions of the Uniform System of Accounts in that Account 507 should include only actual taxes, and not the assignment of negative or credit amounts for income taxes to departments or, in the case of a consolidated return, to a subsidiary.

Northern was advised, in accordance with § 158.1 of our regulations, of its failure to keep its accounts as required by the Commission. Subsequent correspondence and conferences between Northern's representatives and this Commission's staff have failed to show any justification for Northern's departure from the provisions and requirements of the Uniform System of Accounts. Additionally, Northern has not agreed to the disposition of the matter under the shortened procedure provided for by § 158.3 of the regulations.

In view of the foregoing, it is necessary and appropriate for the purposes of administering the Natural Gas Act that Northern show cause, if any there be, for its past and continuing departure from the provisions and requirements of the Commission's Uniform System of Accounts; all in the manner hereinafter provided.

The Commission orders:

Northern Natural Gas Company shall show cause, if any there be, under oath and in writing, within thirty days from the issuance of this order, why the Commission should not find and determine:

(A) That Northern is accounting for and reporting financial data relative to taxes paid by it otherwise than by the use of the Commission's prescribed Account 507, and the provisions and requirements therefor, all as set forth above; and therefore, that as a result it has violated and is continuing to violate the accounting and reporting requirements prescribed by the Commission through its Uniform System of Accounts;

(B) That this action by Northern constitutes a willful and knowing violation of the Natural Gas Act;

(C) That Northern be required to make, keep, preserve and report its accounts in the manner prescribed by this Commission in its Uniform System of Accounts Prescribed for Natural Gas Companies subject to the provisions of the Act; and

(D) That Northern be ordered to file such substitute pages of its Annual Reports (FPC Form No. 2) for the years 1957 and 1958, to make the accounting and reporting of Federal Income Taxes paid during such years consistent and in compliance with the reporting requirements therefor as prescribed by the Commission.

By the Commission.

JOSEPH H. GUTRIDE,
Secretary.

GULF OIL CORP. ET AL.

Order Providing for Hearings on and Suspension of Proposed Changes in Rates, and Allowing Increased Rates To Become Effective Subject To Refund[1]

JUNE 10, 1960.

In the matter of Gulf Oil Corporation, Docket No. RI60–392; Virginia Ramsey, et al., Docket No. RI60–378; H. T. Shalett and David Crow, Docket No. RI60–393; Phillips Petroleum Company (Operator), Docket No. RI60–394; F. A. Callery, Inc., et al., Docket No. RI60–395.

The above-named Respondents have tendered for filing proposed changes in presently effective rate schedules for sales of natural gas subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission. In each filing, the natural gas is sold at 14.65 psia, with exceptions of Gulf Oil Corporation and H. T. Shalett and David Crow, which is sold at 15.025 psia. The proposed changes are designated as follows:

[3] Rate increase due to increase of Louisiana Severance Tax effective Dec. 1, 1958.
[4] Request waiver of notice.
[5] Subject to 0.5 cent per Mcf for compression (where applicable) deducted by buyer.

Gulf Oil Corporation (Gulf), in support of its proposed redetermined increased rate, states that its contract was negotiated at arm's-length. Gulf also incorporates by reference certain exhibits presented by Gulf in the section 5(a) proceedings in Docket Nos. G–9520, et al., which purport to show a cost of service of 28.92¢ per Mcf for Gulf's jurisdictional sales in 1957, higher exploration and development costs, and declining production on a "per foot drilled" basis.

Virginia Ramsey, et al (Ramsey), in support of the proposed favored-nation increased rate, submit copies of Tennessee Gas Transmission Company's letter establishing the increased rates. Ramsey also states that the contract of sale was negotiated at arm's-length and the proposed rate does not exceed the going price of gas in the area.

Phillips Petroleum Company (Operator) (Phillips), in support of its proposed renegotiated increased rate, states that had there not been agreement between the parties for the increased rate, buyer would have been obligated to pay a higher price, or else the contract would have terminated by its own terms. In addition Phillips estimates that by May 1962 it will no longer have surplus gas for delivery to buyer. In recognition of the contingency, the letter agreement of April 18, 1960, allows buyer, at its option, upon two weeks' written notice, to reduce its maximum, minimum and daily average purchases by as much as 6,000 Mcf per day. As a result, Phillips argues that it may suffer a substantial loss in total revenue from this sale during such period.

F. A. Callery, Inc., et al. (Callery), in support of the proposed renegotiated increased rate, states that the proposed rate represents consideration for seller's agreement to eliminate the favored-nation clause and such rate is supported by the cost of service study submitted by Callery with a pending motion to terminate the suspension proceedings in Docket Nos. G–16330, et al.

H. T. Shalett and David Crow (Shalett and Crow) in support of the proposed tax change, interpret the tax provisions of their rate schedule to the effect that tax reimbursement for the Louisiana severance tax will be at the same reimbursement level that they received for the Louisiana gathering tax. Southern Natural Gas Company, the purchaser, has taken the position that the tax reimbursement clause does not require reimbursement of the increased Louisiana severance tax. Shalett and Crow also proposed a periodic increased rate, which includes the questionable tax reimbursement. In view of the controversy over the proper interpretation of the tax reimbursement provision of the contract, and in order to assure refund in the event Southern Natural's interpretation thereof is correct, it is deemed advisable to suspend the tax change and the proposed increased rate and charge for one day until June 14, 1960, and until such further time as it is made effective in the manner prescribed by the Natural Gas Act, with only the tax reimbursement portion of the increased rate to be made effective subject to refund.

The proposed changes may be unjust, unreasonable, unduly discriminatory, or preferential, or otherwise unlawful.

The Commission finds:

(1) It is necessary and proper in the public interest and to aid in the enforcement of the provisions of the Natural Gas Act that the Commission enter upon hearings concerning the lawfulness of the several proposed changes and that the above-designated supplements be suspended and the use thereof deferred as hereinafter ordered.

(2) It is necessary and proper in carrying out the provisions of the Natural Gas Act that Supplement Nos. 3 and 4 to Shalett and Crow's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 1 be allowed to take effect subject to refund of the tax reimbursement portion only of the increased rates upon the timely filing of their agreement and undertaking, as hereinafter ordered.

The Commission orders:

(A) Pursuant to the authority of the Natural Gas Act, particularly sections 4 and 15 thereof, the Commission's rules of practice and procedure and the regulations under the Natural Gas Act (18 CFR Ch. I), public hearings shall be held upon dates to be fixed by notices from the Secretary concerning the lawfulness of the several proposed increased rates and charges contained in the above-designated supplements.

(B) Pending hearings and decisions thereon, each of the above-designated supplements is hereby suspended and the use thereof deferred until the date indicated in the above "Rate Suspended Until" column, and thereafter until such further time as it is made effective in the manner prescribed by the Natural Gas Act.

(C) Neither the supplements hereby suspended, nor the rate schedules sought to be altered thereby, shall be changed until these proceedings have been disposed of or until the periods of suspension have expired, unless otherwise ordered by the Commission.

(D) Supplement Nos. 3 and 4 to Shalett and Crow's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 1 shall be effective as of June 14, 1960: Provided, however, That within 20 days from the date of the issuance of this order, Shalett and Crow shall execute and file under Docket No. RI60–393 with the Secretary of the Commission their agreement and undertaking to comply with the refunding and reporting procedure required by the Natural Gas Act and § 154.102 of the regulations thereunder (prescribed by Order No. 215 and No. 215A). The agreement and undertaking shall be signed by Respondent, or if Respondent is a corporation, signed by a responsible officer thereof accompanied by proper authorization from the Board of Directors and by a certificate showing service of copies upon all purchases under the rate schedule involved. Unless Respondents (Shalett and Crow) are advised to the contrary within 15 days after the filing of such agreement and undertaking, their agreement and undertaking shall be deemed to have been accepted.

(E) Notices of intervention or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D.C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 and 1.37(f)) on or before July 25, 1960.

[1] The stated effective dates are those requested by respondents, or the first day after the expiration of statutory notice, whichever is later.
[2] Pressure base is 14.65 psia.
[3] Pressure base is 15.025 psia.
[4] Or from such later date as the suspended resale rate of West Lake Natural Gasoline Co. is made effective in Docket No. RI60–30 in the manner prescribed by the Natural Gas Act.
[5] Includes 0.4467 cent per Mcf for compression deducted by buyer.

Sun Oil Company (Sun) and Phillips Petroleum Company (Phillips) propose revenue-sharing type increased rates for gas sold to West Lake Natural Gasoline Company (West Lake) in Nolan County, Texas. West Lake resells the subject gas, after treating, to El Paso Natural Gas Company (El Paso) and pays Sun and Phillips (and other producers) 50 percent of the resale rate it receives from from El Paso for the residue gas with guaranteed floor prices in cents per Mcf provided for in the producers' contract. The subject increases are based upon West Lake's favored-nation increased rate which has been suspended in Docket No. RI60–30 until June 23, 1960.

Sun and Phillips, in support of their proposed increased rates, cite the contract provisions and West Lake's suspended increased rate. Sun states that its contract resulted from arm's-length bargaining and that the increased price does not exceed the value of the gas. Phillips states that the increased price is just and reasonable.

Jal Oil Company, Inc. (Operator), et al., propose a renegotiated rate increase for gas sold to El Paso Natural Gas Company (El Paso) in the Langlie-Mattix and Crosby Devonian Fields, Lea County, New Mexico. The subject renegotiated increased rate results from an October 26, 1959, contract amendment entered into pursuant to El Paso's contract renegotiation program for purchases of gas in the Permian Basin area.

In support of the proposed renegotiated increased rate, Jal submits copies of the renegotiated agreement and cites provisions thereof and states that the amendment resulted from arm's-length bargaining. Jal states that the proposed increased rate is not in excess of other rates paid for gas by El Paso in this area and is just and reasonable. Jal also states that the increased rate is needed to meet increased costs and to provide incentive for further exploration.

M. B. Amer (Amer) in support of its proposed redetermined increased rate, cites its contract provisions and states that the proposed price is just and reasonable in relation to the price paid for similar gas in the area and is a fair price for the gas. Amer also states that operating costs have increased.

Ross Walker, et al. (Walker) and Frank C. Roper (Roper) propose redetermined increased rates for gas sold to United Gas Pipe Line Company (United Gas).

In support of his proposed increased rate, Roper merely cites the contract provisions and a letter from United Gas informing him of the redetermined price. Walker, in support of his proposed increased rate, submits copies of the letter of agreement wherein Walker and United Gas agree to the increased price, and states that prices in the general area are in excess of the total price here proposed.

The changes in rates and charges so proposed may be unjust, unreasonable, unduly discriminatory, or preferential, or otherwise unlawful.

The Commission finds: It is necessary and proper in the public interest and to aid in the enforcement of the provisions of the Natural Gas Act that the Commission enter upon hearings concerning the lawfulness of the several proposed changes and that the above-designated supplements be suspended and the use thereof deferred as hereinafter ordered.

The Commission orders:

(A) Pursuant to the authority of the Natural Gas Act, particularly sections 4 and 15 thereof, the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, and the regulations under the Natural Gas Act (18 CFR Ch. I), public hearings shall be held upon dates to be fixed by notices from the Secretary concerning the lawfulness of the several proposed changes in rates and charges contained in the above-designated supplements.

(B) Pending hearings and decisions thereon, each of the above-designated supplements are hereby suspended and the use thereof deferred until the date indicated in the above "Rate Suspended Until" column, plus footnotes thereto, and thereafter until such further time as it is made effective in the manner prescribed by the Natural Gas Act.

(C) Neither the supplements hereby suspended, nor the rate schedules sought to be altered thereby, shall be changed until these proceedings have been disposed of or until the periods of suspension have expired, unless otherwise ordered by the Commission.

(D) Notices of intervention or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D.C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 and 1.37(f)) on or before July 25, 1960.

[1] Commissioner Kline dissenting as to the suspension of the filing in Docket No. RI60–388.

NARROWS DAM PROJECT

SOUTHWESTERN POWER ADMINISTRATION

Article I, Section 3 of the Agreement between the United States of America and the Tex-La Electric Cooperative, Inc. (Contract No. 14-02-0001-921) for the sale of power and energy from Narrows Dam Project pertaining to rates and charges submitted for Federal Power Commission confirmation and approval is as follows:

ARTICLE I

SALE OF NARROWS DAM POWER AND ENERGY BY SPA

SEC. 3. Compensation to SPA for Narrows Dam Power and Energy. (a) It is recognized by the parties hereto that the total and most efficient utilization of the Narrows Dam Power and Energy is dependent upon the installation of a third 8,500 kilowatt hydroelectric generating unit at the Narrows Dam, and that such third generating unit will be installed as soon as necessary funds are made available by the Congress. Accordingly, during the term of this Agreement after a third 8,500 kilowatt hydroelectric generating unit is installed and ready for commercial operation at the Narrows Dam, Tex-La shall pay to SPA the sum of $367,992 per year, payable at the rate of $30,666 per month, as compensation for the Narrows Dam Power and Energy purchased under Section 1 of this Article I.

(b) During the term of this Agreement until a third 8,500 kilowatt hydroelectric generating unit is installed and ready for commercial operation at the Narrows Dam, Tex-La shall pay to SPA the sum of $25,000 per month as compensation for the Narrows Dam Power and Energy purchased under Section 1 of this Article I.

(c) If by reason of an Uncontrollable Force (as defined in Section 3 of Article VI), for a period of thirty consecutive days or longer, SPA is unable to deliver Narrows Dam Power and Energy as scheduled by Tex-La or its authorized representative, the compensation owed by Tex-La for such period under Subsection (a), above, shall be reduced by an amount computed under the formula.

$$R=\frac{C}{M}\times\frac{U}{G}\times D,$$ with the factors defined as follows:

R=The amount of the reduction in compensation owed by Tex-La.
C=The total compensation due SPA each month.
M=30.4 (the average number of days in each month of a calendar year).
U=The number of generating units inoperable by reason of an Uncontrollable Force during the period of inability.
G=The number of generating units installed and ready for commercial operation.
D=The number of days during which SPA was unable to deliver Narrows Dam Power and Energy as scheduled.

It is recognized, however, that the amount of water available for the generation of Narrows Dam Power and Energy at any particular time is and will be dependent upon the manner in which the delivery of power and energy has previously been scheduled, and it is agreed that if such inability of SPA to deliver power and energy as scheduled is caused by a failure of water supply which is the result of improvident scheduling by Tex-La or its authorized representative, then, and in that event, Tex-La shall not be entitled to any credit for the period or periods of such inability as provided in this Subsection (c).

Sections Referred to in Article I, Section 3 above, are as follows:

ARTICLE I

SALE OF NARROWS DAM POWER AND ENERGY BY SPA

SECTION 1. Sale of Narrows Dam Power and Energy to Tex-La. (a) SPA shall sell and deliver to Tex-La, and Tex-La shall purchase and receive, all the electric power and energy generated at the Narrows Dam Reservoir Project in the State of Arkansas (hereinafter referred to as "Narrows Dam Power and Energy") which is delivered by the Secretary of the Army to the Secretary of the Interior pursuant to Section 5 of the Flood Control Act of 1944.

ARTICLE VI

GENERAL PROVISIONS

FOREIGN-TRADE ZONES BOARD

[Order 49]

BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS OF PORT OF NEW ORLEANS

Application To Expand Boundaries of Foreign Trade Zone

In the matter of the application of the Board of Commissioners of the Port of New Orleans, grantee, to expand the boundaries of Foreign-Trade Zone No. 2.

Pursuant to the authority granted in the Foreign-Trade Zones Act of June 18, 1934, as amended (48 Stat. 998–1003; 19 U.S.C. 81a–81u), the Foreign-Trade Zones Board has adopted the following order which is promulgated for the information and guidance of all concerned:

Whereas, the Board of Commissioners of the Port of New Orleans, as Grantee of Foreign-Trade Zone No. 2, filed an application dated May 2, 1960 for permission to extend the boundaries of Foreign-Trade Zone No. 2 to include Runway #1 within zone limits, so that fewer gates will be needed for normal business operation. The runway is west of and adjoins the downstairs limit of the zone.

Now, therefore, the Foreign-Trade Zones Board, after full consideration and a finding that the proposal is in the public interest, hereby orders:

That the boundaries of Foreign-Trade Zone No. 2 be, and they are hereby reestablished, to include within the zone, Runway #1, which is west of and adjoins the downstairs limit of Foreign-Trade Zone No. 2, New Orleans, Louisiana, in conformity with Exhibits Nos. 1, 8, and 10(b), dated May 2, 1960.

It is found that compliance with the notice, public rule making procedure, and effective date requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U.S.C. 1003) is unnecessary in connection with the issuance of this Order, because its application is restricted to one foreign-trade zone, and is of a nature that it imposes no burden on the parties of interest. The effective date of this Order is, therefore, upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Signed at Washington, D.C., this 14th day of June 1960.

FOREIGN-TRADE ZONES BOARD,
[SEAL] FREDERICK H. MUELLER,
Secretary of Commerce, Chairman and Executive Officer, Foreign-Trade Zones Board.

APPLICATION FOR A FOREIGN-TRADE ZONE IN TOLEDO, OHIO

Notice of Hearing

An application has been made to the Foreign-Trade Zones Board by the Toledo-Lucas County Port Authority, a public corporation and an instrumentality of the State of Ohio, for the privilege of establishing, operating, and maintaining a foreign-trade zone at the Port of Toledo, Toledo, Ohio, pursuant to the Foreign-Trade Zones Act of June 18, 1934, as amended (48 Stat. 998–1003; 19 U.S.C. 81a–81u).

The Executive Secretary of the Foreign-Trade Zones Board (pursuant to the Board's Regulations) [1] has designated E. E. Schnellbacher, Director, Office of Trade Promotion, Bureau of Foreign Commerce, Department of Commerce, as examiner to investigate the application and accompanying exhibits for compliance with said Regulations; and said application of the Toledo-Lucas County Port Authority having been found to be in order, the Executive Secretary has designated as an Examiners' Committee, said E. E. Schnellbacher, Chairman; Miss Albina R. Cermak, Collector of Customs, Cleveland, Ohio; and Col. Woodrow W. Wilson, U.S. Army Engineer, Army Engineer District, Detroit, Michigan, in whose jurisdiction the proposed zone is to be located, to make an investigation of the application and report thereon to the Board for final action.

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the Foreign-Trade Zones Act, and the Board's Regulations,[1] that a public hearing on the application of the Toledo-Lucas County Port Authority will be held by the Examiners' Committee beginning at 10:00 a.m. Eastern Daylight Savings Time, on July 20, 1960, in the Toledo Area Chamber of Commerce Auditorium, 218 Huron Street, Toledo, Ohio.

[1] See Title 15 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 400, Article 13, Rules of Procedure and Practice.

General plans showing the location of the proposed foreign-trade zone may be examined at the Office of the Toledo-Lucas County Port Authority, Toledo, Ohio, the Office of the Collector of Customs at Cleveland, Ohio, the Department of Commerce Field Office, Federal Reserve Bank Building, Cleveland 1, Ohio, or at the Office of the Executive Secretary of the Foreign-Trade Zones Board, Room 3414, Main Commerce Building, Washington, D.C.

In brief, these plans propose that: the Toledo foreign-trade zone will be located on a part of the 65 acre tract of the Port Authority Facility No. 1 on the east bank of the Maumee River. The proposed zone area is located 500 feet back from the river front and all cargo handled by water will be deposited on the wharf currently operated by Toledo Overseas Terminals, Inc., a stevedoring company which is also a tenant of the Port Authority. Cargo destined for the Foreign-Trade Zone will be transported in bond from the wharf to the zone area. Port Authority Facility No. 1 has road connections with the street system of the City of Toledo, and is also served by a side track from the mainline of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company. The proposed zone will have its own rail spur, and connections to all major rail lines in the Toledo area can be made switching.

This public hearing is for the purpose of informing interested parties concerning the application and affording them an opportunity to express their views, and obtaining other data useful to the Foreign-Trade Zones Board. The immediate concern of the Examiners' Committee is to determine whether or not the facilities and appurtenances which are proposed to be provided are sufficient. Particular attention is called to the fact that the instant application is the only one to be considered at this time. The question of its suitability is up for discussion, not the suitability of some other zone site.

All interested parties are invited to be present or represented at the hearing; particularly those who may be affected by the proposed grant. An opportunity to be heard (either in person or by duly appointed representatives; either by appearance or by sending a written or telegraphic statement) will be given to persons or groups who have manifested their interest in this application, by complying with the following requirements:

1. A written or telegraphic request for an opportunity to be heard shall be filed before noon on July 13, 1960 at the Office of the Executive Secretary of the Foreign-Trade Zones Board, Room 3414, Main Commerce Department Building, and shall indicate the number of witnesses, the general character of evidence and the approximate amount of time required.

2. Such request shall include (a) the name of any person seeking to speak at the hearing, and (b) the persons or groups he represents.

In the discretion of the Examiners' Committee, persons who have not complied with the foregoing may be permitted, at any time prior to the closing of the hearing, to file written statements in quadruplicate regarding the application under consideration. Such written statements should be condensed as much as possible.

For accuracy of record, and for file with the report and recommendations of the Examiners' Committee, all important facts and arguments should be submitted in writing, as these together with the record, will be forwarded for consideration by the Foreign-Trade Zones Board in Washington.

You are requested to communicate the foregoing to any persons known by you to be interested in the matter who, not being known to the Committee, do not receive a copy of this notice.

Dated: June 16, 1960.

JOSEPH M. MARRONE,
Executive Secretary.

The Commission being of the opinion that the public interest requires the summary suspension of trading in such security on such Exchange and that such action is necessary and appropriate for the protection of investors; and

NEW JERSEY POWER & LIGHT CO.

Notice of Proposed Issuance and Sale at Competitive Bidding of Principal Amount of Bonds

JUNE 13, 1960.

Notice is hereby given that New Jersey Power & Light Company ("New Jersey"), a public-utility subsidiary of General Public Utilities Corporation ("GPU"), a registered holding company, has filed an application with this Commission pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("Act"), designating section 6(b) of the Act and Rule 50 promulgated thereunder as applicable to the proposed transaction. All interested persons are referred to the application on file in the offices of the Commission for a statement of the proposed transactions which are summarized as follows:

New Jersey proposes to issue and sell, pursuant to the competitive bidding requirements of Rule 50, $5,000,000 principal amount of First Mortgage Bonds ("New Bonds"), -- percent Series, to be dated as of July 1, 1960 and to mature July 1, 1990. The interest rate on the New Bonds (which shall be a multiple of ⅛ of 1 percent) and the price, exclusive of accrued interest, to be paid by New Jersey (which shall not be less than 100 percent nor more than 102¾ percent of the principal amount thereof) will be determined by the competitive bidding.

The New Bonds are proposed to be issued under the Mortgage and Deed of Trust, dated as of March 1, 1944 of New Jersey to the Morgan Guaranty Trust Company of New York (formerly Guaranty Company of New York), Trustee, as heretofore supplemented and amended and as proposed to be supplemented and amended by the Seventh Supplemental Indenture.

The proceeds from the sale of the New Bonds will be applied to the cost of New Jersey's post-1959 construction program estimated at $7,750,000 or to reimburse its treasury for expenditures for that purpose.

New Jersey proposes to issue the $5,000,000 principal amount of 1990 Series Bonds against a like amount of cash, which is to be deposited with and held by the Trustee pending withdrawal, from time to time, against bondable value of property additions. As of March 31, 1960, New Jersey had available for the purpose approximately $4,400,000 of bondable value of property additions, on the basis of which it could withdraw approximately $2,640,000 of the funds thus to be deposited with the Trustee.

It is stated that the Board of Public Utility Commissioners of the State of New Jersey, the State in which New Jersey is organized and doing business, has jurisdiction over the proposed transaction and that an order of that Commission approving the proposed issuance and sale of the new bonds will be filed by amendment. The application further states that no other State commission and no Federal commission, other than this Commission, has jurisdiction over the proposed transaction.

The expenses to be incurred by New Jersey in connection with the proposed transactions are estimated to aggregate $50,000, including registration fees of $2,704, Federal issue tax of $5,500, printing expenses of $22,000, accounting fees of $3,200, fees to indenture trustee of $3,000, legal fees and expenses of company counsel, Alfred A. Rochester of $2,800 and Berlack, Israels & Liberman of $5,000, and miscellaneous cost of $5,796. The estimated fees of Naylon, Foster, Dean & Aronson, counsel for the underwriters, which are to be paid by the underwriters, is estimated at $6,500.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than July 5, 1960, request this Commission in writing that a hearing be held in respect of the application, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law which he desires to controvert; or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D.C. At any time after said date, the application, as filed or as it may be amended, may be granted as provided in Rule 23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the Act, or the Commission may grant exemption from its rules as provided in Rules 20(a) and 100 thereof, or take such other action as it may deem appropriate.

By the Commission.

421.5139 Warehouse receipts.
421.5140 Determination of quantity.

AUTHORITY: §§ 421.5136 to 421.5146 issued under sec. 4, 62 Stat. 1070, as amended; 15 U.S.C. 714b. Interpret or apply sec. 5, 62 Stat. 1072, secs. 105, 401, 63 Stat. 1051, 1054, as amended, Title II, 73 Stat. 178, 15 U.S.C. 714c, 7 U.S.C. 1441, 1421.

§ 421.5136 Purpose.

Sections 421.5136 to 421.5146 state additional specific requirements which, together with the general regulations contained in the 1960 C.C.C. Grain Price Support Bulletin 1 (§§ 421.5001 to 421.5022), apply to loans and purchase agreements under the 1960-Crop Corn Price Support Program.

§ 421.5137 Availability of price support.

(a) Method of support. Price support will be made available through farm-storage and warehouse-storage loans and through purchase agreements.

(b) Area. Farm-storage and warehouse-storage loans and purchase agreements will be available wherever corn is grown in the United States, except that farm-storage loans will not be available in areas where the State committee determines that corn cannot be safely stored on the farm.

(c) Where to apply. Application for price support should be made at the office of the county committee which keeps the farm program records for the farm.

(d) When to apply. Loans and purchase agreements will be available from the time of harvest through May 31, 1961: Provided, That in areas where it is determined by the State committee that producers may not be, or are not, in a position to store corn safely for the full storage period because of infestation by angoumois moths or other insects, adverse climatic conditions, or other factors affecting the safe storage of corn, the final date of availability for loans and purchase agreements shall be such earlier date as may be determined by the State committee. The State committee shall notify producers in the area through public announcement sufficiently in advance of such date in order to allow producers a reasonable period of time in which to place their corn under loans or purchase agreements. The applicable documents must be signed by the producer and delivered to the office of the county committee not later than the final date of availability for loans and purchase agreements in the area. Applicable documents include the Producer's Note and Loan Agreement for warehouse-storage loans, the Producer's Note and Supplemental Loan Agreement and the Commodity Chattel Mortgage for farm-storage loans, and the Purchase Agreement for purchase agreements.

§ 421.5138 Eligible corn.

The corn, when placed under loan or delivered under a purchase agreement, must meet the following requirements.

(a) The corn must be of the classes Yellow Corn (Class I), White Corn (Class II), or Mixed Corn (Class III) and must have been produced in the United States in 1960 by an eligible producer.

(b) The corn must not contain mercurial compounds or other substances poisonous to man or animals.

(c) The corn must be ear or shelled corn: Provided, That the corn must be shelled before placed under a warehouse-storage loan or before delivery is made in liquidation of a loan or under a purchase agreement. If the corn is not shelled prior to delivery, the cost of shelling on or after delivery shall be for the account of the producer.

(d) (1) The beneficial interest in the corn must be in the eligible producer tendering the corn for loan or for delivery under a purchase agreement, and must always have been in him, or must have been in him and a former producer whom he succeeded before the corn was harvested. Any producer who is in doubt as to whether his interest in the commodity complies with the requirements of this subpart should make available to the county committee all pertinent information, prior to filing an application, which will permit a determination to be made by CCC as to his eligibility for price support.

(2) To meet the requirements of succession to a former producer, the rights, responsibilities and interest of the former producer with respect to the farming unit on which the corn was produced shall have been substantially assumed by the producer claiming succession. Mere purchase of the crop prior to harvest, without acquisition of any additional interest in the farming unit, shall not constitute succession. The county committee shall determine whether the requirements with respect to succession have been met.

(e) Corn placed under loan must, except for moisture content, grade No. 3 or better, or No. 4 on the factor of test weight only, but otherwise No. 3 or better and must meet the following additional requirements:

(1) For ear corn placed under a farm-storage loan, the moisture content must not exceed 21.0 percent if the corn is tested for loan from time of harvest through February 1961; 19.5 percent if tested for loan during March 1961; 18.0 percent if tested for loan during April 1961, and 16.0 percent if tested for loan during May 1961.

(2) For shelled corn placed under a farm-storage loan, the moisture content must not exceed 14.0 percent irrespective of when the corn is tested for loan.

(3) Corn placed under loan must not grade "Weevily."

(f) Corn delivered to CCC under a purchase agreement must meet the following additional requirements:

(1) Corn delivered to CCC from other than approved warehouse storage must grade No. 5 or better, except that such corn may bear the special grade "Weevily" in addition to the numerical grade.

(2) Corn placed in approved warehouse storage prior to the time that the producer notifies the county committee of his intention to sell the corn to CCC must grade No. 3 or better or No. 4 on the factor of test weight only but otherwise No. 3 or better, must not contain in excess of 14.0 percent moisture and must not grade "Weevily."

(g) Corn shall not be eligible for a warehouse-storage loan or delivery from approved warehouse storage under a purchase agreement if it contains in excess of 14.0 percent moisture, except that corn represented by warehouse receipts which indicate that the corn is ineligible because of moisture content only, will be eligible if the warehouseman certifies on the supplemental certificate or on a statement attached to the warehouse receipt that corn of 14.0 percent moisture or less of an eligible grade and quality which meets the requirements of § 421.5138 will be delivered. The certification shall be substantially as follows:

On corn containing in excess of 14.0 percent moisture, delivery will be made of corn which grades No. ------ which contains not in excess of 14.0 percent moisture, which is otherwise of the same quality or better as the corn described on warehouse receipt No. ------, and which is the actual quantity obtained after drying the corn described in such receipt to not in excess of 14.0 percent moisture. No lien for processing will be claimed by the warehouseman from the Commodity Credit Corporation or any subsequent holder of the warehouse receipt.

(h) If offered as security for a farm-storage loan, shelled corn must have been stored in the granary at least 30 days prior to its inspection for measurement, sampling and sealing unless otherwise approved by the State committee.

§ 421.5139 Warehouse receipts.

Warehouse receipts representing corn in approved warehouse storage to be placed under a warehouse-storage loan or delivered in satisfaction of a farm-storage loan or acquired under a purchase agreement, must meet the following requirements of this section:

(a) Warehouse receipts presented for warehouse-storage loans must be issued in the name of the producer and for deliveries under farm-storage loans or purchase agreements in the name of the producer or CCC, and must be properly endorsed in blank when issued in the name of the producer so as to vest title in the holder. The receipts must be issued by a warehouse for which a Uniform Grain Storage Agreement is in effect and which is approved by CCC for price support purposes, or must be receipts which are issued on warehouses operated by Eastern common carriers under tariffs approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission for which custodian agreements are in effect.

(b) Each warehouse receipt, or the warehouseman's supplemental certificate (in duplicate), properly identified with the warehouse receipt, must show: (1) Gross weight and net bushels, (2) class, (3) grade, (4) test weight, (5) moisture, (6) broken corn and foreign material, and (7) any other grading factor(s) when such factor(s) and not test weight or moisture determine the grade. In areas where licensed inspectors are not available at terminal and subterminal warehouses, CCC will accept inspection certificates based on representative samples which have been forwarded to and graded by a licensed grain inspector.

(c) A separate warehouse receipt must be submitted for each grade and class of corn.

(d) The warehouse receipt may be subject to liens for warehouse charges only to the extent indicated in § 421.5144.

(e) If the warehouseman has furnished a statement as provided in § 421.5138(g), the supplemental certificate must show the numerical grade, grading factors, and the quantity of the corn to be delivered. Where the grade, grading factors and the quantity of the corn shown on the supplemental certificate do not agree with the warehouse receipt, the grade, grading factors and quantity shown on the supplemental certificate shall take precedence.

(f) If the receipt is issued for grain of which the warehouseman is the producer and the owner either solely, jointly, or in common with others, the fact of such ownership shall be stated on the receipt. Such receipts shall also be registered or recorded with appropriate State or local officials when required by State law. In States where the pledge of warehouse receipts by a warehouseman on his own corn is not valid under State law and the warehouseman elects to deliver corn to CCC under a purchase agreement for which he is eligible under this program, the warehouse receipt shall be issued in the name of CCC.

(g) Each warehouse receipt or accompanying supplemental certificate representing grain stored in an approved warehouse operating under the Uniform Grain Storage Agreement shall indicate that the corn is insured, in accordance with such Agreement. Each warehouse receipt or accompanying supplemental certificate issued on warehouses operated by Eastern common carriers and representing corn to be placed under loan shall indicate that the corn is insured at the full market value against loss or damage by fire, lightning, inherent explosion, windstorm, cyclone and tornado. The cost of such insurance shall not be for the account of CCC.

§ 421.5140 Determination of quantity.

(a) The quantity of corn placed under farm-storage loan may be determined either by weight or by measurement. The quantity of corn delivered under a farm-storage loan, or under a purchase agreement shall be determined by weight. The quantity of corn on which a warehouse-storage loan shall be made and the quantity delivered to or acquired by CCC in an approved warehouse under a farm-storage loan or purchase agreement shall be the net weight of the corn represented by the warehouse receipt or on the supplemental certificate, if applicable.

(b) When determined by measurement, a bushel of ear corn shall be 2.5 cubic feet of ear corn testing not more than 16.0 percent in moisture content. An adjustment in the number of bushels of ear corn will be made for moisture content in excess of 16.0 percent in accordance with the following schedule:

Moisture content (percent)	Adjustment factor (percent)
16.1 to 17.0, both inclusive	98
17.1 to 18.0, both inclusive	96
18.1 to 19.0, both inclusive	94
19.1 to 20.0, both inclusive	92

(c) When the quantity of shelled corn is determined by measurement, a bushel shall be 1.25 cubic feet of shelled corn testing 56 pounds per bushel. The quantity determined by measurement of shelled corn having a test weight of other than 56 pounds per bushel shall be adjusted by applying the applicable percentage as shown in the following table:

For shelled corn testing:	Percent
60 pounds or over	107
59 pounds or over, but less than 60 pounds	105
58 pounds or over, but less than 59 pounds	104
57 pounds or over, but less than 58 pounds	102
56 pounds or over, but less than 57 pounds	100
55 pounds or over, but less than 56 pounds	98
54 pounds or over, but less than 55 pounds	96
53 pounds or over, but less than 54 pounds	95
52 pounds or over, but less than 53 pounds	93
51 pounds or over, but less than 52 pounds	91
50 pounds or over, but less than 51 pounds	89
49 pounds or over, but less than 50 pounds	88

(d) When the quantity is determined by weight, a bushel of shelled corn shall be 56 pounds. In determining the quantity of sacked corn by weight, a deduction of three-fourths of a pound for each sack will be made.

(e) Since dockage is not a grade factor in the case of corn, the quantity of corn will be determined without reference to dockage.

§ 421.5141 Determination of quality.

The class, grade, grading factors, and all other quality factors shall be determined in accordance with the method set forth in the Official Grain Standards of the United States for Corn whether or not such determinations are made on the basis of an official inspection.

§ 421.5142 Maturity of loans.

(a) Nonrecourse loans mature on demand but not later than July 31, 1961. Recourse loans mature on May 31, 1962.

(b) Corn may be delivered in satisfaction of nonrecourse farm-storage loans after maturity in accordance with § 421.5019(b)(1). Corn may be delivered under purchase agreement after maturity in accordance with § 421.5019(e)(1).

(c) In areas where it is determined by the State committee that some producers may not be in a position to store corn safely for the full storage period (for reasons set forth in § 421.5137(d)), the State committee may establish an earlier delivery period prior to maturity (in addition to the regular delivery period) during which any producer in such areas may voluntarily deliver corn which is held in farm storage under nonrecourse loans and purchase agreements. Such earlier delivery period, if established, shall begin at least 30 days after the final date of availability of loans and purchase agreements established by the State committee, and not before April 1, 1961. CCC will accept deliveries of corn during such early delivery period, provided the producer notifies the county committee at least 10 days prior to the date that he desires to deliver the corn.

(d) If the State committee determines that producers in any area are not in a position to safely store corn for the full storage period (for reasons set forth in § 421.5137(d)), all nonrecourse farm-storage loans in such area shall be called promptly by the State committee, and producers who elect to make deliveries from farm storage under purchase agreements shall be required to do so during the delivery period for loans; except that for individual cases and upon the approval by the State committee a producer may be permitted to keep his corn in farm storage until the regular loan maturity date provided (1) such corn is shelled, and (2) the producer has satisfactory storage facilities and is adequately equipped to properly care for the corn. Such earlier delivery period, if established, shall begin at least 30 days after the final date of availability of loans and purchase agreements established by the State committee, and not before April 1, 1961.

§ 421.5143 Determination of support rates.

(a) Basic county support rates, and the schedule of premiums and discounts, for corn will be set forth in 1960 C.C.C. Grain Price Support Bulletin 1, Supplement 2, Corn. Both warehouse-storage and farm-storage loans and purchases under purchase agreements will be made on the basis of the rate established for the county in which the corn is produced.

(b) Where the State committee determines that State, district, or county weed control laws, as administered, affect the corn crop, the support rate in the case of farm storage shall be 10 cents below the applicable county support rate unless the producer obtains a certificate from the appropriate weed control official indicating that the corn complies with the weed control laws. In the case of warehouse storage, whenever the State committee of the State in which the corn is stored determines that State, district or county weed control laws, as administered, affect corn stored in approved warehouses, the rate shall be 10 cents below the applicable support rate unless the producer obtains a certificate from either the appropriate State, county or district weed control official or the storing warehouseman that the corn complies with the weed control laws, and in the case of the warehouseman, that he will save CCC harmless from loss or penalty because of the weed control laws. The certificate of the warehouseman may be in substantially the following form:

CERTIFICATION

This is to certify that the grain evidenced by warehouse receipt No. ------ issued to ---------- is not subject to seizure or other action under weed control laws or regulations in effect at point of storage. It is further certified and agreed that should such grain be taken over by CCC in settlement of a loan or be purchased under the purchase agreement program that the undersigned will save CCC from loss or penalty under weed control laws or regulations in effect at the point the grain was stored under the above warehouse receipt.

§ 421.5144 Warehouse charges.

(a) (1) Warehouse receipts and the corn represented thereby stored in approved warehouses operating under the Uniform Grain Storage Agreement may be subject to liens for warehouse handling and storage charges at not to exceed the Uniform Grain Storage Agreement rates from the date the corn is deposited in the warehouse for storage: Provided, That the warehouseman shall not be entitled to satisfy the lien by sale of the commodity when CCC is holder of the warehouse receipt. Where the date of deposit (the date of the warehouse receipt if the date of deposit is not shown) on warehouse receipts representing corn stored in warehouses operating under the Uniform Grain Storage Agreement is on or before the applicable nonrecourse loan maturity date, there shall be deducted in computing the amount of the loan or purchase price the storage charges per bushel as shown in the following table unless written evidence has been submitted with the warehouse receipt that all warehouse charges, except receiving and loading out charges, have been prepaid through the nonrecourse loan maturity date.

For States having a maturity date not later than July 31, 1961—Date the storage charges start (all dates inclusive):	Amount of deduction (cents per bushel)
Prior to Sept. 25, 1960	12
Sept. 25, 1960–Oct. 21, 1960	11
Oct. 22, 1960–Nov. 17, 1960	10
Nov. 18, 1960–Dec. 14, 1960	9
Dec. 15, 1960–Jan. 10, 1961	8

Apr. 29, 1961–May 25, 1961	3
May 26, 1961–June 21, 1961	2
June 22, 1961–July 31, 1961	1

In the case of recourse loans, there shall be deducted the storage charges per day from the date the storage charges start against the holders of the warehouse receipt to the recourse loan maturity date of May 31, 1962, plus receiving and loading out charges as provided in the Schedule of Rates of the Uniform Grain Storage Agreement in effect when the services are performed, unless written evidence has been submitted with the warehouse receipt that such charges have been prepaid.

(2) Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this paragraph, if the date the storage charges start against the holders of the warehouse receipt is shown on the warehouse receipt or supplemental certificate and such date is prior to the maturity date of loans for the commodity but subsequent to the date of deposit of the commodity in the warehouse, the deduction for storage in computing the amount of loan or purchase price shall be for the period from the date storage charges start against holders of the warehouse receipt through the applicable maturity date to be determined in accordance with § 421.5142.

(b) Warehouse receipts and the corn represented thereby stored in approved warehouses operated by Eastern common carriers may be subject to liens for warehouse elevation (receiving and delivering) and storage charges from the date of deposit at rates approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission: Provided, That the warehouseman shall not be entitled to satisfy the lien by sale of the commodity when CCC is holder of the warehouse receipt. There shall be deducted in computing the amount of the loan or purchase price the amount of the approved tariff rate for storage (not including elevation) which will accumulate from the date of deposit through the applicable maturity date to be determined in accordance with § 421.5142 and in the case of recourse loans the approved tariff rate for elevation charges, unless written evidence is submitted with the warehouse receipt that such charges have been prepaid. The county office shall request the CSS commodity office to determine the amount of such charges. Where the producer presents evidence showing that elevation charges have been prepaid, the amount of the storage charges to be deducted in the case of nonrecourse price support shall be reduced by the amount of the elevation charges prepaid by the producer.

§ 421.5145 Inspection of corn under purchase agreement.

(a) Predelivery inspection. Where the producer has given written notice within the 30-day period prior to the nonrecourse loan maturity date of his intent to sell his corn stored in other than an approved warehouse under purchase agreement to CCC, the county office shall make an inspection of the corn prior to delivery of the corn. The primary importance of this inspection is to discuss with the producer the condition of his corn and the method for making settlement for corn delivered. This predelivery inspection shall not be used for settlement. If the corn, on the basis of predelivery inspection, is determined to be eligible for delivery to CCC in accordance with § 421.5138 or if the corn appears to be ineligible for delivery and the producer insists upon making delivery, the county office shall issue delivery instructions. The producer must then complete delivery within a 15-day period immediately following the date the county office issues delivery instructions, unless the county office determines that more time is needed for delivery. A predelivery inspection shall not be made on corn stored commingled in warehouses not approved for storage or on corn in an unapproved warehouse which is stored so that the identity of the producer's corn is maintained but a predelivery inspection is not possible.

(b) Inspection of corn stored by producer, after maturity date. The producer may be required, without any cost to CCC, to retain corn under purchase agreement which is stored in other than approved warehouse storage for a period of 60 days after the nonrecourse loan maturity date. CCC will not assume any loss in quantity or quality of the corn covered by a purchase agreement occurring prior to delivery to CCC, except for quality deterioration under the following circumstances: If a producer has properly requested delivery instructions for corn which was determined to be of an eligible grade and quality at the time of the predelivery inspection, and CCC cannot accept delivery within the 60-day period following the loan maturity date, the producer may notify the county office at any time after such 60-day period that the corn is going out of condition or is in danger of going out of condition. Such notice must be confirmed in writing. If the county office determines that the corn is going out of condition or is in danger of going out of condition and that the corn cannot be satisfactorily conditioned by the producer, and delivery cannot be accepted within a reasonable length of time, the county office shall obtain an inspection and grade and quality determination. When delivery is completed, settlement shall be made on the basis of such grade and quality determination or on the basis of the grade and quality determination made at the time of delivery, whichever is higher, and on the basis of the quantity actually delivered.

(a) Settlement value. Subject to the provisions of § 421.5019, the following shall apply:

(1) Nonrecourse farm-storage loans. In the case of corn delivered to CCC under nonrecourse farm-storage loans grading No. 3 or better, or No. 4 on the factor of test weight only but otherwise grading No. 3 or better, settlement shall be made at the applicable support rate for the county in which the corn was produced. The support rate so determined shall be for the total quantity of corn eligible for delivery subject to premiums and discounts shown in the "Schedule of Premiums and Discounts" in 1960 C.C.C. Grain Price Support Bulletin 1, Supplement 2, Corn. The settlement value of corn which upon delivery grades below No. 3 (except for corn which grades No. 4 on test weight only, but otherwise No. 3 or better) shall be the applicable basic county support rate without reference to any premiums or discounts less the difference, if any, at the time of delivery, between the market price of corn grading No. 3 (without any premiums or discounts for the factor of moisture) and the market price of the corn delivered, as determined by CCC: Provided, however, That if such corn is sold by CCC in order to determine its market price the settlement value shall not be less than such sales price, except that if upon delivery the corn contains mercurial compounds or other substances poisonous to man or animals, such corn shall be sold for seed (in accordance with applicable State seed laws and regulations), fuel or industrial uses where the end product will not be consumed by man or animals, and the settlement value shall be the same as the sales price, except that if CCC is unable to sell such corn for the use specified above, the settlement value shall be the market value, as determined by CCC, as of the date of delivery.

(2) Nonrecourse warehouse-storage loans. Settlement for eligible corn under nonrecourse warehouse-storage loans not redeemed on maturity and represented by warehouse receipts issued by an approved warehouse shall be made on the basis of the weight, grade, and other quality factors shown on the warehouse receipts or accompanying documents at the applicable support rate for the county in which the corn was produced.

(3) Purchase agreements—(i) Delivery from farm storage. Settlement for corn delivered to CCC from farm storage and purchased by CCC under a purchase agreement shall be made on the basis of weight, grade, and other quality factors determined by a reinspection at the time of delivery. Settlement for eligible corn grading No. 3 or better, or No. 4 on the factor of test weight only but otherwise No. 3 or better, and for corn of such grades bearing the special grade "Weevily" in addition to the numerical grade shall be made on the basis of the applicable basic county support rate for the county where produced and the "Schedule of Premiums and Discounts" contained in the 1960 C.C.C. Grain Price Support Bulletin 1, Supplement 2, Corn. Settlement for eligible corn grading No. 4 on the basis of factors other than test weight, for eligible corn grading No. 5 and for eligible corn of such grades bearing the special grade "Weevily" in addition to the numerical grade, shall be computed at the applicable basic county support rate without reference to any premiums or discounts, less the difference, if any, at the time of delivery, between the market price for No. 3 corn (without any premiums or discounts for the factor of moisture) and the market price of the corn delivered, as determined by CCC: Provided, however, That if such corn is sold by CCC in order to determine its market price, the settlement value shall not be less than such sales price: And provided further, That if, upon delivery, the corn contains mercurial compounds or other substances poisonous to man or animals, such corn shall be sold for seed (in accordance with applicable State seed laws and regulations), fuel or industrial uses where the end product will not be consumed by man or animals, and the settlement value shall be the same as the sales price, except that if CCC is unable to sell such corn for the use specified above, the settlement value shall be the market value, if any, as determined by CCC as of the date of delivery.

(ii) Delivery from approved warehouse storage. In the case of eligible corn stored commingled in an approved warehouse, the producer must, not later than the day following the loan maturity date, or during such period of time thereafter as may be specified by the county committee, submit to the office of the county committee warehouse receipts under which the warehouseman guarantees quality and quantity for the quantity of corn the producer elects to sell to CCC. Settlement for eligible corn delivered under purchase agreement to CCC by submission of warehouse receipts issued by an approved warehouse shall be made on the basis of the weight, grade, and other quality factors shown on the warehouse receipt or accompanying documents at the applicable support rate for the county in which the corn was produced.

(iii) Delivery from unapproved warehouse storage. Settlement for corn delivered to CCC which is stored in an unapproved warehouse, regardless of whether a predelivery inspection is performed, shall be the same as for corn delivered under a purchase agreement from farm storage as provided in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph.

(iv) Corn ineligible for delivery inadvertently accepted by CCC. The settlement provisions hereof shall apply to the following categories of corn ineligible for delivery which is inadvertently accepted by CCC and which CCC determines it is not in a position to reject: (a) Corn of an ineligible grade or quality which is delivered to CCC in excess of the maximum quantity stated in the purchase agreement and (b) corn in other than approved warehouse storage which, at the time of delivery, does not meet the eligibility requirements of § 421.5138. The settlement value shall be the market price for the grade, quality, and quantity of such ineligible corn delivered as determined by CCC: Provided, however, That if such corn is sold by CCC in order to determine its market price, the settlement value shall not be less than the sales price: Provided further, That if upon delivery, the corn contains mercurial compounds or other substances poisonous to man or animals, the corn shall be sold for seed (in accordance with applicable State seed laws and requirements), fuel or industrial uses where the end product will not be consumed by man or animals and the settlement value shall be the same as the sales price, except that if CCC is unable to sell such corn for the use specified above, the settlement value shall be the market value, as determined by CCC as of the date of delivery. If corn delivered is of an eligible grade and quality but in excess of the maximum quantity stated in the purchase agreement and such corn is inadvertently accepted by CCC, the settlement value shall be the sales price if the corn is immediately sold. If the corn is not immediately sold, the settlement value shall be the applicable support rate if such rate has been established or the market price as determined by CCC, whichever is lower.

(4) Nothwithstanding the foregoing, if a warehouseman has made a certification on the warehouse receipt or supplemental certificate as specified in § 421.5138(g), settlement for corn delivered to or acquired by CCC in an approved warehouse under a nonrecourse farm-storage loan or purchase agreement shall be based on the quality specified in such certification.

(5) Recourse farm-storage and warehouse-storage loans. Settlement of recourse farm-storage and warehouse-storage loans shall be effected in accordance with the applicable provisions of 1960 C.C.C. Grain Price Support Bulletin 1.

(b) Storage deduction for early delivery. No deduction for storage shall be made for farm-storage corn under nonrecourse loan or purchase agreement authorized to be delivered to CCC prior to the loan maturity date or such earlier delivery date as may be established by the State committee in accordance with § 421.5142(d) except where it is necessary to call the loan by reason of fault or negligence on the part of the producer or where the producer requests early delivery and the county committee approves early delivery and determines such early delivery is solely for the convenience of the producer. In such cases storage charges shall be deducted for the period beginning on the date delivery was completed and ending on July 31, 1961, in accordance with the schedule of deductions for warehouse charges in § 421.5144. Where an earlier delivery date is established by the State committee in accordance with § 421.5142(d), storage charges shall be deducted for the period beginning on the date delivery was completed and ending on such earlier date established by the State committee in accordance with the schedule of charges provided in § 421.5144 adjusted to such earlier delivery date.

(c) Refund of prepaid handling charges. In case a warehouseman charges the producer for the receiving or the receiving and loading out charges on eligible corn under nonrecourse loan or purchase agreement stored in an approved warehouse, the producer shall, upon delivery of the corn to CCC, be reimbursed or given credit by the county office for such prepaid charges in an amount not to exceed the charges specified in the storage agreement provided the producer furnishes to the county office written evidence signed by the warehouseman that such charges have been paid. In case an approved warehouse operated by an Eastern common carrier charges the producer for the elevation charges on eligible corn under nonrecourse loan or purchase agreement, the producer shall, upon delivery of the corn to CCC, be reimbursed or given credit by the county office for such prepaid charges in an amount not to exceed the charges specified in the applicable approved tariff; provided the producer furnishes to the county committee written evidence signed by the warehouseman that such charges have been paid and CCC has not previously given the producer credit for such charges as provided in § 421.5144(c) hereof.

(d) Storage payment where CCC is unable to take delivery of corn stored in other than an approved warehouse under loan or purchase agreement. The producer may be required to retain corn under nonrecourse loan or purchase agreement which is stored in other than an approved warehouse for a period of 60 days after the nonrecourse maturity date without any cost to CCC. The producer shall be paid a storage payment upon delivery of the corn to CCC if CCC is unable to take delivery of such corn within the 60-day period after the nonrecourse maturity and in the case of corn under purchase agreement if the producer has properly given notice of his intention to sell the corn to CCC. The period for earning such storage payment shall begin the day following the expiration of the 60-day period after the maturity date and extend through the final date of delivery, or the final date for delivery as specified in the delivery instructions issued to the producer by the county office, whichever is earlier. The storage payment shall be computed at the rate of .037 cents per bushel per day for the corn accepted for delivery or sale to CCC.

(e) Track-loading payment. A track-loading payment of 3 cents per bushel shall be made to the producer on nonrecourse price support corn delivered to CCC on track at a country point.

(f) Compensation for hauling. If the producer is directed by the county office to deliver his nonrecourse price support corn to a point other than his customary shipping point, he shall be allowed compensation (as determined by CCC at not to exceed the common carrier truck rate or the rate available from local truckers) for the additional cost of hauling the corn any distance greater than the distance from the point where the corn is stored by the producer to the customary shipping point.

(g) Method of payment under purchase agreement settlements. When delivery of corn under purchase agreement is completed, payment will be made by sight draft drawn on CCC by the county office. The producer shall direct, on Commodity Purchase Form 4, to whom payment of the proceeds shall be made.

Issued this 16th day of June 1960.

FOREST W. BEALL,
Acting Executive Vice President,
Commodity Credit Corporation.

Title 14—AERONAUTICS AND SPACE

Chapter I—Federal Aviation Agency

[Reg. Docket No. 425; Amdt. 29-3]

PART 29—PHYSICAL STANDARDS FOR AIRMEN; MEDICAL CERTIFICATES

Medical Standards

Existing vision standards and vision testing procedures applicable to civil airmen have been carefully reviewed by the Bureau of Aviation Medicine It was found that present tests for depth perception, diplopia prism convergence and prism divergence do not satisfactorily provide the information needed in assessing the visual proficiency of airmen. Limiting values for these tests have, in fact, seldom served as the basis for disqualification despite their existence in the Civil Air Regulations as standards to be met by airman applicants. Vision standards which more accurately limit disqualification to those rare applicants who would have significant alterations of eye muscle balance have been proposed in a separate action.

In consideration of present medical knowledge pertaining to this area, as more fully discussed in the preamble of the proposed amendment [1] issued concurrently, this amendment rescinds existing standards for diplopia, depth perception, abduction and adduction.

Since this amendment grants relief by eliminating various eye standards, imposes no additional burden on any person, and is purely technical in nature, the Administrator finds that notice and public procedure hereon are not necessary and that this amendement may be made effective immediately.

In consideration of the foregoing, Part 29 of the Civil Air Regulations (14 CFR 29) is amended as follows, effective June 15, 1960:

1. In § 29.2(a) by deleting subparagraphs (2), (3), (7), and (8), and by redesignating subparagraphs (4), (5), (6), (9), (10), (11), and (12) as (2), (3), (4), (5), (6), (7), and (8) respectively.

2. In § 29.3(a) by deleting subparagraphs (2), (3), and (5) and by redesignating subparagraphs (4), (6), (7), (8), and (9) as (2), (3), (4), (5), and (6) respectively.

Chapter III—Federal Aviation Agency

SUBCHAPTER E—AIR NAVIGATION REGULATIONS

[Airspace Docket No. 59-WA-190]

PART 600—DESIGNATION OF FEDERAL AIRWAYS

Modification

On December 10, 1959, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (24 F.R. 9994) stating that the Federal Aviation Agency proposed to modify the segment of VOR Federal airway No. 2 between Lone Rock, Wis., and Milwaukee, Wis., and the north alternate to Victor 2 between Lansing, Mich., and Salem, Mich. In addition, it was proposed that the north alternates and associated control areas to Victor 2 between Nodine, Minn., and Lone Rock and between Lone Rock and Milwaukee be revoked.

The action to revoke the north alternates of Victor 2 between Nodine, and Lone Rock and between Lone Rock and Milwaukee is deferred until the Dells, Wis., VOR is commissioned approximately December 7, 1960, and VOR Federal airway No. 170 is extended from the Milwaukee VOR via the Dells VOR to the Nodine VOR. The designation of this extension is contained in Airspace Docket No. 59-KC-3 (25 F.R. 2387) and shall become effective December 15, 1960. Accordingly, the action revoking the north alternates to Victor 2 shall be effective December 15, 1960.

The notice stated that Victor 2 N would be realigned via the Lansing VOR 090° True and the Salem, Mich., VOR 308° True radials to overlie a portion of VOR Federal airway No. 218 east of Lansing. However, in Airspace Docket No. 59-KC-12 (25 F.R. 2662), Victor 218 has been realigned via the Lansing 091° True radial to overlie the proposed location of the Pontiac, Mich., VOR. Therefore, Victor 2 N will be redesignated via the Lansing VOR 091° True radial to coincide with Victor 218 east of the Lansing VOR. This change is minor in nature in that it represents a correction of only one degree and will be reflected in the amendment.

No adverse comments were received regarding the proposed amendment.

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of the rule herein adopted, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented.

The substance of the proposed amendments having been published, therefore, pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (24 F.R. 4530) and for the reasons stated in the notice, § 600.6002 (24 F.R. 10503, 25 F.R. 4376) is amended, with separate effective dates, as follows:

1. In the text of § 600.6002 "intersection of the Lone Rock omnirange 103° True and the Milwaukee omnirange 273° True radials;" and "including a north alternate via the Lansing VOR 085° and the Salem VOR 307° radials." are deleted and "INT of the Lone Rock VOR 106° True and the Milwaukee VOR 270° True radials;" and "including a north alternate via the Lansing VOR 091° True and the Salem VOR 308° True radials." are substituted therefor, respectively.

This amendment shall become effective 0001 e.s.t. July 28, 1960.

2. In the text of § 600.6002 "Lone Rock, Wis., including a north alternate; INT of the Lone Rock VOR 106° True and the Milwaukee VOR 270° True radials; Milwaukee, Wis., omnirange station, including a north alternate from the Lone Rock omnirange station to the Milwaukee omnirange station via the intersection of the Lone Rock omnirange 088° True and the Milwaukee omnirange 288° True radials;" is deleted and "Lone Rock, Wis., VOR; INT of the Lone Rock VOR 106° True and the Milwaukee VOR 270° True radials; Milwaukee, Wis., VOR;" is substituted therefor.

This amendment shall become effective 0001 e.s.t. December 15, 1960.

PART 600—DESIGNATION OF FEDERAL AIRWAYS

PART 601—DESIGNATION OF THE CONTINENTAL CONTROL AREA, CONTROL AREAS, CONTROL ZONES, REPORTING POINTS, AND POSITIVE CONTROL ROUTE SEGMENTS

Designation of Federal Airway and Associated Control Areas

On February 2, 1960, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (25 F.R. 880) stating that the Federal Aviation Agency proposed to designate VOR Federal airway No. 1528 and its associated control areas from Newberg, Oreg., to Cherokee, Wyo.

As stated in the notice, the Federal Aviation Agency proposed to designate Victor 1528 from the Newberg, Oreg., VOR via a VOR to be installed approximately September 1, 1960, near John Day, Oreg., at latitude 44°38'53" N., longitude 119°42'37" W.; Boise, Idaho, VORTAC; Pocatello, Idaho, VOR; Big Piney, Wyo., VOR; to the Cherokee, Wyo., VOR. This airway would be utilized for the movement of air traffic operating between the Portland, Oreg., and the Cheyenne/Denver, Colo., terminal areas. Subsequent to the publication of the notice, the commissioning date of the John Day VOR was rescheduled to November 1, 1960.

The Air Transport Association of America concurred in the proposed designation of Victor 1528. Moreover, the ATA recommended that, in order to provide a complete airway that would facilitate flight planning, Victor 1528 should be extended from Cherokee to Denver, Colo., over the existing VOR Federal airway No. 4 and from Newberg to Portland, Oregon, over the existing west alternate to VOR Federal airway No. 23. The Federal Aviation Agency agrees that the extension of the proposed Victor 1528 from Newberg to Portland over Victor 23W, and from Cherokee to Denver over Victor 4, would provide a complete airway between the Portland and Denver terminal areas resulting in simplified flight planning. Therefore, since no additional airspace is involved, the proposed airway will be designated from the Portland VORTAC via the Newberg VOR, the John Day VOR, the Boise VORTAC, the Pocatello VOR, the Big Piney VOR, the Cherokee VOR, the Laramie, Wyo., VOR to the Denver VORTAC.

The Department of the Air Force objected to the portion of the proposed airway between the John Day VOR and the Boise VOR. The Air Force stated that this airway portion would conflict with Air Defense Command activities since the ADC uses the area northwest of Boise for scramble and recovery of Air National Guard aircraft. The Federal Aviation Agency has analyzed the departure and arrival procedures used by ADC at Boise, and anticipates no difficulty in the control of ADC aircraft in this area with respect to the proposed airway segment between John Day and Boise. The existing departure track based on the 275° magnetic radial of the Mountain Home, Idaho, TVOR routes the aircraft away from the proposed airway to the south of the Boise VOR and no interference will result between this departure and the airway. The instrument approach recovery procedures for Air National Guard aircraft will create routine air traffic management situations which will be handled procedurally by the appropriate air route traffic control center. In view of the foregoing, the Federal Aviation Agency is designating this airway segment and its associated control areas between John Day and Boise as proposed in the notice.

Subsequent to the publication of the notice, the Federal Aviation Agency determined that this airway should not be included in the Victor 1500 series and is therefore renumbering this airway VOR Federal airway No. 500.

No other adverse comments were received regarding the proposed amendments.

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of the rules herein adopted, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented.

In consideration of the foregoing, and pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (24 F.R. 4530), Parts 600 (24 F.R. 10487) and 601 (24 F.R. 10530) are amended by adding the following sections:

§ 600.6500 VOR Federal airway No. 500 (Portland, Oreg., to Denver, Colo.).

From the Portland, Oreg., VORTAC via the Newberg, Oreg., VOR; John Day, Oreg., VOR; Boise, Idaho, VORTAC; Pocatello, Idaho, VOR; Big Piney, Wyo., VOR; Cherokee, Wyo., VOR; Laramie, Wyo., VOR; to the Denver, Colo., VORTAC.

§ 601.6500 VOR Federal airway No. 500 control areas (Portland, Oreg., to Denver, Colo.).

All of VOR Federal airway No. 500.

These amendments shall become effective 0001, e.s.t., December 15, 1960.

Issued in Washington, D.C., on June 15, 1960.

PART 601—DESIGNATION OF THE CONTINENTAL CONTROL AREA, CONTROL AREAS, CONTROL ZONES, REPORTING POINTS, AND POSITIVE CONTROL ROUTE SEGMENTS

Revocation of Segments of Federal Airway, Associated Control Areas and Reporting Points

On December 23, 1959, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (24 F.R. 10459) stating that the Federal Aviation Agency was considering amendments to §§ 600.216, 601.216 and 601.4216 of the regulations of the Administrator which would revoke the segments of Red Federal airway No. 16 and their associated control areas from Tallahassee, Fla., to Albany, Ga., and from Augusta, Ga., to Florence, S.C. Concurrent with this action, reporting points which are based on radio ranges at the following locations would be revoked: Albany, Ga., Macon, Ga., Augusta, Ga., and Columbia, S.C.

As stated in the notice, Red 16 extends in part from Tallahassee to Albany and from Augusta to Florence. The Federal Aviation Agency IFR peak day airway traffic survey for the period July 1, 1958, to June 30, 1959, showed less than 8 aircraft movements on the Tallahassee-Albany segment and less than 12 aircraft movements on the Augusta-Florence segment. On the basis of this survey, the retention of these airway segments and their associated control areas are unjustified as assignments of airspace and the revocation thereof is in the public interest.

The Department of the Army objected to the revocation of the segment of Red 16 between Augusta and Columbia. However, this objection was subsequently withdrawn. The Central American Airways Instrument Flight Training School, who operates the Army Instrument School under contract to the Department of the Army objected to revoking the segment of Red 16 between Augusta and Columbia for the following reasons:

(a) Central American Airways makes extensive use of Red 16, and the Augusta Low Frequency Range in the advance instrument flight training of Army aviators.

(b) The Augusta Low Frequency Range is considered essential to the safety of all present approaches to Bush Field.

(c) Red 16 helps to reduce the traffic congestion in the Augusta area.

The notice did not propose to decommission the Augusta radio range. Revocation of this segment of Red 16 will not prohibit the Army Instrument School from utilizing the radio range for training. The simulation of a low frequency airway between range stations can be used for training purposes.

In view of the foregoing, the Federal Aviation Agency is revoking the segments of Red 16 and their associated control areas from Tallahassee to Albany and from Augusta to Florence and the following reporting points: Albany, Ga., Augusta, Ga., and Columbia, S.C., radio range stations. The reporting point based on Macon radio range was revoked in Airspace Docket No. 59-WA-409 (25 F.R. 1400).

No other adverse comments were received regarding the proposed amendments.

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of the rules herein adopted, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented.

In consideration of the foregoing, and pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (24 F.R. 4530), §§ 600.216 (24 F.R. 10496), 601.216 (24 F.R. 10544) and 601.4216 (24 F.R. 10594, 25 F.R. 1400) are amended to read:

§ 600.216 Red Federal airway No. 16 (Florence, S.C., to Raleigh, N.C.).

From the Florence, S.C., RR via the Lumberton, N.C., RBN; the INT of a line bearing 021° True from the Lumberton RBN and a line bearing 191° True from the Raleigh, N.C., RR; to the Raleigh RR.

§ 601.216 Red Federal airway No. 16 control areas (Florence, S.C., to Raleigh, N.C.).

All of Red Federal airway No. 16.

§ 601.4216 Red Federal airway No. 16 (Florence, S.C., to Raleigh, N.C.).

Lumberton, N.C., RBN.

This amendment shall become effective 0001 e.s.t., July 28, 1960.

PART 601—DESIGNATION OF THE CONTINENTAL CONTROL AREA, CONTROL AREAS, CONTROL ZONES, REPORTING POINTS, AND POSITIVE CONTROL ROUTE SEGMENTS

Modification of Control Zone

On December 29, 1959, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (24 F.R. 10918) stating that the Federal Aviation Agency was considering an amendment to § 601.2324 of the regulations of the Administrator which would modify the New Bern, N.C., control zone.

As stated in the notice, the New Bern control zone is presently designated within a 6-mile radius of the Simmons-Nott airport and within 2 miles either side of a line bearing 265° True extending from the New Bern non-directional radio beacon to a point 10 miles west of the radio beacon, excluding the portion which overlaps Cherry Point Restricted Area (R-123), and excluding the airspace above 5,500 feet MSL daily from sunset to sunrise. The instrument approach procedure based on the 265° True bearing has been revoked. The present ADF and VOR instrument approach procedures are based on the 221° True radial of the VOR and the 221° True bearing from the New Bern radio beacon. The control zone radius is being reduced to a 5-mile radius of the airport, the extension to the west is being revoked, and an extension to the southwest is being designated from the VOR to a point 12 miles southwest, 2 miles either side of the 221° radial of the New Bern VOR. The extension to the southwest will protect aircraft making authorized instrument approaches in their descent below 1,000 feet above the airport surface. Additionally, although the notice stated the portion of this control zone which overlaps Restricted Area R-123 should be excluded, a 5-mile radius control zone of Simmons-Nott airport will not overlap Restricted Area R-123.

The Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association objected to the proposal because the need for flight of aircraft at an altitude below 1,000 feet above ground at a distance beyond 5 miles from the field is not established in the proposal and that a control zone of such size is not in accordance with the Administrator's circular letter of October 10, 1956. However, the Administrator's letter of October 10 states that the basic circular area for control zones, normally 5 miles, is then modified by extending the control zone 2 miles on either side of the authorized low approach path out to a point where aircraft are authorized to descend below 1,000 feet above the terrain and that such extensions are necessary for each authorized low approach procedure established for the airport. At Simmons-Nott airport aircraft are authorized to descend to an altitude of 482 feet above the terrain after completion of the procedure turn which is more than 5 miles from the VOR and radio beacon. Therefore, the Federal Aviation Agency is re-designating the New Bern control zone within 5 miles radius of the geographical center of the airport (latitude 35°04'20" N., longitude 77°02'35" W.), and within 2 miles either side of the 221° True radial of the New Bern VOR, extending from the VOR to a point 12 miles southwest, excluding the airspace that lies within the Cherry Point, N.C., Restricted Area R-125 during the Restricted Area's time of designation and between the designated altitudes.

No other adverse comments were received regarding the proposed amendment.

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of the rule herein adopted, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented.

The substance of the proposed amendment having been published, therefore, pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (24 F.R. 4530) and for the reasons set forth in the notice, § 601.2324 (24 F.R. 10587) is amended to read:

§ 601.2324 New Bern, N.C., control zone.

Within a 5-mile radius of the geographical center of the Simmons-Nott airport (latitude 35°04'20" N., longitude 77°02'35" W.) and within 2 miles either side of the 221° T radial of the New Bern, N.C., VOR extending from the VOR to a point 12 miles southwest. The portion of the control zone which lies within the geographic limits of, and between the designated altitudes of, the Cherry Point Restricted Area (R-125) is excluded during the Restricted Area's time of designation.

This amendment shall become effective 0001 e.s.t. July 28, 1960.

AUTHORITY: §§ 5-1.000 to 5-1.709 issued under sec. 205(c), 63 Stat. 390; 40 U.S.C. 486(c).

§ 5-1.000 Scope of part.

This part describes the method by which the General Services Administration implements and supplements the Federal Procurement Regulations, and contains procedures which implement and supplement Part 1-1 of the Federal Procurement Regulations.

Subpart 5-1.1—Introduction

§ 5-1.100 Scope of subpart.

This subpart establishes Chapter 5 of the Federal Procurement Regulations System, and states its relationship to the Federal Procurement Regulations (FPR), and to other procurement instructions governing GSA operations.

§ 5-1.101 Establishment of GSA-wide procurement policies and procedures.

GSA-wide procurement policies and procedures (Chapter 5) are prescribed by the Administrator of General Services and are established to provide, for all General Services Administration (GSA) activities, uniform policies and procedures applicable to procurement of personal property and nonpersonal services (including construction).

§ 5-1.102 Relationship of Chapter 5 to the FPR and other procurement instructions.

(a) Chapter 5 implements and supplements the FPR. Material published in the FPR, which has Government-wide applicability, becomes effective throughout GSA upon the effective date of the particular FPR material. Such material generally will not be repeated, paraphrased, or otherwise restated in Chapter 5.

(b) Implementing material is that which expands upon related FPR material. Supplementing material is that for which there is no counterpart in the FPR.

(c) Material in Chapter 5 may supersede the FPR, as when a deviation is authorized, but only when the deviation is explicitly referenced to the FPR. Where Chapter 5 contains no material implementing the FPR, the FPR will govern.

(d) Procurement instructions necessary to implement or supplement the FPR and Chapter 5 will be issued by the heads of the services and staff offices of GSA and their counterparts in the regional offices in appropriate chapters. These, together with the FPR and Chapter 5, constitute the General Services Administration Procurement Regulations (GSPR).

§ 5-1.103 Applicability.

Chapter 5 applies to all purchases and contracts made by the General Services Administration for the procurement of personal property and nonpersonal services (including construction). Unless otherwise specified, Chapter 5 applies to purchases and contracts within and outside the United States.

§ 5-1.104 Method of issuance.

(a) All Chapter 5 material deemed necessary for business concerns and others interested to understand basic and significant GSA procurement policies and procedures will be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Other related material also may be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER when its inclusion will provide a logical, comprehensive statement of GSA procurement policies and procedures.

(b) The Chapter 5 material published in the FEDERAL REGISTER will be published in cumulative form in Chapter 5 of Title 41 of the Code of Federal Regulations. The FEDERAL REGISTER and Title 41 of the Code of Federal Regulations may be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C.

§ 5-1.105 Exclusions.

(a) Certain GSA procurement policies and procedures which come within the scope of this Chapter 5 nevertheless may be excluded therefrom when there is a justification therefor. These exclusions may include the following categories:

(1) Subject matter which bears a security classification.

(2) Policies or procedures which are expected to be effective for a period of less than six months.

(3) Policies or procedures which are effective on an experimental basis for a reasonable period.

(4) Policies and procedures pertaining to other functions of GSA as well as to procurement functions and there is need to make the issuance available simultaneously to all GSA employees concerned.

(5) Speed of issuance is essential, numerous changes are required in Chapter 5, and all necessary changes cannot be made promptly.

(b) Procurement procedures and instructions issued in other than the FPR System format under (a) (4) and (5), above, will be codified into Chapter 5 at the earliest practicable date, but in any event not later than six months from date of issuance.

§ 5–1.106 Arrangement.

§ 5–1.106–1 General plan.

Chapter 5 is divided into parts, subparts, sections, subsections, and further subdivisions as necessary.

§ 5–1.106–2 Numbering.

(a) Generally, the numbering system used in Chapter 5 conforms to that of the FPR (see § 1–1.007–2). Thus, a particular procurement policy or procedure is identified by the same number in both the FPR and Chapter 5 except that the first digit of the number is either 1 (FPR) or 5.

(b) Where Chapter 5 implements a part, subpart, section, or subsection of the FPR, the implementing part, subpart, section or subsection of Chapter 5 will be numbered (and captioned) to correspond to the FPR part, subpart, section, or subsection.

(c) Where Chapter 5 supplements the FPR and thus deals with subject matter not contained in the FPR, the numbers in the group 50 through 69 will be assigned to the respective supplementing parts, subparts, or sections.

(d) Where the subject matter contained in the part, subpart, section, or subsection of the FPR requires no implementation, Chapter 5 will contain no corresponding part, subpart, section, or subsection. Thus, there may be gaps in the Chapter 5 series of part, subpart, section, or subsection numbers; in such cases, reference must be made to the FPR for policy and procedure applicable throughout GSA.

§ 5–1.106–3 Cross references.

(a) Within Chapter 5, cross references to the FPR will be made in the same manner as used within the FPR. Illustrations of cross references to the FPR are:

(1) Part 1–3.
(2) Subpart 1–3.1.
(3) § 1–3.413–5.

(b) Within Chapter 5, cross references to parts, subparts, and sections of Chapter 5 will be made in a manner generally similar to that used in making cross references to the FPR. For example, this paragraph would be referenced as "§ 5–1.106–3(b)."

Subpart 5–1.6—Debarred and Ineligible Bidders

§ 5–1.601 Purpose.

This subpart prescribes the establishment, use, and maintenance of the GSA Debarred Bidders List.

§ 5–1.602 Establishment and maintenance of a list of firms or individuals debarred or ineligible.

(a) GSA shall establish and maintain a GSA Debarred Bidders List of firms or individuals (hereafter referred to in this subpart as "persons") debarred or ineligible.

§ 5–1.603 Bases for debarment and ineligible list entry.

Persons included in any of the categories listed in § 1–1.603 and those included within the purview of § 1–1.608 shall be named on the GSA Debarred Bidders List.

§ 5–1.604 Treatment to be accorded firms or individuals in debarred or ineligible status.

(a) Total restrictions. Determination regarding public interest may be made by the appropriate Commissioner.

(b) Ineligibility restrictions of the Walsh-Healey Act. In addition to the restriction on awarding contracts, bids shall not be solicited from a person in any amount estimated to exceed $10,000 for those materials, supplies, articles, or equipment with respect to which such person has been found by the Secretary of Labor to be ineligible to be awarded a contract as provided in § 1–1.603(f).

§ 5–1.606 Agency procedure.

The GSA procedure for debarment is as follows:

(a) Statutory debarment and ineligibility. All persons within the categories specified in § 1–1.603 (a), (b), (c), (e), and (f), shall be placed on the GSA Debarred Bidders List.

(b) Administrative debarment. Persons may be debarred, in accordance with the procedures prescribed in this § 5–1.606(b), for the causes and under the conditions specified in §§ 1–1.605 and 1–1.608.

(1) Determination to debar. The Commissioner of the service primarily concerned, after consultation with the Office of General Counsel and the Compliance Division, shall determine whether the facts are sufficient to warrant debarment action.

(2) Institution of debarment proceedings. If the Commissioner determines to institute debarment proceedings, he shall send a letter of intent to debar by registered mail or certified mail (return receipt requested) to the person concerned summarizing the facts on which the debarment action is predicated, specifying a reasonable and definite period for the proposed debarment, and advising that unless a request for a hearing is received within 15 days from the date of receipt of the letter of intent to debar, the debarment will become effective when the 15-day period has elapsed. The heads of GSA services and staff offices and the Board of Review shall be notified of the intent to debar.

(3) Hearings. Hearings shall be conducted by the Board of Review. An opportunity shall be afforded to the person to appear, with witnesses and counsel, to present facts or circumstances showing cause why such person should not be debarred. If the person elects not to appear, he must so advise the Board of Review which, thereafter, will make its decision based on the facts on record and such additional evidence as is furnished by the parties involved.

(i) The Board of Review shall give notice of the date of the hearing to the appropriate Commissioner and to the Office of General Counsel.

(ii) All hearings requested hereunder shall be held by the Board of Review within 30 days from the receipt of the request for a hearing, unless the Board of Review considers that additional time should be granted the person against whom the proceedings have been instituted.

(iii) If a person who requested a hearing is determined by the Board of Review to be responsible for any unreasonable delay in disposing of the matter, the Board shall authorize the Commissioner instituting the proceedings to place such person on the GSA Debarred Bidders List pending final action by the Board.

(iv) After consideration of the facts, the Chairman, Board of Review shall notify the person concerned of the decision of the Board of Review.

(4) Debarment action. A debarment action over the signature of a GSA Commissioner or the Chairman of the Board of Review shall constitute a debarment by GSA.

(5) Debarment by other agencies. The Compliance Division shall review the basis for administrative debarments made by other Federal agencies and, if warranted, recommend debarment action to the appropriate Commissioner. If such recommendation is accepted by the Commissioner after consultation with the Office of General Counsel, action to debar will be initiated. Notice of GSA debarment or intent to debar shall be sent by the Commissioner to the person concerned. A notice of intent to debar is not required if an opportunity to be heard previously has been furnished the debarred person by the Federal agency which took the original debarment action.

(6) Reconsideration. A person who has been debarred in accordance with the procedure prescribed in this § 5–1.606(b) may request reconsideration at any time subsequent to 90 days after the date of debarment. Reconsideration may be permitted only upon allegations that substantial new evidence has been discovered which was not previously presented, a corporate reorganization has been completed whereby control has been placed in the hands of officials not involved in the action resulting in the debarment, or similar cogent reasons.

Subpart 5–1.7—Small Business Concerns

§ 5–1.709 SBA Certificates of Competency.

(a) In accordance with § 1–1.310–8, the Small Business Administration (SBA) shall be notified and given an opportunity to certify the competency, as to capacity and credit, of a small business concern which has submitted an otherwise acceptable bid but which has been determined by the contracting officer not to be responsible as to capacity and credit. "Otherwise acceptable bid" means a bid that is responsive to the invitation for bids or request for offers in all respects, including, for example, the submission of samples that have been evaluated and found to meet the stated requirements. "Capacity" means the overall ability of a prospective small business contractor to meet quality, quantity, and time requirements of a proposed contract and includes ability to perform, organization, experience, technical knowledge, skills, "know-how", technical equipment, and facilities.

(b) The procedure in (1), above, is not mandatory under the circumstances stated in § 1–1.709(c). It does not apply where the contracting officer has found that a small business concern is not a responsible bidder for a reason other than lack of capacity or credit. Thus, it does not apply where a concern does not satisfy the standards of responsibility in § 1–1.310–5(a) (1), (5), (6), and (7). Where the contracting officer determines that a concern does not meet the requirements of § 1–1.310–5(a)(5) as to a satisfactory record of performance, the above procedure is mandatory only if the unsatisfactory record of performance was due solely to inadequate capacity or credit. It is not mandatory where it is clearly established that the unsatisfactory record of performance was not due to lack of capacity, as defined in (1), above, but as a result of the contractor's willful failure, arising out of sharp practices, lack of business ethics and integrity and the like, to exercise the resources available to him for the performance of prior contracts. Advice of counsel shall be obtained in such cases.

(c) Contracting officers shall accept SBA certificates of competency as conclusive as to a prospective contractor's responsibility as to capacity and credit. However, if the contracting officer has substantial doubts as to the firm's ability to perform, he shall, prior to award, refer the matter to higher authority in accordance with the procedures of the Service concerned. In such cases SBA may be requested to consider withdrawal of the certificate.

AUTHORITY: §§ 5–2.202 to 5–2.406–4 issued under sec. 205(c), 63 Stat. 390; 40 U.S.C. 486(c).

Subpart 5–2.2—Solicitation of Bids

§ 5–2.202 Miscellaneous rules for solicitation of bids.

§ 5–2.202–50 Postponement of bid openings.

(a) Whenever such action is determined by the contracting officer to be in the best interest of the Government, bid openings may be postponed by issuance and distribution to all prospective bidders of an amendment (see § 1–2.207) to the invitation for bids. Notices of postponement shall be issued by mail or telegraph as early as possible, but in any event prior to the time specified for the opening of bids.

(b) Bid openings shall be postponed when an important segment of prospective bidders requests additional time for filing their bids, or the contracting officer is on notice, or has reason to believe, that the specified opening date is not appropriate or is not conducive to the maximum practicable competition.

(c) Bid openings may be postponed, if determined by the contracting officer to be practicable and in the best interests of the Government, when the contracting officer has reason to believe that the bids of an important segment of bidders have been delayed in the mails for causes beyond their control, and without fault or negligence of the bidders concerned, such as, but not limited to, flood, fire, accident, heavy snow, or strikes.

Subpart 5–2.3—Submission of Bids

§ 5–2.303 Late bids.

§ 5–2.303–1 General.

(a) Envelopes, or other outer covering, containing identified bids shall be timestamped (indicating the place, date, and time of receipt) upon receipt, either in a mail room or other receiving point at the address specified in the invitation.

(b) If a late bid is opened accidentally, or to ascertain the name of the bidder or other identifying information, it shall be resealed immediately and no bid information contained therein shall be disclosed.

§ 5–2.303–2 Consideration for award.

When properly addressed bids are received on time but, through error on the part of the Government, are not opened with other bids in response to the same invitation, such mishandled bids shall be considered, provided an irrevocable award has not been made. If award has been made prior to locating the mishandled bids, and the maker of one such bid otherwise would be entitled to award, every effort shall be made to secure consent for cancellation of the award by presenting a full explanation to the bidder who received the award. If the bidder who received the award refuses to consent to cancellation, a full explanation of the circumstances must be furnished all those bidders whose mishandled bids would have been more advantageous to the Government than the accepted bids. Complete details of each such case shall be furnished to the Central Office, and copy thereof retained in the related contract file.

§ 5–2.303–7 Disposition of late bids.

A late bid received after award shall be returned unopened to the bidder. A late bid returned to the bidder shall be accompanied by a statement from the contracting officer that the bid was not considered because of the time of its receipt. If a late bid was opened accidentally, or to ascertain the name of the bidder or other identifying information, an appropriate explanation shall be included in the statement to the bidder.

Subpart 5–2.4—Opening of Bids and Award of Contract

§ 5–2.406 Mistakes in bids.

§ 5–2.406–3 Other mistakes disclosed before award.

(a) Procedures. (1) Upon receipt from a bidder of evidence in support of an alleged or suspected mistake in bid, the contracting officer shall prepare in writing an appropriate findings of fact concerning the occurrence and cause of the alleged mistake, a determination of the validity of the supporting evidence of the mistake, and a recommendation that:

(i) The bid be considered for award in the form submitted.

(ii) The bidder be authorized to withdraw the bid.

(iii) The bidder be authorized to modify the bid.

(2) The findings and recommendation shall be reviewed and approved or disapproved by either the General Counsel or an Associate or Assistant General Counsel.

§ 5–2.406–4 Disclosure of mistakes after award.

(a) Authority for administrative action. (1) By Decision No. B–130238, dated February 28, 1957, the Comptroller General of the United States authorized GSA to take the following administrative action with respect to mistakes in bid alleged after an award of contract:

(i) Contracts not in excess of $500 may be rescinded.

(ii) Contracts, irrespective of amount, may be reformed when a resultant increase in price does not exceed $500 and the reformed contract price does not exceed that of the next lowest acceptable bid or proposal under the original invitation for bids or solicitation of offers.

(2) Administrative action under the above authority does not deprive the Comptroller General of his statutory right to question the correctness of any such administrative determination or action in the audit of accounts, nor does it deprive any contractor of his right to have the matter determined by the Comptroller General, should the contractor so request.

(b) Procedures. (1) In each case where rescission or reformation of a contract is proposed under the authority of this § 5–2.406–4, the contracting officer shall first prepare in writing an appropriate findings of fact and determination regarding the alleged mistake and the relief to be granted, if any. The findings must state that the relief action recommended is either based on a mutual mistake of the contractor and the contracting officer, or that the unilateral mistake made by the contractor in its bid was so apparent as to have charged the contracting officer with notice of the probability of the mistake. The determination should contain a recommendation that either the contract price be increased in an amount determined to be appropriate by the contracting officer (but not to exceed the price offered by the next lowest responsible bidder) or that the contract be rescinded.

(2) The findings and recommendation shall be reviewed and approved or disapproved by either the General Counsel or an Associate or Assistant General Counsel.

AUTHORITY: §§ 5–3.450 to 5–3.650 issued under sec. 205(c), 63 Stat. 390; 40 U.S.C. 486(c).

Subpart 5–3.4—Types of Contracts

§ 5.3.450 Oral commitments—Defense Materials Service.

The Defense Materials Service may make oral commitments for the procurement of rubber and cordage fibers and such commitments must be confirmed on the approved GSA forms for the procurement of these commodities.

Subpart 5–3.6—Small Purchases

§ 5–3.602 Policy.

Where it is found that small purchases of special items not stocked by the Federal Supply Service or the GSA stockroom can be handled more economically at points of use, authority to make such purchases should be delegated to responsible employees of the requisitioning service or staff office. The requirements for procurement from mandatory sources of supply shall be complied with.

§ 5–3.603 Competition.

§ 5–3.603–1 Solicitation.

(a) Quotations may be solicited by use of written requests for quotations, telegram, telephone, or personal contact, whichever is considered the most appropriate for the particular transaction. It is the responsibility of the purchasing officer to determine in each instance the type of solicitation and quotation that is in the best interests of the Government.

(b) When written quotations are solicited for small purchases ($2500 or less), Standard Form 18 shall be used (see Subpart 1–16.2). It is not necessary to furnish prospective suppliers a copy to be retained unless requested by a supplier or it is known that a copy is desired. When Standard Form 18 is used by a purchasing activity, it constitutes merely a request for price quotations and is not an offer to purchase. Therefore, issuance by the Government of a purchase order pursuant to price quotations received on Standard Form 18 does not constitute acceptance but, instead, is a new offer to be accepted or rejected by the one quoting.

(c) When it is desirable to request quotations from outside the local trade area and time does not permit the use of written solicitations, telegraphic solicitation may be used. Telegraphic solicitation shall not be used to solicit prices from local suppliers nor shall it be used if written requests for quotations will suffice.

(d) While there are instances where quotations should be solicited from additional sources, soliciting quotations from 2 to 4 suppliers ordinarily is sufficient although even this requirement may be reduced on full consideration of the factors set forth in § 1–3.603–1(c). Care should be taken to prevent administrative costs from being disproportionate to the amount of the purchase. The number of quotations obtained and considered or the number of sources of supply utilized when making small purchases will depend to a large extent on what knowledge the purchasing officer has of the current availability and price of the desired item in commercial markets. Such information may be available from past experience with the item or may require development.

§ 5–3.603–2 Data to support small purchases.

When other than the lowest quotation is used as the basis for the purchase, the reason(s) for rejecting the lower quotation shall be entered on the quotation form concerned.

§ 5–3.604 Imprest funds (petty cash) method.

§ 5–3.604–1 General.

(a) Imprest funds shall be utilized to the fullest extent for all authorized small purchases when this method results in savings to the General Services Administration. It is essential that authority to make small purchases be at the lowest practicable operating level.

(b) Purchases made from imprest funds shall follow the generally accepted policy of purchasing satisfactory merchandise at fair prices without favoritism to any vendor. The cost of the item to be purchased, the commodity, and the quantity involved will generally govern the action to be taken. If a special item costing only a few dollars is required, a minimum amount of time and expense should be devoted to consummating the transaction. However, as a general rule purchases should be made from firms offering the best prices.

§ 5–3.604–6 Procurement and payment.

Purchases through use of imprest funds shall be accomplished by whichever of the following methods is determined to be most practical:

(a) Purchases by imprest fund cashiers. Imprest fund cashiers will make small purchases when so requested by an authorized ordering employee. In such cases the authorized ordering employee, or his designated agent, shall furnish the cashier with necessary information, such as unit, quantity, description, and delivery requirements. The cashier will make all necessary arrangements to consummate the purchase, including the arrangements for delivery.

(b) Purchases by ordering employees. Purchases by authorized ordering employees may be made either with advances of cash or with their own funds.

(c) Payment when Standard Form 44 is used. When small purchases are made locally on Standard Form 44, arrangement should be made where feasible to have an imprest fund cashier make payments therefor from his fund, within established limitations. It is more economical for the Government to pay by cash than to schedule the standard form to the disbursing officer and to issue a Government check, as well as being generally more acceptable to the vendors.

(d) Receipts. Authorized ordering employees, or their designated agents, shall comply with the receipt requirements on imprest fund transactions as prescribed herein. Each purchase made should be supported by an original bill, sales slip, cash register ticket, invoice, et cetera, of the dealer or by Standard Form 1165, or equivalent receipt form, itemizing the articles or services purchased and amount thereof.

§ 5–3.605 Order-Invoice-Voucher.

§ 5–3.605–1 Standard Form 44.

(a) Authorization for use of form. All responsible employees of the services and staff offices who have need therefor shall be authorized to make small purchases through the use of Standard Form 44 in accordance with this § 5–3.605–1, and subject to such limitations as may be determined necessary. It is essential that such authority be delegated to the lowest practicable operating level and that this method of purchase be used whenever it will accomplish the purchase of small requirements in the simplest and least expensive manner.

§ 5–3.606 Blanket purchase arrangements.

§ 5–3.606–1 General.

(a) Blanket purchase orders are a means of establishing "charge accounts" with qualified sources of supply to cover anticipated small requirements of readily available supplies or services of the same general category. Substantial savings can be realized by reducing or eliminating instances where numerous individual purchase orders are issued to the same local suppliers for similar small requirements during relatively short periods of time. Related arrangements for periodic billing also reduces the cost of processing payments.

§ 5–3.606–3 Establishment of account.

(a) Blanket purchase orders shall be established for a specific period of time (usually one month) during which individual purchases may be made against them. The using office should be requested to make specific arrangements with the purchasing activity concerning renewal orders. Blanket purchase orders shall not exceed $2,500 and, as a general rule, individual purchases made against such orders should not exceed $100. Users of blanket purchase orders shall also be subject to all applicable administrative instructions issued by the services and staff offices, such as restrictions on the dollar amounts for single purchases, or otherwise.

(b) The advantages both to the supplier and to the Government should be explained to the supplier. The supplier should be advised that the arrangement does not obligate the Government to buy.

(c) To the extent practicable, blanket purchase orders for like items shall be equitably distributed over a period of time among different suppliers.

§ 5–3.606–4 Documentation.

(a) After negotiations have been completed, blanket purchase orders normally shall be documented on GSA Form 300, Purchase Order. Each blanket purchase order shall contain appropriate provisions relating to the following:

(1) Authorization to the supplier to furnish the supplies or services described in general terms in the order when called for by authorized person(s) listed therein during the period specified. Blanket purchase orders may be limited to specified items, commodity groups or classes, or the scope of the blanket purchase order may be unlimited for all items that the supplier is in a position to furnish.

(2) The aggregate amount authorized in any single blanket purchase order shall not exceed $2,500. As a general rule individual calls against such orders shall not exceed $100.

(3) The Government will be obligated only to the extent of the call orders actually made against the blanket purchase order by authorized persons.

(4) Suppliers shall be required to submit an invoice, no more frequently than monthly. The original of each delivery ticket shall accompany the invoice.

(5) When feasible, the blanket purchase order should specify the place(s) to which deliveries are to be made. (Usually the order will provide for delivery to the requiring activity.)

(6) The order should state, insofar as practicable, the discount terms which will apply to orders placed against the blanket purchase order.

(b) Only the persons whose names are listed in the blanket purchase order shall be permitted to request deliveries. Delivery (call) orders normally shall be made orally, either by telephone or in person. Procurement under blanket purchase orders may not be effected if the requirements are available from regular supply channels. Therefore, prior to placing calls against the blanket purchase order, each requirement shall be screened for availability from mandatory sources of supply. Necessary controls shall be maintained by the person placing call orders under the blanket purchase order to insure that the monetary limitation stated thereon is not exceeded. After the necessary screening of the requirements has been accomplished, the authorized person will place the call. The person placing the call will identify himself to the vendor and, after determining that the required supplies or services can be furnished, will establish agreement with the vendor as to the unit price and total amount and the time of delivery. The blanket purchase order number and requisition number, if any, should be specified each time a delivery is requested.

§ 5–3.650 Local term contracts.

(a) Local term contracts should be established whenever practical in order to eliminate the need for obtaining and considering individual price quotations for each small requirement purchased repetitively from the same source.

(b) The establishment of local term contracts usually will be found advantageous under the following circumstances:

(1) When day-to-day requirements are continuing and recurring.

(2) When total requirements can only be estimated and it is expedient and economical to have a source of supply and price determined in advance of the individual instances of actual need.

(3) When this method best meets the needs for providing using offices with a ready means of supply which eliminates the delay and administrative expense involved incident to making separate contracts.

(c) Examples of items which can often be advantageously covered by local term contracts are repair parts for specific equipment or items of plumbing, hardware, or electrical supplies recurrently needed but not available from GSA stores. A logical price basis for such a contract would be the contractor's price lists with established discounts. Provisions shall be made in the term contracts for consolidated billing whenever practicable.

Subpart 5–12.50—Nondiscrimination In Employment

§ 5–12.5001 General.

(a) Executive Order 10479, August 13, 1953 (3 CFR), established a program to strengthen the practices and procedures of contracting agencies relating to the nondiscrimination provision in Government contracts. It directed that the head of each contracting agency shall be primarily responsible for obtaining compliance by any contractor or subcontractor with the nondiscrimination provision.

§ 5–12.5002 Text of nondiscrimination provision.

The nondiscrimination provision, recommended by the President's Committee on Government Contracts and approved by the President in Executive Order 10557, September 3, 1954, is set forth in §§ 1–7.101–18 and 1–16.404–1(b).

§ 5–12.5003 Exceptions to required use of nondiscrimination provision.

The requirement for the use of the provision does not apply to the following:

(a) Contracts and subcontracts which do not involve the employment of persons in the performance of work;

(b) Contracts and subcontracts to be performed outside the United States where no recruitment of workers within the limits of the United States is involved;

(c) Orders issued on Standard Form 44, Purchase Order-Invoice-Voucher; and

(d) Contracts and subcontracts to meet other special requirements or emergencies, if recommended by the President's Committee on Government Contracts.

§ 5–12.5004 Use and text of modified form of nondiscrimination provision.

A modified form of the nondiscrimination provision authorized by the Committee (20 F.R. 352), in which the requirement to post the nondiscrimination notice and reference to subcontractors are eliminated, shall be used in all purchase orders which do not exceed $5,000, except those on Standard Form 44, Purchase Order-Invoice-Voucher, as follows:

NONDISCRIMINATION IN EMPLOYMENT

In connection with the performance of work under this contract, the contractor agrees not to discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because of race, religion, color, or national origin. The aforesaid provision shall include, but not be limited to, the following: employment, upgrading, demotion, or transfer; recruitment or recruitment advertising; layoff or termination; rates of pay or other forms of compensation; and selection for training, including apprenticeship.

§ 5–12.5005 Exemption from requirement to post nondiscrimination notice.

By terms of "Exemptions Authorized for Purchase Orders and Contracts Pursuant to Executive Orders Nos. 10479 and 10557" issued by the Committee (20 F.R. 352), the Administrator is authorized to exempt contracts which do not exceed $5,000 from the requirement for posting the notice, if he determines that it would be impracticable to require such posting.

§ 5–12.5006 Action by contracting officer.

§ 5–12.5006–1 Award of contracts.

In determining the responsibility of a prospective contractor, the contracting officer shall consider whether the prospective contractor will be able to, and will, conform to the requirements of the standard nondiscrimination provision. The contracting officer shall make appropriate inquiry concerning the prospective contractor's employment policy and practices and shall request an investigation of any adverse information regarding such policy and practices coming to his knowledge as a result of Government contracts previously or currently held by the prospective contractor, or from other sources. The contracting officer shall, in doubtful cases, endeavor by education, conciliation, mediation, or persuasion to induce the prospective contractor to undertake full compliance, but shall deny an award of the contract on the ground that the prospective contractor is not a responsible bidder or offeror if he is satisfied that the prospective contractor cannot or will not comply with the standard nondiscrimination provision. Contracts may thereafter be awarded to a prospective contractor denied an award hereunder upon receipt of satisfactory evidence that corrective action has been taken.

§ 5–12.5006–2 Award in exceptional cases.

When it is determined by the Administrator of General Services to be in the best interest of the Government, an exception may be made with respect to a particular procurement action which would otherwise fall within the prohibitions of § 5–12.5006–1.

§ 5–12.5006–3 Letter to contractors receiving awards.

With each notice of award of contract containing the standard nondiscrimination provision, the contracting officer shall transmit to the contractor a letter calling attention to the contractor's obligations under the nondiscrimination provision and the informational material available to the contractor. GSA Form 1572 is prescribed for this purpose. The provisions of this § 5–12.5006–3 do not apply in connection with the issuance of Government Bills of Lading.

§ 5–12.5006–4 Notification of award determinations.

Contracting officers shall immediately notify the Nondiscrimination Compliance Officer, who shall in turn inform the President's Committee on Government Contracts, of the denial of an award based on discriminatory employment practices or the determination to make or resume awards to a contractor who was previously denied an award because of discriminatory employment practices and who has taken acceptable corrective action.

§ 5–12.5006–5 Contract cancellation and debarment.

When there is clear and convincing evidence of noncompliance by a contractor with the standard nondiscrimination provision and efforts to secure compliance through education, persuasion, mediation, and conciliation fail to accomplish acceptable results, any contract so breeched by the contractor may be canceled and debarment action may be invoked against the contractor for unsatisfactory performance of the contract. (See Subpart 1–1.6.) Debarment for violation of the nondiscrimination provision shall be removed by the Administrator of General Services upon receipt of satisfactory evidence that corrective action has been taken.

This part prescribes policy and procedure with respect to the use of bonds and insurance requirements in connection with the procurement of property and nonpersonal services (including construction).

Subpart 5–50.1—Approval of Bonds and Corporate Sureties

(a) Any corporate surety on the current Treasury list of acceptable sureties is acceptable to the General Services Administration within the limits of such approval, and no other standard will be used as to the qualification of such surety.

Subpart 5–51.2—Progress Payments

5–51.204 Requirement for use of progress payments.
5–51.205 Provision for invitations for bids or requests for proposals.
5–51.206 Progress payment clause for use in contracts.

AUTHORITY: §§ 5–51.101 to 5–51.206 issued under sec. 205(c), 63 Stat. 390; 40 U.S.C. 486(c).

Subpart 5–51.1—Partial Payments

§ 5–51.101 Definition.

"Partial payment" means a payment made for invoiced supplies delivered and accepted, or services rendered and approved, where such supplies or services are only a part of the total contract requirement.

§ 5–51.102 Policy.

It shall be the policy of General Services Administration to make maximum practical use of partial payments as a financial aid to business concerns in participating in Government procurement.

§ 5–51.103 Use of partial payments.

Partial payments shall be made as provided in § 1–7.101–7 and applicable General Services Administration procedures and forms. A liberal policy shall be adopted in making partial payments. This should minimize the need for contractors to request progress payments.

Subpart 5–51.2—Progress Payments

§ 5–51.200 Scope of subpart.

This subpart prescribes basic policies and procedures in providing contract financing in the form of progress payments.

§ 5–51.201 Definition.

"Progress payment" means a payment made from time to time during the performance of a contract on the basis of costs to the contractor, or percentage of completion, or particular stage of completion, in connection with which the Government takes title to property acquired and work performed under the contract.

§ 5–51.202 Policy.

To the maximum practicable extent, the need for progress payments shall not be treated as a handicap in awarding contracts to concerns which qualify as responsible suppliers. A prospective contractor deemed reliable, competent, and otherwise responsible will not be regarded as any less responsible because of the need for progress payments. Accordingly, for the purpose of determining financial ability to carry out a contract, the availability of progress payments will be considered.

§ 5–51.203 Applicability.

The policies and procedures of this subpart are applicable only to fixed-price contracts for domestically produced supplies and nonpersonal services. They do not apply to construction contracts, or to contracts for engineering, architectural, or similar services related to construction. Progress payments in construction contracts are provided for in clauses of the standard forms prescribed in Subpart 1–16.4.

§ 5–51.204 Requirement for use of progress payments.

(a) The contracting officer shall include in the invitation for bids or request for proposals the provision set forth in § 5–51.206, unless he determines that progress payments would be impractical or not reasonably necessary. Ordinarily, it shall be considered practical or reasonably necessary to make progress payments unless one or more of the following factors are present:

(1) The procurement is not expected to result in a contract of $10,000 or more.

(2) The contracting officer determines that the time between starting performance (usually immediately following the date of award) and delivery of the first end items is of such short duration (90 days or less) as to obviate the need for progress payments.

(3) The contract provides for the placing of orders and the making of payments by more than one office.

(b) In unusual conditions, progress payments may be considered practical or reasonably necessary even though one or more of the exceptions of (a) (1), (2), or (3), above, may be applicable.

§ 5–51.205 Provision for invitations for bids or requests for proposals.

The following provision shall be included in the invitation for bids or request for proposals under the circumstances set forth in § 5–51.204:

AVAILABILITY OF PROGRESS PAYMENTS

The Government will make provision for progress payments in any contract resulting from this invitation for bids (or request for proposals) by including an appropriate clause in the contract if:

(a) The period of time between starting performance and delivery of the first end items will exceed 6 months; or

Contract performance is likely to involve expenditures prior to delivery of the first end items, having a material impact on the contractor's working funds, or, in the case of progress payments first requested subsequent to award, involves expenditures having such impact; and

(b) The bidder (offeror) or contractor makes a written request for progress payments and is found eligible for such payments under applicable regulations.

The need for progress payments on the foregoing basis will not be considered a handicap or an adverse factor in awarding contracts.

If a bidder (offeror) desires progress payments, and accompanies his bid (offer) with a written request therefor, the bidder (offeror) shall also check the appropriate box below:

☐ Progress payments are desired but bid (offer) is not conditioned on receiving progress payments.

☐ Bid (offer) is conditioned on receiving progress payments.

(NOTES: 1. If bid (offer) is conditioned on the availability of progress payments and bidder (offeror) is found ineligible for progress payments, the bid (offer) will be rejected. 2. Title 47—TELECOMMUNICATION

Chapter I—Federal Communications Commission

[FCC 60-700]

PART 4—EXPERIMENTAL, AUXILIARY, AND SPECIAL BROADCAST SERVICES

Puerto Rico and Virgin Islands

In the matter of amendment of § 4.402 of the Commission rules and regulations concerning frequencies available to remote pickup broadcast stations in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

At a session of the Federal Communications Commission held at its offices in Washington, D.C., on the 15th day of June 1960:

On June 18, 1958, the Commission adopted a Third Memorandum Report and Order in Docket No. 11959, amending the Table of Frequency Allocations in § 2.104 of Commission rules. This order became effective August 1, 1958, and was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of June 28, 1958 (23 F.R. 4782).

One of the amendments adopted changed the frequency band available for assignment to remote pickup broadcast stations from 159.48–160.02 Mc to 160.86–161.40 Mc. The frequencies affected are available only to remote pickup broadcast stations operating in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands of the United States. This amendment as well as other changes consummated in the Third Memorandum Report and Order were made pursuant to prior Notice of Proposed Rule Making in which interested parties were invited to comment. No objection was made to the change in remote pickup availability since it merely moved the band slightly with no loss of spectrum availability.

Through oversight a companion order was not issued at that time to bring § 4.402 into conformance with the new allocation in § 2.104. This omission has just recently come to the attention of the Commission.

Accordingly, it is ordered, That paragraph (b) of § 4.402 is amended, effective June 15, 1960, to read as follows:

(b) The following frequencies are allocated for assignment to remote pickup base and mobile stations in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands only:

Mc	Mc	Mc
160.89	161.07	161.25
160.95	161.13	161.31
161.01	161.19	161.37

NOTE 1: These frequencies are shared with the Land Transportation Radio Service.

NOTE 2: Remote pickup stations assigned frequencies in the band 159.48–160.02 Mc prior to June 1, 1960, may continue to use such frequencies until February 1, 1961, subject to the condition that no harmful interference is caused to stations operating in accordance with the Table of Frequency Allocations in § 2.104 of this chapter.

Because the amendment adopted herein is for the purpose of bringing § 4.402 into conformity with § 2.104 of the rules previously adopted after rule making, it is unnecessary to issue a Notice of Proposed Rule Making or to await comments before taking this action.

Authority for the adoption of the amendment herein is contained in sections 4(i) and 303(c) of the Communications Act of 1934.

(Sec. 4, 48 Stat. 1066, as amended; 47 U.S.C. 154, interprets or applies sec. 303, 48 Stat. 1082, as amended; 47 U.S.C. 303)

Released: June 16, 1960.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION,
[SEAL] BEN F. WAPLE,
Acting Secretary.

Proposed Rule Making

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Agricultural Marketing Service

[7 CFR Part 51]

TABLE GRAPES (EUROPEAN OR VINIFERA TYPE)[1]

United States Standards for Grades

Notice is hereby given that the United States Department of Agriculture is considering a revision of United States Standards for Table Grapes (European or Vinifera Type) (§§ 51.880 to 51.911) pursuant to the authority contained in the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (secs. 202–208, 60 Stat. 1087, as amended; 7 U.S.C. 1621–1627).

The proposed revision in the standards is designed to aid efforts by the grape industry to improve the quality of Tokay grapes destined for fresh market. One of the proposed changes would extend to table grapes of the Tokay variety the color requirements applicable to the other red varieties. Another such change would reduce the size requirements for Tokays grading U.S. Fancy Table Grapes or U.S. Extra No. 1 Table Grapes by lowering the current minimum diameter of the berries from 11/16 of an inch to 10/16 of an inch.

All persons who desire to submit written data, views or arguments for consideration in connection with the proposed revision should file the same with the Chief, Fresh Products Standardization and Inspection Branch, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, South Building, Washington 25, D.C., not later than July 15, 1960.

The standards, as proposed to be revised, are as follows:

GRADES

§ 51.880 U. S. Fancy Table Grapes.

"U.S. Fancy Table Grapes" consists of bunches of well developed grapes of one variety (except when designated as assorted varieties) which are well matured, fairly uniform in appearance and well colored. The berries shall be firm, firmly attached to capstems, and shall not be weak, shriveled at capstems, shattered, split, crushed or wet, and shall be free from decay, waterberry, sunburn and Almeria Spot, and shall be free from damage caused by scarring, discoloration, heat, mildew, other diseases, freezing, insects or mechanical or other means.

(a) Bunches. The bunches shall be fairly well filled but not excessively tight. They shall also be free from injury caused by shot berries, dried berries or other defective berries or by the trimming away of defective berries, and each bunch shall weigh not less than one-half pound.

(b) Stems. The stems shall be well developed and strong, shall not be dry and brittle and shall be free from mold and free from damage caused by mildew or freezing. The Almeria variety shall have stems which are mature. The Emperor variety shall have stems which are mature and distinctly yellowish-green or yellow at time of packing.

(c) Size of berries. Not less than 90 percent, by count, of the berries, exclusive of shot berries and dried berries, on each bunch shall have a minimum diameter as indicated for varieties as follows:

Ribier and Cardinal	12/16 of an inch.
Almeria	9/16 of an inch.
Thompson Seedless and Black Monukka	7/16 of an inch.
Other varieties	10/16 of an inch.

(d) Tolerances. In order to allow for variations incident to proper grading and handling, the following tolerances, by weight, shall be permitted:

5 percent for bunches which fail to meet the requirement for minimum diameter of berries;

5 percent for bunches which weigh less than one-half pound;

10 percent for bunches which fail to meet the color requirements;

5 percent for bunches of the Almeria and Emperor varieties which fail to meet the requirements for maturity of stems and color of stems; and,

5 percent for bunches and berries which fail to meet the remaining requirements of this grade, other than for maturity and uniformity of appearance, including not more than 3 percent for shattered berries and including not more than 2 percent for berries which are seriously damaged: Provided, That not more than one-fourth of the latter amount, or one-half of 1 percent, may be permitted for berries affected by decay.

(1) There is no tolerance specified in this grade for grapes which fail to meet the maturity requirements. However, no lot shall be considered as failing to meet these requirements because the sample of grapes from one container tests below the required percentage of soluble solids.

§ 51.881 U.S. Extra No. 1 Table Grapes.

"U.S. Extra No. 1 Table Grapes" consists of bunches of well developed grapes of one variety (except when designated as assorted varieties) which are mature, fairly uniform in appearance and fairly well colored, except that grapes of the red varieties shall be reasonably well colored. The berries shall be firm, firmly attached to capstems, and shall not be weak, shriveled at capstems, shattered, split, crushed or wet, and shall be free from decay, waterberry, sunburn and Almeria Spot, and free from damage caused by scarring, discoloration, heat, mildew, other diseases, freezing, insects or mechanical or other means.

(a) Bunches. The bunches shall be fairly well filled but not excessively tight. They shall also be free from damage caused by shot berries, dried berries or other defective berries or by the trimming away of defective berries and each bunch shall weigh not less than one-fourth pound.

(b) Stems. The stems shall be well developed and strong, shall not be dry and brittle and shall be free from mold and free from damage caused by mildew or freezing. The Almeria variety shall have not less than 50 percent of the bunches with stems which are mature. The Emperor variety shall have not less than 50 percent of the bunches with stems which are mature and distinctly yellowish-green or yellow at time of packing.

(c) Size of berries. Not less than 90 percent, by count, of the berries, exclusive of shot berries and dried berries, on each bunch shall have a minimum diameter as indicated for varieties as follows:

Ribier and Cardinal	12/16 of an inch.
Almeria	9/16 of an inch.
Thompson Seedless and Black Monukka	7/16 of an inch.
Other varieties	10/16 of an inch.

[1] Packing of the product in conformity with the requirements of these standards shall not excuse failure to comply with the provisions of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act or with applicable State laws and regulations.

(d) Tolerances. In order to allow for variations incident to proper grading and handling, the following tolerances, by weight, shall be permitted:

5 percent for bunches which fail to meet the requirement for minimum diameter of berries;

10 percent for bunches which fail to meet the color requirements;

For the Almeria and Emperor varieties, individual containers may have not more than a total of 10 percent less than the required percentage of bunches which meet the requirements for maturity of stems and color of stems: Provided, That the entire lot averages within the required percentage; and,

8 percent for bunches which weigh less than one-fourth pound, and bunches and berries which fail to meet the remaining requirements of this grade, other than for maturity and uniformity of appearance, including not more than 5 percent for shattered berries and including not more than 2 percent for berries which are seriously damaged: Provided, That not more than one-fourth of the latter amount, or one-half of 1 percent, may be permitted for berries affected by decay.

(1) There is no tolerance specified in this grade for grapes which fail to meet the maturity requirements. However, no lot shall be considered as failing to meet these requirements because the sample of grapes from one container tests below the required percentage of soluble solids.

§ 51.882 U.S. No. 1 Table Grapes.

"U.S. No. 1 Table Grapes" consists of bunches of well developed grapes of one variety (except when designated as assorted varieties) which are mature, and fairly well colored. The berries shall be firm, firmly attached to capstems and shall not be weak, materially shriveled, at capstems, shattered, split, crushed or wet, and shall be free from decay, waterberry and sunburn, and free from damage caused by scarring, discoloration, heat, Almeria Spot, mildew, other diseases, freezing, insects or mechanical or other means.

(a) Bunches. The bunches shall not be straggly. They shall be free from damage caused by shot berries, dried berries or other defective berries or by the trimming away of defective berries and each bunch shall weigh not less than one-fourth pound.

(b) Stems. The stems shall not be weak or dry and brittle and shall be free from mold and free from damage caused by mildew or freezing.

(c) Tolerances. In order to allow for varitaions incident to proper grading and handling, the following tolerances, by weight, shall be permitted:

10 percent for bunches which fail to meet the color requirements; and,

10 percent for bunches which weigh less than one-fourth pound and bunches and berries which fail to meet the remaining requirements of this grade, other than for maturity, including not more than 5 percent for shattered berries and including not more than 2 percent for berries which are seriously damaged: Provided, That not more than one-fourth of the latter amount, or one-half of 1 percent, may be permitted for berries affected by decay.

(1) There is no tolerance specified in this grade for grapes which fail to meet the maturity requirements. However, no lot shall be considered as failing to meet these requirements because the sample of grapes from one container tests below the required percentage of soluble solids.

UNCLASSIFIED

§ 51.883 Unclassified.

"Unclassified" consists of grapes which have not been classified in accordance with any of the foregoing grades. The term "unclassified" is not a grade within the meaning of these standards, but is provided as a designation to show that no grade has been applied to the lot.

APPLICATION OF TOLERANCES

§ 51.884 Application of tolerances.

The contents of individual packages in the lot, based on sample inspection, are subject to the following limitations: Provided, That averages for the entire lot are within the tolerances specified for the grade.

(a) For a tolerance of 10 percent or more, individual packages in any lot may contain not more than one and one-half times the tolerance specified.

(b) For a tolerance of less than 10 percent, individual packages in any lot may contain not more than double the tolerance specified, except that for shattered berries and wet berries not more than one-tenth of the packages may contain more than double the tolerance specified.

DEFINITIONS

§ 51.885 Well developed grapes.

"Well developed grapes" means grapes which are not abnormally small for the variety.

§ 51.886 One variety.

"One variety" means that the grapes show similar varietal characteristics. However, grapes in special packs of two or more varieties, when designated as "assorted varieties", need not meet this requirement.

§ 51.887 Well matured.

"Well matured" means that the juice from 10 percent, by weight, of whole bunches of grapes in the container, which appear to be least mature, shall test not less than 17 percent soluble solids, as determined by the Balling or Brix scale hydrometer, except that the Tokay variety shall test not less than 18 percent, the Thompson Seedless variety shall test not less than 19 percent and the Malaga and Muscat varieties shall test not less than 20 percent.

§ 51.888 Fairly uniform in appearance.

"Fairly uniform in appearance" means that not more than one-tenth of the containers in any lot may show sufficient variation in color or size of berries to materially detract from the appearance of the contents of the individual container.

§ 51.889 Well colored.

"Well colored" means:

(a) For black varieties. Each bunch shall have not less than 95 percent, by count, of berries showing characteristic color. Purple to black shall be considered characteristic color for the varieties Malvoise, Rose of Peru, Black Prince and Black Hamburg; reddish-purple to black shall be considered characteristic color for Cornichon and Black Monukka. Ribier grape berries shall be considered as showing characteristic color when at least 60 percent of the surface is purple to black color, not reddish-purple; and,

(b) For red varieties. Each bunch shall have not less than 75 percent, by count, of berries which show at least 60 percent of the surface with good characteristic color: Provided, That the appearance of the bunch shall not be appreciably injured by very dark berries. Light or cherry red and dark red, but not light pink or very dark or purplish-red, are considered good characteristic color for the red varieties, excepting that any color ranging from light red through purple shall be considered good characteristic color for the Cardinal variety.

(c) There are no color requirements for the white varieties.

§ 51.890 Firm.

"Firm" means that the berry is reasonably turgid and does not yield more than slightly to moderate pressure.

§ 51.891 Weak.

"Weak" means that the berry is relatively low in sugar content, has inferior flavor and usually is watery, translucent and somewhat soft to the touch.

§ 51.892 Shriveled at capstem.

"Shriveled at capstem" means that the berry shows more than slight wrinkling of the skin surrounding the capstem.

§ 51.893 Shattered.

"Shattered" means that the berry is separated from the bunch and may or may not have the capstem attached.

§ 51.894 Wet.

"Wet" means that the grapes are wet from moisture from crushed, leaking or decayed berries or from rain. Grapes which are moist from dew or other moisture condensation such as that resulting from removing grapes from a refrigerator car or cold storage to a warmer location shall not be considered as wet.

§ 51.895 Decay.

"Decay" means any soft breakdown of the flesh or skin of the berry resulting from bacterial or fungus infection. Slight surface development of green mold (Cladosporium) shall not be considered decay.

§ 51.896 Waterberry.

"Waterberry" means a watery, soft or flabby condition of the berry. Affected berries are low in sugar content, have tender skins and are easily crushed. This is an advanced or more pronounced stage of the condition referred to as "weak".

§ 51.897 Sunburn.

"Sunburn" means injury to the berry caused by direct exposure to the sun, including "sulphur burn", occurring as a sunken and usually discolored and dried area on the exposed surface.

§ 51.898 Damage.

"Damage" means any defect which materially affects the appearance, or the edible or shipping quality of the individual berry, the appearance of the bunch as a whole, or the shipping quality of the stems. Any one of the following defects, or any combination of defects the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for any one defect, shall be considered as damage to the individual berry:

(a) Scarring such as that caused by thrip, mildew, rubs and similar injuries when materially affecting the appearance of the berry;

(b) Discoloration when any light brown, tan or darker discoloration of the skin materially affects the appearance of the berry: Provided, That "sunkissed" berries of the white Malaga variety which show discoloration of amber or light brown color shall not be considered as damaged. "Buckskin" berries of the Tokay variety, and similar injury to other varieties, shall be considered as damaged by discoloration;

(c) Heat, when the flesh of the berry is affected;

(d) Almeria Spot when any spot is distinctly sunken or dark in color;

(e) Mildew when active powdery mildew is present;

(f) Freezing when the berry is frozen or when the flesh of the berry is affected by freezing;

(g) Insects when any insect is present or there is visible evidence of insect injury; when mealybug residue or aphis honeydew are present; or when the appearance is materially affected by the presence of leafhopper residue;

The following shall be considered as damage to stems:

(h) Mildew when active powdery mildew is present on the stems or when scars caused by this disease constrict or weaken any part of the main or lateral stems; and,

(i) Freezing when the stems are frozen or the capstems are swollen or dried, or when the main or lateral stems are water-soaked and limp, or dried, as a result of freezing.

§ 51.899 Fairly well filled.

"Fairly well filled" means that the berries are reasonably closely spaced on main and lateral stems and that the bunch is not very loose or stringy.

§ 51.900 Excessively tight.

"Excessively tight" means that the berries are so closely wedged together that when the stem is fresh, the bunch is solid and the appearance is materially affected by berries on the lower portions being distinctly distorted from normal shape.

§ 51.901 Injury to the bunch.

"Injury to the bunch" means any defect which more than slightly affects the appearance of the bunch.

§ 51.902 Shot berries.

"Shot berries" means very small berries resulting from insufficient pollination, usually seedless in those varieties which normally develop seeds. These berries may be entirely green and hard and are designated as "immature shot berries". They may mature and color uniformly with the normal berries on the bunch and are then designated as "mature shot berries".

§ 51.903 Dried berries.

"Dried berries" means berries which are dry and shriveled to the extent that practically no moisture is present.

§ 51.904 Well developed and strong.

"Well developed and strong" means that the main and lateral stems are firm, fibrous and pliable; not distinctly immature or spindly or threadlike at time of packing.

§ 51.905 Diameter.

"Diameter" means the greatest dimension of the berry taken at right angles to a line running from the stem to the blossom end.

§ 51.906 Serious damage.

"Serious damage" means any defect which seriously affects the appearance, or the edible or shipping quality of the grapes and includes berries which are split, crushed, wet, affected by decay or waterberry, or damaged by heat or freezing, except that raisining grapes that are cracked or split, and grapes which show healed cracks at the blossom end shall not be considered as seriously damaged.

§ 51.907 Mature.

"Mature" means that the juice from 10 percent, by weight, of whole bunches of grapes in the container, which appear to be least mature shall test not less than 17 percent soluble solids, as determined by the Balling or Brix scale hydrometer, except that the varieties Emperor, Gros Colman, Pierce Isabella, Olivette Blanche, Rish Baba, Red-Malaga, Cardinal, Ribier, Khalili, Dizmar and varieties similar to or synonymous with the above, shall test not less than 16 percent, and except that Muscat varieties shall test not less than 18 percent.

§ 51.908 Fairly well colored.

"Fairly well colored" means:

(a) For black varieties. Each bunch shall have not less than 85 percent, by count, of berries showing characteristic color, except that in the varieties Ribier, Rose of Peru, Black Prince, Black Hamburg and Black Monukka each bunch shall have not less than 75 percent by count, of berries showing characteristic color. Purple to black shall be considered characteristic color for the varieties Malvoise, Rose of Peru, Black Prince and Black Hamburg; reddish-purple to black shall be considered characteristic color for Cornichon and Black Monukka. Ribier grape berries shall be considered as showing characteristic color when at least 60 percent of the surface is purple to black color, not reddish-purple; and,

(b) For red varieties. Each bunch shall have not less than 60 percent, by count, of berries which show at least 60 percent of the surface with characteristic color. Light pink, red, dark red or purple are considered characteristic color for the red varieties. (There are no color requirements for the Pink Thompson Seedless variety, Sultanina Rose.)

(c) There are no color requirements for the white varieties.

§ 51.909 Reasonably well colored.

"Reasonably well colored" applies to the red varieties and means that each bunch shall have not less than 60 percent, by count, of berries which show at least 60 percent of the surface light pink, red or dark red, but not very dark or purplish-red: Provided, That the appearance of the bunch shall not be appreciably injured by very dark berries, except that any color ranging from light pink through purple shall be permitted for the Cardinal variety.

§ 51.910 Materially shriveled at capstem.

"Materially shriveled at capstem" means that the skin of the berry is definitely wrinkled adjacent to the capstem and the surface is materially sunken.

§ 51.911 Straggly.

"Straggly" means that the berries are so widely spaced on main and lateral stems that the bunch is distinctly open or very stemmy or stringy in structure.

GRAIN WAREHOUSES LICENSED UNDER U.S. WAREHOUSE ACT

Notice of Proposed Rule Making

Notice is hereby given in accordance with Section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U.S.C. 1003) that the Agricultural Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, under the authority of the U.S. Warehouse Act (7 U.S.C. 241 et seq.) is considering amendments of the regulations (7 CFR Part 102) relating to grain warehouses licensed under the Act as follows:

§ 102.18 [Amendment].

1. It is proposed to amend § 102.18(b) to read:

(b) Every receipt, whether negotiable or nonnegotiable, issued for grain stored in a warehouse shall specify a period, not exceeding one year, for which the grain is accepted for storage under the Act and the regulations in this part. Upon demand for issuance of a new receipt, surrender of the old receipt by the lawful holder thereof at or before the expiration of the period specified therein and an offer to satisfy the warehouseman's lien, the warehouseman, upon such lawful terms and conditions as may be granted by him to other depositors of grain in his warehouse, shall, in the absence of some lawful excuse, issue a new receipt for a further specified period, not exceeding one year.

2. It is proposed to amend § 102.51 to read:

§ 102.51 Stocks to be in balance by grades.

Warehousemen must keep stocks of grain in storage by grades in balance with the grades of grain represented by outstanding storage obligations for which receipts have been or are to be issued, except when the grain has unavoidably improved or deteriorated through natural causes. In case the grades of stored grain should get out of balance with grades represented by outstanding storage obligations for which receipts have been or are to be issued, the warehouseman shall effect proper adjustment.

The proposed amendment to § 102.18 (b) is directed to the subject of reissuance of warehouse receipts at or prior to expiration of the period specified in the receipt. The present regulation provides for reissuance on a permissive basis, provided it is actually determined by a licensed inspector that the grain has not deteriorated and that it is in proper condition for storage for another year. Since almost all grain is stored in bulk on a commingled, fungible basis, rather than identity preserved, the provision for determining that "the grain" represented by a particular receipt is in proper condition for continued storage and has not deteriorated, is virtually impossible to observe. Regulations in another part require warehousemen to keep stocks of grain in storage by grade in balance with grades represented by outstanding receipts. This overall responsibility is not changed. The new requirements for reissue provide that the depositor must offer to satisfy the warehouseman's lien when demanding issuance of a new receipt, and that the warehouseman, in the absence of some lawful excuse, shall, upon demand, issue a new receipt for a further specified period not exceeding one year.

Present § 102.51 provides that warehousemen must keep stocks of grain in storage by grades in balance with the grades of grain represented by outstanding receipts. At times, particularly during the harvest period, warehousemen have outstanding storage obligations for which receipts are to be, but for cogent reasons have not been issued. The proposed amendment is intended to clarify the meaning of this section and remove any doubt that such storage obligations are covered thereby.

Any interested person who wishes to submit data, views, or arguments on the proposals may do so by filing them in writing with the Director, Special Services Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D.C., within 30 days after publication hereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Done at Washington, D.C., this 15th day of June 1960.

GEORGE A. DICE,
Director, Special Services Division.

COLOR CERTIFICATION

Findings of Fact and Tentative Order on Proposed Amendment of Color-Certification Regulations

In the matter of deleting D&C Orange No. 5, D&C Orange No. 6, D&C Orange No. 7, D&C Orange No. 17, D&C Red No. 8, D&C Red No. 9, D&C Red No. 10, D&C Red No. 19, D&C Red No. 20, D&C Red No. 33, D&C Red No. 37, D&C Yellow No. 7, D&C Yellow No. 8, and D&C Yellow No. 9 from the list of coal-tar colors subject to certification and adding to the list of colors certifiable for external use only all the colors named except D&C Orange No. 6, D&C Orange No. 7, D&C Red No. 20, and D&C Yellow No. 9:

In the FEDERAL REGISTER of October 6, 1959 (25 F.R. 8065), there was published a final order ruling in the above-identified matter. Exceptions were taken to this order and a public hearing was held beginning February 17, 1960.

The hearing in this matter having been concluded, on the basis of substantial evidence submitted thereat and after consideration of written arguments and suggested findings which are adopted in part and rejected in part as is apparent from the detailed findings made herein, and pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare by the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (secs. 504, 604, 701; 52 Stat. 1052, 1055, as amended, 70 Stat. 919, 72 Stat. 948; 21 U.S.C. 354, 364, 371) and delegated to the Commissioner of Food and Drugs (22 F.R. 1045, 23 F.R. 9500), it is proposed that the following findings of fact and order be issued:

Findings of fact.[1] 1. After public hearings in 1939, the coal-tar colors now listed as D&C Orange No. 5 (4,5-dibromo-3,6-fluorandiol), D&C Orange No. 6 (disodium salt of 4,5-dibromo-9-o-carboxyphenyl-6-hydroxy-3-isoxanthone), D&C Orange No. 7 (dipotassium salt of 4,5-dibromo-9-o-carboxyphenyl-6-hydroxy-3-isoxanthone), D&C Orange No. 17 (1-(2,4-dinitrophenylazo)-2-naphthol), D&C Red No. 8 (monosodium salt of 1-(4-chloro-o-sulfo-5-tolylazo)-2-naphthol), D&C Red No. 9 (barium salt of 1-(4-chloro-o-sulfo-5-tolylazo)-2-naphthol), D&C Red No. 10 (monosodium salt of 2-(2-hydroxy-1-naphthylazo)-1-naphthalenesulfonic acid), D&C Red No. 19 (3-ethochloride of 9-o-carboxyphenyl-6-diethylamino-3-ethylimino-3-isoxanthene), D&C Red No. 20 (3-ethoacetate of 9-o-carboxyphenyl-6-diethylamino-3-ethylimino-3-isoxanthene), D&C Red No. 33 (disodium salt of 8-amino-2-phenylazo-1-naphthol-3, 6-disulfonic acid), D&C Red No. 37 (3-ethostearate of 9-o-carboxyphenyl-6-diethylamino-3-ethylimino-3-isoxanthene), D&C Yellow No. 7 (3,6-fluorandiol), D&C Yellow No. 8 (disodium salt of 9-o-carboxyphenyl-6-hydroxy-3-isoxanthone), and D&C Yellow No. 9 (dipotassium salt of 9-o-carboxyphenyl-6-hydroxy-3-isoxanthone), were found to be harmless and suitable for use in drugs and cosmetics. Accordingly, these colors, among others, were listed with appropriate specifications of identity and quality in the coal-tar color regulations (21 CFR, 1939 Supp., Part 135) as certifiable for use in drugs and cosmetics. (4 F.R. 3635, May 9, 1939; 4 F.R. 4309, September 16, 1939)

2. Since the hearings in 1939, the Food and Drug Administration has completed additional pharmacological studies to explore more fully the toxicity of the certifiable coal-tar colors. On February 5, 1959, all interested persons attended a meeting in Washington, at which the Food and Drug Administration announced the results of the new studies. The Administration provided a statement of what work had been completed and what results had been obtained up to that time, using D&C Orange Nos. 5 and 17; D&C Red Nos. 9, 10, 19, and 33; and D&C Yellow No. 7 (R. 353–360; 535–536; 846–848; 1038–1040). The Certified Color Industry Committee, the Toilet Goods Association, and Revlon, Inc., were represented at the meeting. Food and Drug Administration invited the submission of any data bearing on the toxicity of the colors, but no such data were submitted.

3. On April 15, 1959, the Commissioner of Food and Drugs, on his own initiative, published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (24 F.R. 2875) a proposal to amend the color-certification regulations (21 CFR Part 9) by removing D&C Orange Nos. 5, 6, 7, and 17; D&C Red Nos. 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 19, 20, 33, and 37; and D&C Yellow Nos. 7, 8, and 9 from the list of colors certifiable for the use in drugs and cosmetics, and relisting some of them for certification for use in externally applied drugs and cosmetics. All interested persons were invited to present their views in writing regarding this proposal. (24 F.R. 2873; Ex. 1)

4. After a review of the written comments received in response to the notice of proposed rule-making, there was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER an order, pursuant to statutory authority, amending the color-certification regulations (24 F.R. 3851), by deleting from Part 9 the 17 D&C coal-tar colors specified in the proposal (finding 3), on the ground that these colors are not harmless as required by the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 504, 604). This order set out in brief summary form the results of 90-day subacute feeding tests on rats, employing the following seven coal-tar colors: D&C Orange Nos. 5 and 17; D&C Red Nos. 9, 10, 19, and 33; and D&C Yellow No. 7. The 10 additional coal-tar colors D&C Orange Nos. 6 and 7; D&C Red Nos. 8, 11, 12, 13, 20, and 37; and D&C Yellow Nos. 8 and 9 were found to be not harmless and consequently not eligible for use in drugs and cosmetics, based on their chemical relationship to the seven tested coal-tar colors. This order provided that any person who would be adversely affected by it might, within 30 days from the date of its publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER (October 6, 1959), file written objections thereto. This order was to have become effective 90 days from the date of its publication, except as to any provisions that might be stayed by the filing of objections. (24 F.R. 8065; Ex. 2)

5. Objections to the proposed final order referred to in finding 4 were filed by The Toilet Goods Association, Inc.; Revlon; Smith, Kline & French Laboratories; Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association; Ansbacher-Siegle Corporation; Richard Hudnut; and the Certified Color Industry Committee. A public hearing was requested. (Ex. 3, 4, 4a, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10)

6. By notices published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of January 7 and 23, 1960, the effective date of the proposed final order referred to in finding 4 was postponed to give the Commissioner of Food and Drugs additional time to study the objections referred to in finding 5. (25 F.R. 110, 594; Ex. 2a and 2b)

7. The Commissioner of Food and Drugs, by a notice published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of February 3, 1960 (25 F.R. 903), concluded that the objections referred to in finding 5 stated reasonable grounds for and a public hearing was granted on two issues:

a. Whether the subacute toxicity studies conducted in the laboratories of the Food and Drug Administration and reported to all interested persons in February 1959 were properly planned and executed to establish that the seven colors tested (D&C Orange Nos. 5 and 17, D&C Red Nos. 9, 10, 19, and 33, and D&C Yellow No. 7) are not harmless colors.

b. Whether it is scientifically sound to delete seven colors not tested, because of their chemical relationship to the tested colors D&C Orange Nos. 6 and 7 (related to D&C Orange No. 5), D&C Red No. 8 (related to D&C Red No. 9), D&C Red Nos. 20 and 37 (related to D&C Red No. 19), and D&C Yellow Nos. 8 and 9 (related to D&C Yellow No. 7).

The Commissioner also concluded that the chemical relationship of D&C Red Nos. 11, 12, and 13 to D&C Red No. 10 was not adequate to warrant the application of the subacute toxicity study on D&C Red No. 10 to the other three colors and consequently the delisting of D&C Red Nos. 11, 12, and 13 was revoked, and these colors were restored to the D&C list pending further scientific studies of them. (25 F.R. 903; Ex. 11)

8. The evidence at the hearing shows that toxicity tests on two D&C colors, D&C Red Nos. 8 and 37, originally proposed to be delisted because of their chemical relationship to tested colors, were conducted subsequent to February 1959. The results of these tests were submitted. (R. 137, 157, 158, 451, 464–465; Ex. 26, 31)

[1] Two different samples of D&C Orange No. 5 were tested, designated 5-A and 5-W, respectively.

10. The following general test conditions were followed in all the toxicity tests referred to in finding 9:

a. All the D&C colors tested were from previously certified batches, obtained from the manufacturers, conforming to the specifications set out in the appropriate certification regulations. (R. 111, 197, 199, 200, 201, 202)

b. The animals used in all tests of these D&C colors were albino rats of the Osborne-Mendel strain, taken from a colony bred in the Food and Drug Administration's laboratories for at least 25 years specifically for testing purposes. (R. 112)

c. Each D&C color tested was mixed with a recognized and generally used commercially prepared animal diet and fed to the test animals at the dosage levels indicated in finding 9. For each test of each color, 10 animals (5 males and 5 females) were placed on each dosage level, and in each test 10 animals (5 males and 5 females) were fed the same diet as the test animals but with no coal-tar color added to the diet. These animals constituted the controls. All animals were individually caged, each animal was inspected daily, and each was weighed every week. (R. 112, 115, 120, 133, 135, 137, 143, 151, 154, 156, 158, 160, 171, 449–468, 498)

d. At the conclusion of each test period the animals were sacrificed by exsanguination, and each animal was autopsied. All the internal organs were examined visually, and selected vital organs—the livers, kidneys, spleens, and hearts and the testes of males—were removed and weighed. Significant abnormalities, which are set out in subsequent findings, were noted as a result of these gross pathological examinations. (R. 118, 119, 130, 133, 136–138, 143, 151, 155, 157, 158, 160, 161, 539, 544–546, 864)

e. The route of administering the coal-tar colors tested, orally in the diet, was chosen by the experimenter on the basis that the colors tested were certifiable for use in drugs and cosmetics, whereby the colors would be ingested by man in unknown amounts. (R. 482, 485)

f. The tests were designed to show whether or not the colors tested were harmless. They were not designed to establish a safe level of feeding or "no-effect level" of use of these colors. (R. 442–443, 544–546)

11a. The tests designated in finding 9 were planned, directed, and supervised by the Chief of the Toxicity Branch of the Division of Pharmacology of the Food and Drug Administration, a highly qualified practicing pharmacologist who has been in the employ of the Food and Drug Administration for over 20 years. (R. 100–101, 104–105; Ex. 50)

b. This individual has either planned, organized, directed, or participated in at least a thousand toxicity studies involving no less than 500 varied substances such as antioxidants, insecticides, fungicides, pesticides, organic phosphates, organic acids, surface-active ingredients, drugs, etc. In his position as Chief of the Toxicity Branch he has conducted at least 200 toxicological studies dealing with coal-tar colors. (R. 102, 104)

[1] The citations following each finding of fact refer to the pages of the transcript of testimony and exhibits received in evidence at the hearing.

c. The physical execution of the toxicity tests set out in finding 9 was supervised by a graduate biologist also employed in the Toxicity Branch of the Food and Drug Administration, with nearly 10 years' experience in conducting hundreds of animal studies. (R. 109, 110)

12a. The tests of D&C Orange No. 5, as set out in finding 9, showed that when taken internally at the various dosage levels fed, this color caused definite damage to the kidneys of the test animals, significant stunting of growth, premature death at the higher dosage levels of some test animals, and abnormal blood reactions. (R. 117, 118; Ex. 23, 24)

b. This color caused the premature death of from 40 percent to 50 percent of the animals at the 2 percent dosage level within the first 12 weeks of the experiments. Twenty percent of the animals on the 1 percent dosage level in one test died prematurely between the tenth and twentieth week of the experiment. One premature death was noted among the animals on the 0.5 percent level. (R. 118, 129)

c. This color caused the stunting of growth, in one study, of the test animals at the 2 percent, 1 percent, and 0.5 percent dosage levels. In the second study, growth of the male animals at all dosage levels was stunted, and the female growth was stunted at the 1 percent and 2 percent dosage levels. (R. 118, 130)

d. Hematology studies revealed significant abnormal blood conditions. The blood of the animals fed this color, when compared to the control animals receiving no color, showed lowered hemoglobin and volume pack cells at the 1 percent and 2 percent dosage levels in both studies. In one of these studies the hemoglobin and volume pack cells were depressed at the 0.5 percent dosage level, and normoblasts were present at the 2 percent dosage level. (R. 117, 128, 129)

e. Upon autopsy, the gross pathological examination revealed the following significant abnormal conditions: In one study the kidneys of the animals fed this color were enlarged at all levels as compared to the control animals, and in the second study the kidneys of the animals were enlarged except for the female animals at the 0.25 percent dosage level. (R. 119, 130)

13a. D&C Orange No. 17 was subjected to two subacute toxicity tests, as set out in finding 9, the first test running for approximately a 5-month period, the second test for approximately a 2½-month period. In all, 80 rats were utilized in these two studies. (R. 132–134; Ex. 25, pages 1 and 2)

b. The tests of D&C Orange No. 17 showed that when taken internally at the various dosage levels fed, this color caused definite damage to various vital organs of the test animals, significant stunting of growth, and abnormal blood reaction.

c. This color caused the stunting of growth in the first study of the animals at the 2 percent and 0.5 percent dosage levels. In the second study, the growth of the male animals was stunted at both the 5 percent and 2 percent dosage levels. (R. 133)

d. Hematology studies revealed significant abnormal blood conditions. The blood of the animals fed D&C Orange No. 17, when compared to the control animals receiving no colors, showed lowered hemoglobin and volume pack cells at the 5 percent and 2 percent dosage levels. (R. 136)

e. Upon autopsy, the gross pathological examination revealed the following significant abnormal conditions:

i. In the first and longest study, the livers of the animals at the 2 percent and 0.5 percent dosage levels were enlarged; the spleens of the animals at the 2 percent dosage level were enlarged; the kidneys of the male animals were enlarged at the 2 percent dosage level. (R. 133)

ii. In the second study, the livers of the female animals at the 2 percent dosage levels were found to be enlarged.

14a. The test of D&C Red No. 8 as set out in finding 9, showed that when taken internally at the various dosage levels fed, this color caused definite damage to various vital organs of the test animals and significant abnormal blood reactions. (R. 137; Ex. 26)

b. Hematology studies revealed severe abnormal blood conditions. The blood of the animals fed D&C Red No. 8, when compared to the control animals receiving no color, showed lowered hemoglobin and volume pack cell values at all four dosage levels. Additionally, normoblasts were present at the 2 percent, 1 percent, and 0.5 percent dosage levels. (R. 137)

c. Upon autopsy, the gross pathological examination revealed that this color caused the following significant abnormal conditions:

i. The spleens of the animals on all the dosage levels were enlarged.

ii. The livers of the test animals were enlarged at the 1 percent and 0.5 percent dosage levels and the livers of the males were enlarged at the 2 percent dosage level.

15a. The test of D&C Red No. 9, as set out in finding 9, showed that when taken internally at the various dosage levels fed, this color caused definite damage to various vital organs of the test animals and significant abnormal blood reactions. (R. 142–146; Ex. 27)

b. Hematology studies showed lowered hemoglobin and volume pack cell values at all four dosage levels. Normoblasts were present also in the test animals at all dosage levels.

c. Upon autopsy, the gross pathological examination revealed the following abnormal conditions:

i. The spleens of the animals on all four dosage levels were significantly enlarged.

ii. The livers of the animals on the 1 percent and 0.5 percent dosage levels were also significantly enlarged. (R. 143, 146)

d. The form of D&C Red No. 9 tested was the barium lake extended on a substratum of barium sulfate. The damage observed in the test animals cannot be attributed to the barium sulfate moiety of the substance tested, as it is generally recognized by competent authorities that barium sulfate could not produce the abnormal effects noted. It is therefore concluded that the color D&C Red No. 9 produced the abnormal effects noted. (R. 147, 202, 215, 583)

16. D&C Red No. 9 is being subjected to a long-term, chronic study which began in August of 1958, and is to continue for the lifetime of the test animals, Osborne-Mendel rats. The test consists of feeding this color to the rats in their diets at four dosage levels: 1 percent, 0.25 percent, 0.05 percent, and 0.01 percent. Fifty rats are being fed at each dosage level, with 50 rats receiving no color, as controls. The only results thus far obtained from this study, two hematology studies, show serious abnormal blood conditions in the test animals at all dosage levels when compared with the controls. Normoblasts and other abnormal red blood cells have been found. This observed blood damage demonstrates that at relatively lower dosage levels than utilized in the subacute tests set out in finding 9, greater injury is produced the longer the color is ingested. (R. 549–573)

17a. The test of D&C Red No. 10, as set out in finding 9, showed that when taken internally at the various dosage levels fed, this color caused definite damage to the spleens of the test animals and significant abnormal blood reactions. (R. 150–152; Ex. 28)

b. Hematology studies show a tendency toward lowered hemoglobin and volume pack cell values throughout the four dosage levels. Additionally, normoblasts were present in the blood of the animals at the 2 percent and 0.25 percent dosage levels. (R. 151)

c. Upon autopsy gross pathological examination revealed the following significant abnormal conditions: The spleens of the test animals on all four dosage levels were significantly enlarged. (R. 151)

d. The form of D&C Red No. 10 tested was the sodium lake extended on a substratum of alumina, containing approximately 90 percent pure dye. This form of D&C Red No. 10 was tested because it was representative of batches of D&C Red No. 10 that have been certified over the past few years, and D&C Red No. 10 itself has never been submitted for certification in the pure dye form. The damage observed in this test cannot be attributed to the alumina moiety of the substance tested, as it is generally recognized by competent authorities that alumina cannot produce the abnormal effects noted. Furthermore, the addition of the alumina substratum to the straight color would, because of dilution, result in a compound that would be less toxic than the straight color. It is therefore concluded that the chemical substance known as D&C Red No. 10 (monosodium salt of 2-(2-hydroxy-1-naphthylazo)-1-naphthalensulfonic acid), produced the abnormal effects noted. (R. 198, 216, 584–585)

18. D&C Red No. 10 is also being subjected to a long-term, chronic study which began in September of 1958 and is to continue for the lifetime of the Osborne-Mendel rats, the test animals. The same number of rats and dosage levels as used in the chronic study of D&C Red No. 9, set out in finding 16, are being used in this study. Similarly, the only results thus far obtained from this study, the hematology examinations, also show serious abnormal blood conditions in the test animals at all dosage levels when compared with the controls. Normoblasts have been found, with other abnormal red blood cells. This observed blood damage also demonstrates that at relatively lower dosage levels than utilized in the subacute tests, set out in finding 9, greater injury is produced the longer the color is ingested. (R. 551–573)

19a. The test of D&C Red No. 19, as set out in finding 9, initially utilized 50 rats, 10 rats on each dosage level: 2 percent, 1 percent, 0.5 percent, 0.25 percent, and using 10 rats as controls. An additional dosage level of 0.10 percent was added approximately 2 weeks after the study began, because 70 percent of the rats on the 2 percent dosage level had died within the first 2 weeks.

b. This test of D&C Red No. 19 showed that when taken internally at the various dosage levels fed, this color caused definite damage to various vital organs of the test animals, significant stunting of growth, and premature death. (R. 154–155; Ex. 29)

c. This color caused the premature death of 70 percent of the animals at the 2 percent dosage level within the first 2 weeks of the test period, and the premature death of 100 percent of the animals at this dosage level within the first five weeks of the test period. Additionally, this color caused the premature death of 10 percent of the animals on the 1 percent dosage level and the premature death of 10 percent of the animals on the 0.5 percent dosage level. Liver damage was noted in 60 percent of the animals that died prematurely at the 2 percent dosage level. (R. 154)

d. This color caused stunting of growth in the test animals on the 1 percent, 0.5 percent, and 0.25 percent dosage levels. (R. 154)

e. Upon autopsy, the gross pathological examination revealed the following significant abnormal conditions:

i. The livers of the test animals on all dosage levels were enlarged.

ii. The kidneys of the test animals at the 1 percent, 0.5 percent, and 0.25 percent dosage levels also were enlarged.

iii. The testes of the male test animals at the 1 percent dosage level were atrophied. (R. 155)

20a. The tests of D&C Red No. 33, as set out in finding 9, showed that when taken internally at the various dosage levels fed, this color caused definite damage to various vital organs of the test animals, significant stunting of growth, and abnormal blood reactions. (R. 155–157; Ex. 30)

b. This color caused the stunting of growth of the test animals fed at the 2 percent, 1 percent, 0.5 percent, and 0.25 percent dosage levels. (R. 156)

c. Hematology studies revealed significant abnormal blood conditions. The blood of the animals fed this color, when compared to the blood of the control animals receiving no color, showed lowered hemoglobin and volume pack cell values of the animals on the 5 percent dosage level. Additionally, normoblasts were present in the blood of the animals being fed at the 5 percent, 2 percent, and 0.5 percent dosage levels. (R. 156)

d. Upon autopsy, the gross pathological examination revealed the following significant abnormal conditions:

i. The spleens of the test animals on all five dosage levels were enlarged.

ii. The livers of the test animals on the 1 percent and 2 percent dosage levels were enlarged and the livers of the females at the 5 percent dosage level were enlarged.

iii. The kidneys of the test animals at the 1 percent, 2 percent, and 5 percent dosage levels were also significantly enlarged. (R. 157)

21a. The test of D&C Red No. 37, as set out in finding 9, showed when taken internally at the various dosage levels fed, this color caused significant damage to various vital organs of the test animals and significant abnormal blood reactions. (R. 157–159; Ex. 31)

b. Hematology studies showed that the blood of the animals fed this color, when compared to the control animals receiving no color, had normoblasts at all dosage levels. (R. 158)

c. Upon autopsy, the gross pathology examination revealed the following significant abnormal conditions:

i. The livers of the test animals at all four dosage levels were enlarged.

ii. The kidneys of the test animals at the 2 percent, 0.5 percent, and 0.25 percent dosage levels were also enlarged.

iii. The testes of the male test animals at the 2 percent dosage level were atrophied. (R. 158)

22a. The tests of D&C Yellow No. 7, as set out in finding 9, showed that when taken internally at the various dosage levels fed, this color caused significant damage to the test animals' kidneys and abnormal blood reaction. (R. 159–162; Ex. 32)

b. Hematology studies showed the presence of normoblasts in the blood of the test animals fed at the 5 percent dosage level. (R. 161)

c. Upon autopsy, the gross pathological examination revealed the following significant abnormal conditions: The kidneys of the test animals at the 5 percent and 2 percent dosage levels were granulated and several animals at the 1 percent dosage level had granulated kidneys. (R. 160, 161, 162)

23. The numerical values concerning relative organ weights and growth inhibition in the test animals (reflected on the summary sheets in exhibits 23–32, inclusive) in part formed the basis for the conclusion that the gross pathological abnormalities were significant ones (this is also set out in these exhibits). These values were subjected to a widely used and appropriate statistical evaluation by statisticians of the Food and Drug Administration. This evaluation confirmed statistically that the abnormal effects noted in the test animals as compared to the control animals were caused by the D&C coal-tar colors tested and not by any other factor. This statistical evaluation also confirmed that the abnormal effects noted were real rather than apparent abnormalities. (R. 607–635; Ex. 23–32)

In addition, although microscopic examination of the damaged organs of the test animals did not form a part of these subacute toxicity studies, the experimenters having concluded that such studies were unnecessary in view of the extensive damage observed visually and by gross examination, one scientist—a doctor of veterinary medicine employed in the Division of Pharmacology of the Food and Drug Administration as a veterinary pathologist—as a matter of personal interest did examine microscopically a few specimens of bone and organ tissues taken from three rats being fed one of the tested colors, D&C Red No. 10. This examination revealed that these animals had suffered decided bone and splenic damage together with slight thyroid damage. This microscopic examination confirmed that the spleens and blood of the test animals being fed this color had been damaged. (R. 489–503, 636–643, 703–715)

24. The Government's toxicity studies, as set out in finding 9, were criticized by industry witnesses in the following respects:

A. The gross pathological observation of increased organ weights in the test animals, as set out in findings 12–22, inclusive, was said to be a conclusion based on the use of a mathematical ratio of the organ weight to body weight of the test animals as compared to the control animals, a manner of computation that was held to be invalid. The evidence of record, however, establishes that this method of computing organ weight is a generally accepted one customarily used by pharmacologists, and the most appropriate method under the circumstances of these tests. Additionally, it was brought out that this method of computation has been used in the past, in their own toxicity studies, by witnesses appearing on behalf of the industry. (R. 607–635, 872–873, 933–959; Ex. 23–32)

B. The levels of feeding the D&C coal-tar colors to the test animals were claimed to be too high and not directly related to a level of ingestion by humans. Likewise, the route of administration, that is, orally, was said to be inappropriate:

I. The evidence of record establishes that some D&C coal-tar colors are ingested when used in some cosmetics, specifically lipsticks (R. 483, 787, 853; Ex. 47, 57, 58). This evidence also shows that there are now in use drugs, one of which is a special protein hydrolysate mixture used by patients having unbalanced metabolism, which may form a substantial part of a patient's diet for the lifetime of the patient. These drugs, among all others, together with all cosmetics may be colored with the D&C coal-tar colors at issue, if from a certified batch. There is presently no limit on the number of drugs or cosmetics in which these colors may be used, nor is there any limit to the amount of a certified color that may be used in any given drug or cosmetic (R. 517, 585, 586). There is no substantial evidence available that accurately reflects the amounts of D&C coal-tar colors that may be ingested through the legitimate use of drugs and cosmetics tinted with certifiable D&C coal-tar colors (R. 224, 229, 231, 707, 736, 755, 787, 823, 853, 888, 895). One pharmacologist appearing on behalf of industry, although critical of the Government's toxicity tests relating to dosage levels, admitted his participation in toxicity experiments in the past in which the tested substance was fed at dosage levels unrelated to the actual levels of human ingestion, which levels were unknown to him at the time of the experiment. This same witness additionally admitted to having conducted toxicity tests on a D&C coal-tar color in the past (D&C Violet No. 1) in which he fed this color at dosage levels of from 0.25 percent to 5 percent of the diet. He also admitted conducting toxicity feeding tests on other substances at dosage levels of up to 3 percent of the diet. (R. 916, 917, 998, 1009, 1050)

II. The evidence of record establishes the following facts concerning the reasonableness of the dosage level utilized in the Government's toxicity tests:

i. Similar dosage levels have been routinely used in the past in tests to determine whether or not other coal-tar colors were or were not toxic. (R. 162, 183, 442, 544–546)

ii. The dosage levels utilized were not so excessively high as to produce either high mortality rates or to cause the animals to refuse to eat their diets because of a taste caused by the color mixed with the diet; nor were the dosage levels so high as to interfere with the adequate caloric intake of the test animals. (R. 502, 503)

iii. The dosage levels used were sufficiently high so that positive harmful effects were clearly demonstrated. (R. 162–163, 236–237, 264, 268)

iv. Similar dosage levels have been extensively used in the past, by both Food and Drug scientists as well as nongovernmental scientists, as reported in the scientific literature, in testing the toxicity of a wide variety of substances, other than coal-tar colors, which tests have yielded very similar results. Some of these substances are :

a. Antioxidants, known toxic substances fed at levels of from 0.1 percent to 5 percent.

b. Nordihydroguairetic acid, fed at levels of from 0.1 percent to 1 percent.

c. Propylgallate, fed at levels of from 0.1 percent to 5 percent.

d. Thiodipropionic acid, fed at levels of from 0.5 percent to 3 percent.

e. Dilauryl dithiopropionate, fed at levels of from 0.5 percent to 3 percent.

f. Distearyl thiodipropionate, fed at levels of from 0.5 percent to 3 percent.

g. l-Ascorbyl palmitate, fed at levels of from 0.5 percent to 5 percent.

h. D-Isoascorbic acid, fed at a level of 1 percent.

i. Catechol, fed at levels of from 0.625 percent to 1 percent.

j. Hydroquinone, fed at levels from 0.125 percent to 2 percent.

k. Phenol, fed at levels up to 1 percent. (R.163–165, 308, 446)

v. Similar dosage levels have been utilized by both Government and private scientists, as reported in the scientific literature, in testing known poisons, which tests yield results similar to those observed in the D&C coal-tar colors that are the subject of this order. Some of the poisons are:

a. Diethylene Glycol, a recognized poison that has been responsible for human deaths: This poison has been fed to rats in toxicity tests at levels of from 1 percent to 4 percent with results strikingly similar to those observed in these coal-tar color tests.

b. Methyl salicylate, a recognized poison, also responsible for accidental human deaths, has been fed at levels of from 0.1 percent to 2 percent, with results comparable to those observed in these coal-tar color tests.

c. Carbolic acid, also known as phenol, a recognized poison, which has also caused human deaths, has been fed, at levels of 1 percent and 2 percent, with only slight effects on the growth of the test animals.

d. Piperonyl butoxide, a pesticide economic poison, has been fed at levels of from 0.001 percent to 4 percent, producing results in the test animals comparable to those observed in these coal-tar color tests.

e. Butoxypolypropylene glycol, also a pesticide economic poison, has been fed by a nongovernmental scientist to 10 rats per each dosage level, the levels being 4 percent, 1 percent, 0.25 percent, and controls. Enlargement of the livers of the test animals was observed at the two higher dosage levels.

f. Maleic acid, also a recognized toxic substance, has been fed at levels of from 0.5 percent to 1.5 percent with results comparable to those observed in the tests of these coal-tar colors. (R. 174–180, 535)

Based on the foregoing, the dosage levels used by the Government were reasonable and appropriate and not excessively large to determine whether or not the D&C coal-tar colors tested are or are not harmless. (R. 578)

The route of administering these colors, namely, orally, through feeding tests, was the proper and appropriate method to administer them in these tests because these colors when certified may be used in drugs and cosmetics and therefore may be ingested orally by man in unknown amounts for unknown periods of time. (R. 483–485)

C. The test periods utilized by the Government in the various tests as set out in finding 9 were claimed to be too brief. The evidence establishes general agreement by both the Government and industry that the length of these test periods would not be sufficient to establish a safe level of ingestion of these colors or to detect more subtle toxic effects. In fact, these toxicity tests were not designed to demonstrate a safe or "no-effect" level of ingestion. (R. 182–183, 442, 544–546)

The lengths of these tests were sufficiently long, however, to demonstrate positive damage to the test animals. If no damage to the animals had been detected, the length of the test period would be open to question. However, when damage was found as detailed in findings 12–22, inclusive, the only valid conclusion to be drawn is that the length of the test period was adequate. (R. 580; Ex. 23–32; findings 12–22)

The adequacy of the test period, generally 90 days, to detect the damaging effects caused by these colors is confirmed by the results thus far observed in the long-term chronic toxicity studies presently being conducted on two of the subject coal-tar colors, D&C Red Nos. 9 and 10, as set out in findings 16 and 18. These results establish that both colors have produced serious blood abnormalities in the test animals at all dosage levels being fed, 1 percent, 0.25 percent, 0.05 percent, and 0.01 percent. (R. 549–573)

The evidence also shows that industry witnesses who were critical of the length of the Government studies have in the past themselves conducted or participated in toxicity tests and similar tests that ran for approximately 90 days, and that they accepted these tests as valid studies to establish either the presence or absence of toxicity. (R. 918–932, 1010)

The damage produced by the tested colors in the test animals, particularly the abnormal blood conditions noted in the rats, a genus which is resistant to blood changes, conclusively shows the toxic nature of these colors and the adequacy of the test period. (R. 183, 365)

D. The number of animals utilized in the Government's toxicity studies was claimed to be insufficient. However, industry witnesses admitted to having conducted toxicity tests on generally the same number of animals as used by the Government, in tests from which they drew valid conclusions. (R. 1010, 1011, 1233, 1234) It was also the opinion of industry witnesses that, if human beings are to be exposed to a substance, this substance should be tested on a species of animal as closely related to the human species as possible. It is generally recognized that a rodent species is a proper experimental animal because of its physiological relationship to man. (R. 660)

The number of animals used in each of the Government's tests, generally 10 at each dosage level, was adequate to conclusively demonstrate substantial harmful effects to the test animals. There were enough animals utilized to provide a sound basis for the statistical evaluation of the test results referred to in finding 23. The detection of positive harm in the test animals in itself confirms the adequacy of the number of animals used. (R. 180, 181, 579, 607–635; Ex. 23–32)

E. The conclusions drawn from the Government's tests were also criticized by industry on the ground that there may have been some refusal of food by the test animals in the early weeks of the experiments. Although there was no evidence to substantiate this allegation, even if it were so it would have resulted in the test animals' receiving less color. On the other hand, the testimony of the Government scientists who conducted these tests and who had the test animals under constant observation establishes that there was no caloric deficiency in the animal colony and that up to 5 percent dilution of the test animals' diet with test color would not be sufficient to cause malnutrition in the test animals. In addition, the abnormalities detected in the test animals' organs and blood could not have been caused by decreased food intake. (R. 498–503, 1050–1053)

25. The expert witnesses produced by industry disagreed whether the gross pathological observations noted in exhibits 23–32, inclusive, reveal harmful effects to the test animals. (R. 671–673, 768–769, 879–880, 1196–1213)

26. Although interested parties, including industry representatives, were notified of the results of the Government's toxicity studies on the subject coal-tar colors in February 1959, no toxicity studies on these colors have been conducted by anyone other than the Government. (R. 846–848, 1040, 1041, 1167, 1328)

27. The second issue, as set out in the notice of hearing (Ex. 11), raised the question of whether it is scientifically sound to delete seven D&C colors not tested, because of their chemical relationship to the seven tested colors: D&C Orange Nos. 6 and 7, related to D&C Orange No. 5; D&C Red No. 8, related to D&C Red No. 9; D&C Red Nos. 20 and 37, related to D&C Red No. 19; and D&C Yellow Nos. 8 and 9, related to D&C Yellow No. 7. D&C Red Nos. 11, 12, and 13 were withdrawn from the order and the hearing. (Finding 7; Ex. 11)

D&C Orange No. 6 is the sodium salt of the acid constituting D&C Orange No. 5. D&C Orange No. 7 is the potassium salt of the acid constituting D&C Orange No. 5. The evidence establishes that if either the sodium salt or potassium salt (D&C Orange No. 6 or D&C Orange No. 7) is ingested, their reaction with the hydrochloric acid in the stomach of man would yield a mixture identical biochemically with that produced by the ingestion of D&C Orange No. 5. Consequently, D&C Orange Nos. 6 and 7 would be of the same order of toxicity as D&C Orange No. 5. (R. 206, 581–582; Ex. 33–35)

D&C Yellow No. 8 is the sodium salt of the acid designated as D&C Yellow No. 7. D&C Yellow No. 9 is the potassium salt of the same acid. If either the sodium salt or the potassium salt is placed in the acid medium present in the stomach of man, the biochemical product would be the same as if D&C Yellow No. 7 were ingested. Consequently, D&C Yellow Nos. 8 and 9 would have the same order of toxicity as D&C Yellow No. 7. (R. 208–209, 586–587; Ex. 44–46)

D&C Red No. 20 is the acetic acid salt of the substance known as rhodamine base. D&C Red No. 19 is the hydrochloric acid salt of the same substance, namely, rhodamine base. Both salt forms are highly soluble in water and dilute acid. Consequently, the biochemical mixture produced by the ingestion of either D&C Red No. 19 or D&C Red No. 20 would be the same in the acid condition found in man's stomach. (R. 210–212, 582; Ex. 40, 41)

Subsequent to February 1959, when results of the subacute toxicity studies then completed by the Government were reported to all interested persons, the Food and Drug Administration conducted additional subacute toxicity tests on D&C Red Nos. 8 and 37. The results of these two tests, as set out in findings 14 and 21, establish that these two colors are not harmless. This confirmed the Food and Drug Administration's original position that they should be deleted on the basis of their chemical relationship to tested colors. (R. 137–139, 157–159; Ex. 26, 31, 37, 38)

The only evidence of record confirms the position of the Food and Drug Administration that it is scientifically sound to delete the five D&C colors not tested because of their chemical relationship to the nine D&C colors which were tested. (R. 195–216, 581–583)

Conclusions. On the basis of the foregoing findings of fact and a fair evaluation of the entire record, it is concluded:

1. That the periods of time utilized in the Food and Drug Administration's toxicity experiments were sufficient to draw pharmacologically significant conclusions as to the toxic character of the D&C coal-tar colors tested.

2. That the dosage levels at which the D&C coal-tar colors were fed to the test animals in the Government's toxicity experiments were reasonable and appropriate, and not excessively large, to draw pharmacologically significant conclusions relative to the toxic nature of the tested substances.

3. That the number of animals utilized by the Government in its toxicity experiments was adequate to draw pharmacologically significant conclusions concerning the toxic nature of the tested substances.

4. That the mathematical method of computing increased organ weights in the test animals as compared to the control animals, as set out in findings 12–29, inclusive, was the most appropriate method to be used under the circumstances of these tests and accurately reflects the effect of the D&C colors tested on the various organ sizes.

5. That the route of administering these D&C colors to the test animals, by mixing the colors with the animals' diets, was the proper and appropriate way in which to administer them in the Government's toxicity experiments.

6. That the subacute toxicity studies conducted in the laboratories of the Food and Drug Administration were properly planned and executed to establish that the nine coal-tar colors tested, as set out in finding 9, are not harmless colors.

7. That it is scientifically sound to delete the five untested coal-tar colors as set out in finding 27, because of their chemical relationship to the nine tested coal-tar colors as set out in finding 9.

8. That the Government's toxicity tests do not establish the precise toxicity, and additional long-term tests on at least two classes of warm-blooded animals, such as the rat and the dog, will be required to delineate fully the entire toxic potential of these coal-tar colors.

9. That, based upon the clearly demonstrated capabilities of the following coal-tar colors to produce harmful effects in the test animals these colors are not harmless and suitable for use in the coloring of drugs or cosmetics intended for other than external application:

D&C Orange No. 5 (4,5-dibromo-3,6-fluorandiol).

D&C Yellow No. 8 (disodium salt of 9-o-carboxyphenyl-6-hydroxy-3-isoxanthone).

D&C Yellow No. 9 (dipotassium salt of 9-o-carboxyphenyl-6-hydroxy-3-isoxanthone).

10. That since sections 504 and 604 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (52 Stat. 1052, 1055; 21 U.S.C. 354, 364) provide only for the listing of coal-tar colors that are harmless and suitable for use in drugs and cosmetics and since the act does not provide for listing toxic colors for specific drug or cosmetic uses so as to limit their total use to such small amounts that the toxicity may be disregarded, a toxic color cannot be classified as a harmless color.

11. That coal-tar colors named in conclusion 9 are not harmless and suitable for use within the meaning of sections 504 and 604 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act in coloring drugs and cosmetics intended for other than external application.

Therefore, it is ordered, That the color-certification regulations (21 CFR, 1959 Supp., Part 9) be amended as set forth below:

INDIAN HEALTH

Contagious and Infectious Diseases

Notice is hereby given that the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service with the approval of the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare proposes to amend this part by adding a new subpart as set out below which would establish procedures for the compulsory hospitalization of Indians affected with tuberculosis. These provisions would be restricted in their application only to reservations where effective procedures are not available under the laws of the State.

Interested persons may submit written data, views, or arguments in duplicate in regard to the proposed amendments to the Surgeon General, Public Health Service, Washington 25, D.C. All relevant material received not later than 30 days after the publication of this notice will be considered.

Subpart D—Contagious and Infectious Diseases

TUBERCULOSIS

§ 36.30 Applicability.

The regulations in this subpart relative to the commitment of Indians afflicted with tuberculosis apply only to Indian reservations where effective procedures for the commitment of persons afflicted with tuberculosis are not available under the laws of the State.

§ 36.31 Commitment of Indians afflicted with tuberculosis.

(a) Upon a determination by a tribal court or other Indian court of competent jurisdiction that an Indian within its jurisdiction has tuberculosis in a communicable form and that under applicable tribal law such Indian may be committed to a hospital or other place for medical treatment, the Area Medical Officer in Charge may, upon request of such court, certify that facilities and services of the Public Health Service are available to provide necessary medical treatment for the Indian if he determines in accordance with applicable instructions of the Division of Indian Health that the health of the afflicted Indian or that of other persons requires the isolation or quarantine of the Indian in a hospital or other place of treatment.

(b) If, after such certification the court commits the afflicted Indian to the custody of the Public Health Service, the Medical Officer in Charge may accept such commitment and transport and admit the Indian to any hospital or institution operated by the Public Health Service for the medical care and treatment of tuberculous patients whether within or without the jurisdiction of the court.

(c) An Indian admitted to a facility of the Public Health Service pursuant to this subpart shall be subject to the rules and regulations of the Public Health Service applicable to patients and to the facility.

§ 36.32 Retention of custody; utilization of law enforcement authorities.

(a) The Medical Officer in Charge having custody of a patient whose commitment has been accepted under this subpart is authorized to employ such means as may be necessary for the retention of custody of, and the provision of necessary treatment to, the afflicted Indian including the provision of attendants during periods of transportation, until such time as the patient is discharged.

(b) When necessary to retain custody of the patient the Medical Officer in Charge is authorized to call upon the police force of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, of the tribe, or of the State, as may be appropriate.

§ 36.33 Discharge of patients.

When the Medical Officer in Charge of a medical facility to which an afflicted Indian has been admitted is satisfied that the disease has been arrested he shall discharge the patient: Provided, That he may discharge the patient or release him on parole under such conditions as he deems appropriate if he is satisfied that such action would not endanger the health of the patient or the health of other persons.

§ 36.34 Transfer of patients.

(a) A patient admitted to a facility of the Service, pursuant to this subpart, may be transferred to any other facility of the Service within or without the jurisdiction of the committing court for necessary care and treatment.

(b) A patient admitted to a facility of the Service under this subpart may be transferred to a hospital operated by a State or local government which is authorized to receive him within or without the jurisdiction of the committing court. The chief officer of the facility to which the patient is transferred under this paragraph shall be vested with the same authority as the Medical Officer in Charge of a facility of the Public Health Service with respect to the retention of custody, transfer, or discharge of such person.

(c) The transfer of a patient authorized in this section shall be made only if such transfer is in the judgment of the Medical Officer in Charge in the best interest of the health of the patient.

FEDERAL AVIATION AGENCY

[Reg. Docket No. 424; Draft Release 60-11]

PHYSICAL STANDARDS FOR AIRMEN; MEDICAL CERTIFICATES

Notice of Proposed Rule Making

Pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (§ 405.27, 24 F.R. 2196), notice is hereby given that the Federal Aviation Agency has under consideration a proposal to amend Civil Air Regulations, Part 29, §§ 29.2 and 29.3, as hereinafter set forth.

Interested persons may participate in the making of the proposed rule by submitting such written data, views, or arguments as they may desire. Communications should be submitted in duplicate to the Docket Section of the Federal Aviation Agency, Room B-316, 1711 New York Avenue NW., Washington 25, D.C. All communications received on or before August 15, 1960, will be considered by the Administrator before taking action upon the proposed rule. The proposals contained in this notice may be changed in the light of comments received. All comments submitted will be available in the Docket Section for examination by interested persons when the prescribed date for the return of comments has expired. Because of the large number of comments anticipated in reply to this notice, we will be unable to acknowledge receipt of each reply.

Existing vision standards and vision testing procedures applicable to civil airmen have been carefully reviewed by the Bureau of Aviation Medicine. Vision standards now applicable to civil airmen were developed over the years since the passage of the Air Commerce Act of 1926. Some of the existing standards are still essentially those established by the Aeronautics Branch of the Department of Commerce in 1926. In 1926 a transport pilot was required, among other things, to have "normal judgment of distance; and only slight defects of ocular muscle balance." By 1928, depth perception requirement was first given a specific value, namely 30 mm. without correcting glasses on the average of three trials on the Howard-Dolman depth perception apparatus. The presence of diplopia and a finding of 8 diopters of adduction when the value for abduction was less than 4 diopters were at that time regarded as disqualifying for all classes of pilots. Hyperphoria of more than 1 diopter barred the medical certification of limited commercial and transport pilots.

The present numerical values for esophoria and exophoria are the same as those established in 1939 for application to the Civilian Pilot Training Program in selecting potential military aviators. The standards were made with consideration of the needs of mobilizing for defense at that time and of necessity, were made to coincide with the then military standard. These were later formally incorporated, without change, into Civil Air Regulations, Part 29 (May 22, 1942).

Despite the longstanding existence of rules pertaining to tests for depth perception and eye muscle balance, they have, for some time, not served as standards for disqualification. Except in the case of very gross eye muscle imbalance, applicants with values in excess of those published have been given an opportunity to accomplish a flight test to demonstrate ability to fly safely despite disqualifying values for depth perception, esophoria, exophoria, hyperphoria, prism divergence, or prism convergence.

Such applicants, who did not in addition have other major disturbances in visual function, were uniformly able to demonstrate that failure to meet such standards did not significantly affect their ability to perform safely the applicable airman duties. Pilots in this category have been issued medical certificates attesting to their physical fitness to exercise those rights and privileges for which their ratings are held. Accordingly, the finding of disqualifying values for these tests in pilot applicants has not been predictive of lack of ability to perform, except in rare instances where major eye muscle imbalance or other major visual deficiency was present.

The Agency's experience in the application of these standards is consistent with that of others whose reports in the medical literature fail to establish that performance of airman duties deteriorates as a consequence of excessive values for these test items.

On the basis of these considerations, which raise doubt concerning the need to continue tests which appear to have little relationship to ability to perform, the assistance of medical scientists with expert knowledge in this field was sought. Five highly qualified ophthalmologists were appointed as consultants to the Civil Air Surgeon. They were given the existing eye standards, together with a detailed description of the manner in which they are administered and the policies which govern their application. After the individual consultants had had an opportunity to study these matters and exchange views with their colleagues, a meeting was arranged between the consultants, the medical staff of the Agency and military medical observers. This provided an interchange of views on the technical and administrative considerations of existing eye standards prescribed in the Civil Air Regulations and the testing procedures applied in examining airman applicants.

The recommendations which resulted from this analysis confirmed the previous observations that heterophoria, depth perception, and duction testing, per se, could be expected to give little indication of the visual proficiency necessary for safe performance of airman duties. In the course of developing these recommendations, it became evident that medical knowledge gained since standards for these items were adopted would justify their elimination without sacrificing air safety.

It was determined that the prescribed test for depth perception ability, in testing binocular parallax, gave little additional information beyond that which could be obtained by adequate tests for visual acuity. It was also found that a test for binocular parallax provides a measure of only one of the several factors determining depth perception ability. This factor is of very little assistance to the pilot in carrying out those tasks which require an appreciation of depth and distance relationships. This lack of value stems from the fact that binocular parallax provides usable depth judgment information to a distance probably not greater than 30 inches. The tasks which require an appreciation of depth in flying are those involving objects at much greater distances, where several other factors of depth perception ability are operative. It was determined that there are no existing tests, which could be reasonably applied in a medical examination, for the assessment of those components of depth judgment of importance to pilots. It was the consensus of the consultants that observation of pilot proficiency in the actual operation of aircraft would provide sufficient assurance of ability to perform those tasks dependent on an appreciation of depth.

It was determined that values for heterophoria (esophoria, exophoria, hyperphoria), prism divergence and prism convergence were not, of themselves, predictive of visual proficiency, especially that required of airmen. The visual functions dependent upon proper eye muscle balance, which these tests were originally intended to measure, are complex in nature and are not directly related to the magnitude of values in the individual tests. In conference with the consultant ophthalmologists, it was concluded that visual proficiency in this respect could be established by assuring the presence of two basic attributes. These are (1) the ability to focus the image of viewed objects on the acutely sensitive fovea of both eyes simultaneously (bifoveal fixation) and (2) the presence of an adequate balance between the latent tendency of eyes to deviate from parallel alignment and the ability to overcome this tendency (vergence-phoria relationship).

The determination of the presence of these important attributes (bifoveal fixation and adequate vergence-phoria relationship) would require the skills and examination techniques ordinarily possessed only by eye specialists. The absence of these attributes in persons who do not have other gross and easily observable eye defects is quite rare. It has been estimated that less than one person in 1,000 would be found who did not possess these attributes. This rate is considerably lower than that of persons who have what are now considered, by the existing standards, to be disqualifying values for esophoria, exophoria, hyperphoria, prism divergence, and prism convergence.

Since only qualified eye specialists could adequately determine the values in these rare instances, the general eye examination, performed by persons other than eye specialists as a part of the general medical examination, should be designed to separate out that group of applicants most likely to lack these attributes. After consideration of the several screening methods which could be applied, it was determined that tests for esophoria, exophoria and hyperphoria, with the establishment of maximum values for each, would achieve such separation.

The values which are considered determinative for this separation are 1 prism diopter of hyperphoria, 6 prism diopters of esophoria and 6 prism diopters of exophoria. These values are established as limits for screening and not as disqualifying limits. The screening limit for hyperphoria is the same as the present standard for disqualification, 1 prism diopter. The screening limit for exophoria is 1 prism diopter higher, and therefore more liberal, than the present standard for disqualification. The screening limit for esophoria is lower by 4 prism diopters, and therefore more restrictive, than the present standard for disqualification.

The adverse effect on ability to perform airman duties safely is cause for concern only in those few who lack bifoveal fixation or who have inadequate vergence-phoria relationship. Identification of these persons will form the basis for disqualification. This proposal would amend the Civil Air Regulations for the purpose of limiting disqualification to those rare individuals who lack bifoveal fixation or have inadequate vergence-phoria relationship, and thus grants considerable relief to airman applicants in terms of numbers of persons whose qualification would otherwise be in question.

Studies of the medical literature provided reasonably precise information concerning the numbers of persons who would be expected to fail by the existing standards when tests are carefully conducted. For depth perception, some 6 percent or more would fail. For prism divergence, approximately 10 percent would fail. For prism convergence, from 12 to 14 percent would be expected to fail. Data are not available for diplopia or as to the number of individuals in which more than one of the disqualifying defects would be found. The standard prescribed in this proposal would reduce disqualifications for these factors to not more than one person in 1,000 applicants, and would probably require special testing only in approximately 3 percent. This low rate is expected despite the fact that the screening limit for esophoria is somewhat lower than the present disqualification limit.

In consideration of the foregoing, the standards contained in §§ 29.2(a), (2), (3), (7), and (8) and 29.3(a) (2), (3), and (5) are being rescinded in a separate action [1] being issued concurrently with this proposal.

The amendment proposed herein would, in summary, establish a screening procedure in place of the rescinded standards noted above. The proposed amendment clearly provides that medical certificates will not be withheld from those few applicants who might fail the screening test. They might be required, however, to be examined further to determine if they possess the degree of eye muscle balance deemed necessary for proper visual function.

[1] See F.R. Doc. 60-5725, supra.

In consideration of the foregoing, it is hereby proposed to rescind those standards for hyperphoria, esophoria, and exophoria presently contained in § 29.2 and the standard for hyperphoria in § 29.3 and simultaneously to amend Part 29 of the Civil Air Regulations (14 CFR Part 29), as follows:

1. By amending § 29.2(a) by adding a new paragraph to read as follows:

§ 29.2 First Class.

(a) Eye. Applicant shall have:

* * * * *

(9) Bifoveal fixation and a vergence-phoria relationship sufficient to prevent a break in fusion under conditions which may reasonably occur in the performance of airman duties. Tests for these factors will not be required except in those applicants who are found to have more than one prism diopter of hyperphoria, six prism diopters of esophoria, or six prism diopters of exophoria. When the above values are exceeded, the Civil Air Surgeon may require the applicant to undergo examination by a qualified eye specialist to determine if bifoveal fixation and adequate vergence-phoria relationship exist. A medical certificate will be issued pending the results of such examination.

2. By amending § 29.3(a) by adding a new paragraph to read as follows:

§ 29.3 Second Class.

(a) Eye. Applicant shall have:

* * * * *

(7) Bifoveal fixation and a vergence-phoria relationship sufficient to prevent a break in fusion under conditions which may reasonably occur in the performance of airman duties. Tests for these factors will not be required except in those applicants who are found to have more than one prism diopter of hyperphoria, six prism diopters of esophoria, or six prism diopters of exophoria. When the above values are exceeded, the Civil Air Surgeon may require the applicant to undergo examination by a qualified eye specialist to determine if bifoveal fixation and adequate vergence-phoria relationship exist. A medical certificate will be issued pending the results of such examination.

These amendments are proposed under the authority of sections 313(a), 601, 602 of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 752, 775, 776; 49 U.S.C. 1354(a), 1421, 1422).

Issued in Washington, D.C., on June 16, 1960.

JAMES L. GODDARD, M.D.,
Civil Air Surgeon.

The proceeds from the sale of bonds and preferred stock are to be applied toward the construction or acquisition of permanent improvements, extensions and additions to Gulf's utility plant and to the payment of short-term bank loans incurred for such purposes. It is stated in the filing that Gulf's total expenditures for property additions in 1960 are estimated at $17,113,931 and that, except for additional short-term bank loans of $500,000 toward the end of 1960, it will not be necessary for Gulf to issue and sell additional securities in 1960 to finance its construction program.

The fees of Reid & Priest, counsel for the purchasers of the bonds and preferred stock are estimated at $3,000 in connection with the sale of the bonds and $3,000 in connection with the sale of the preferred stock and will be paid by the underwriters.

Gulf has applied to the Florida Railroad and Public Utilities Commission for approval of the proposed transactions and a copy of the order entered in respect thereof is to be supplied by amendment. It is represented that no other State commission and no Federal commission, other than this Commission, has jurisdiction over the proposed transactions.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than June 28, 1960, at 5:30 p.m., request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law, if any, raised by said declaration which he desires to controvert; or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D.C. At any time after said date the declaration, as filed or as amended, may be permitted to become effective as provided in Rule 23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the Act; or the Commission may exempt such transactions as provided in Rules 20(a) and 100 thereof, or take such other action as it may deem appropriate under the circumstances.

COLUMBIA GAS SYSTEM, INC., ET AL.

Notice of Proposed Intrasystem Issuances, Sales and Acquisitions of Securities, and Sale and Acquisition of Properties; Sale by Registered Holding Company of Utility Assets to a Non-Affiliate

JUNE 14, 1960.

Notice is hereby given that The Columbia Gas System, Inc. ("Columbia"), a registered holding company and two of its subsidiaries, Atlantic Seaboard Corporation ("Seaboard") and Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company ("Cumberland"), and Consolidated Natural Gas Company ("Consolidated"), a non-affiliated registered holding company, have filed a joint application-declaration and amendments thereto pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("Act"), designating sections 6(b), 9, 10, 12 (d) and (f) of the Act and Rules 43 and 44 thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions. All interested persons are referred to said joint application-declaration, as amended, on file in the office of the Commission for a statement of the proposals which are summarized below:

Seaboard, a wholly-owned non-utility pipeline subsidiary of Columbia, is engaged in the purchase, storage, transmission and sale, at wholesale only, of natural gas to affiliated and non-affiliated companies. In furtherance of this business Seaboard has entered into agreements, with Cumberland, an affiliated gas utility company, and with Hope Natural Gas Company ("Hope"), a non-affiliated gas utility subsidiary of Consolidated, for the purchase of certain oil and gas leases and leasehold rights, gas wells, pipelines, well equipment, rights-of-way, meters, and other property and facilities, located in the Terra Alta field in Portland and Union Districts of Preston County, West Virginia. Such rights, facilities and properties are to be utilized by Seaboard in connection with the activation and operation of an additional underground storage pool estimated to have an ultimate maximum reservoir capacity of 45,800,000 mcf of natural gas. The initial activation of the storage project is scheduled for 1960–1961 but the development of its maximum capacity is expected to extend over a period of about four years and involve aggregate expenditures of about $25,000,000. Among the asserted benefits of the project are that it will (1) improve the load factor at which Seaboard will be able to purchase gas from its principal supplier, United Fuel Gas Company ("United"), an affiliate in the Columbia System, and thus enable Seaboard to obtain gas from United at a lower average rate to the benefit of its wholesale customers, including Cumberland (2) allow Seaboard to economically offset a continuing deterioration in the load factor of its sales (3) remove or reduce the requirement that United provide additional facilities and obtain uneconomical peaking gas from its suppliers to meet Seaboard's peak requirements and (4) permit United to use its facilities and gas supply more efficiently during the entire year in meeting the requirements of its customers.

To effectuate the purchase of the properties of Cumberland, which at July 31, 1957 had a depreciated original cost of $3,429,619, Seaboard proposes to issue and sell, and Cumberland proposes to acquire, not in excess of $3,429,000 face amount of Installment Promissory Notes, the balance of $619 to be paid in cash. Thereupon Cumberland proposes to sell, and Columbia proposes to acquire, the notes of Seaboard in prepayment of an equal face amount of Cumberland's Installment Promissory Notes owing to Columbia. The proposed notes of Seaboard are to be dated as of the date of issue and, to the extent practicable, are to have the same terms and bear the same interest rate as the notes of Cumberland which are to be prepaid.

To effectuate the purchase of the properties of Hope, referred to above, Seaboard proposes to pay, and Hope has agreed to accept, a cash consideration of $2,640,000, which is equivalent to the depreciated original cost as of May 31, 1957, of the properties being acquired ($388,094) plus the estimated value of the gas reserves underlying certain of the properties being acquired ($2,251,906). Adjustments to the date of closing will be made to reflect changes in book costs of the properties being acquired from both companies.

To finance the purchase from Hope and to obtain funds to defray a major portion of the cost of activating the Terra Alta storage project during 1960, estimated at $11,579,400, Seaboard proposes to issue and sell, and Columbia proposes to acquire, $10,540,000 face amount of unsecured long-term Installment Notes. Such notes are to be dated as of the date of their issuance, are to mature in twenty-five installments and are to bear interest at the rate of 5.4 percent which is approximately the actual cost of money to Columbia on its last sale of Debentures on October 8, 1959.

The estimated fees and expenses to be incurred in connection with the proposed transactions by the Columbia system companies aggregate $4,600 and have been allocated as follows: Columbia $250, Cumberland $250, and Seaboard $4,100. Consolidated and Hope do not expect to incur or pay any material fees or expenses.

The proposed sale of properties by Cumberland and by Hope have been authorized by the Public Service Commission of West Virginia, in which State both companies are organized and doing business. The Federal Power Commission has authorized Seaboard to acquire, construct and operate facilities for the activation of the Terra Alta storage project, upon the condition that consummation of the proposed acquisition and commencement of construction occur on or before July 1, 1960. It is represented that no other State or Federal commission, other than this Commission, has jurisdiction over the proposed transactions.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than June 27, 1960, request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on such matters stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law raised by the said joint application-declaration, as amended, which he desires to controvert, or may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D.C. At any time after said date, said amended joint application-declaration, as filed or as it may be further amended, may be granted and permitted to become effective as provided in Rule 23 of the general rules and regulations promulgated under the Act, or the Commission may grant exemption from its rules as provided in Rules 20(a) and 100 thereof or take such other action as it may deem appropriate.

By the Commission.

RAMO INVESTMENT CO.

Notice of Application for Order Declaring Company Has Ceased To Be an Investment Company

JUNE 14, 1960.

Notice is hereby given that Ramo Investment Company ("Ramo") has filed an application pursuant to section 8(f) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 ("Act") for an order declaring that Ramo has ceased to be an investment company.

Ramo, a Delaware corporation, engaged in the baking business from its organization in 1925 until November 29, 1958 when it sold its assets. Following the sale of its assets, consideration was given by the applicant to engaging in business as an investment company within the meaning of section 3 of the Act. In June 1959, it was determined that consideration be given to investing a portion of the applicant's assets in securities other than government securities, and accordingly on June 25, 1959, Ramo registered under the Act as a closed-end management investment company. On July 23, 1959, Ramo purchased 100 shares of the common stock of Continental Baking Company at a cost of $4,993 and 500 shares of the preferred stock of Pacific Lighting at a cost of $44,000. These two investments, constitute the only non-government securities ever held by the applicant. As of August 31, 1959, applicant had total assets of $2,710,069 with an investment portfolio of government securities valued at $2,075,000. As a result of the loss incurred in the sale of its assets applicant claims to have a tax loss carryover of $1,938,000.

Section 3(a)(3) of the Act, in pertinent part, defines an investment company as any issuer which is engaged in the business of investing, reinvesting, owning, holding or trading in securities, and owns or proposes to acquire investment securities having a value exceeding 40 percent of the value of such issuer's total assets (exclusive of government securities and cash items) on an unconsolidated basis. Investment securities include all securities except (A) Government securities, (B) securities issued by employees' securities companies, and (C) securities issued by majority-owned subsidiaries of the owner which are not investment companies.

The application states that Ramo's present portfolio of securities consists entirely of government securities. Therefore Ramo no longer comes within the provisions of section 3(a)(3) of the Act, since it does not have investment securities which represent 40 percent or more of its total assets.

The application states that pursuant to section 13(a)(4) of the Act, the holders of a majority of Ramo's outstanding voting securities voted on June 8, 1960 to approve the action of the officers of the company in filing an application on behalf of the company seeking termination of its registration under the Act.

It is represented that as a condition to the issuance of an order under section 8(f) declaring that it has ceased to be an investment company, Ramo will maintain an investment portfolio restricted to government securities until such time as its board of directors decides to enter some other field of business.

Section 8(f) of the Act provides, in pertinent part, that whenever the Commission upon application, finds that a registered investment company has ceased to be an investment company, it shall so declare by order and upon the taking effect of such an order the registration of such company shall cease to be in effect.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than June 24, 1960 at 12:30 p.m., submit to the Commission in writing a request for a hearing on the matter accompanied by a statement as to the nature of his interest, the reason for such request and the issues, if any, of fact or law proposed to be controverted, or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such communication should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D.C. At any time after said date, as provided by Rule O-5 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the Act, an order disposing of the application may be issued by the Commission upon the basis of the showing contained in said application, unless an order for a hearing upon said application shall be issued upon request or upon the Commission's own motion.

By the Commission.

Bureau of Foreign Commerce

KURT O. W. WAHLE ET AL.

Supplemental Order Revoking Export Privileges

In the matter of application of the Director, Investigation Staff, Bureau of Foreign Commerce, for an Order Revoking the Probation Provision in Part IV of the Order of February 3, 1959 (24 F.R. 910, February 6, 1959) against Kurt O. W. Wahle Europaische Verkaufs GmbH (European Sales Company of American Market Stores) Frankfurt/Main-Westhafen, Germany, Respondents; Case No. 253.

The respondents, Kurt O. W. Wahle and Europaische Verkaufs G.m.b.H. (European Sales Company of American Market Stores), hereinafter referred to as Wahle, of Frankfurt/Main-Westhafen, West Germany, were denied all export privileges for so long as export controls shall remain in effect by order dated February 3, 1959, published in the FEDERAL REGISTER, volume 24, page 910, on February 6, 1959. However, Part IV of said order curtailed the denial of export privileges to nine (9) months from the date of the order, after which the export privileges of the respondents should be restored to them on condition that, during the nine months following the date of said order, the respondents should comply in all respects with said order, and thereafter with all requirements of the Export Control Act of 1949, as amended, and all regulations, licenses and orders issued thereunder. Part V of said order further provided that the conditional restoration of export privileges may be revoked summarily and without notice upon finding by the Director of the Office of Export Supply that any such respondent has knowingly failed to comply with the aforesaid conditions, in which event the original denial order shall then be and become effective as to them.

The Director, Investigation Staff, Bureau of Foreign Commerce, has applied for a revocation of said conditional restoration of export privileges to, or probation of, the respondents, alleging that the respondents have breached said condition in the order by knowingly continuing to order commodities from the United States for export to Europe by and through another West German firm, during the nine months following the date of said order.

The case was referred to a Compliance Commissioner who held an informal hearing on this application. Respondents were not notified of this hearing or the application since notice was not required under the outstanding order.

The Compliance Commissioner who heard and considered the evidence and arguments in support of said revocation application, has transmitted to me his written report, including findings of fact, conclusion that respondents knowingly violated and failed to comply with the outstanding order, and recommendation that respondents' probation and conditional restoration of export privileges should be revoked and they should be denied all privileges of participating in U.S. exports so long as export controls remain in effect. With this report, he transmitted the record in this case.

After receiving and considering the entire record of this case and the Compliance Commissioner's Report and Recommendation, I hereby make the following findings of fact:

1. On February 3, 1959 an order was issued by the Director, Office of Export Supply, Bureau of Foreign Commerce (published in the FEDERAL REGISTER, volume 24, page 910, on February 6, 1959) against respondents Kurt O. W. Wahle and Europaische Verkaufs G.m.b.H. (European Sales Company of American Market Stores), containing, inter alia, the following provisions:

II(b). The respondents Kurt O. W. Wahle and Europaische Verkaufs G.m.b.H. (European Sales Company of American Market Stores) are hereby denied so long as export controls shall remain in effect, all privileges of participating, directly or indirectly, in any manner or capacity, in any exportation of any commodity or technical data from the United States to any foreign destination, including Canada.

II(c). Without limitation of the generality of the foregoing denials of export privileges, participation in an exportation is deemed to include and prohibit participation, to the extent specified, by any such respondent, directly or indirectly, in any manner or capacity, * * * (4) in the receiving, ordering, buying, selling, delivering, using, or disposing in any foreign country of any commodities in whole or in part exported or to be exported from the United States, and (5) in financing, forwarding, transporting, or other servicing of such exports from the United States.

IV. Nine months after the date hereof, without further order of the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, Kurt O. W. Wahle and Europaische Verkaufs G.m.b.H. (European Sales Company of American Market Stores) shall have their export privileges restored to them conditionally, the condition for such restoration being that during the said nine months following the date hereof, the said respondents shall comply in all respects with this order, and thereafter they shall comply with all requirements of the Export Control Act of 1949, as amended, and all regulations, licenses, and orders issued thereunder.

V. The privileges so conditionally permitted to the respondents Kurt O. W. Wahle and Europaische Verkaufs G.m.b.H. (European Sales Company of American Market Stores) under Part IV hereof may be revoked summarily and without notice upon a finding by the Director of the Office of Export Supply, or such other official as may at that time be exercising the duties now exercised by him, that any respondent has knowingly failed to comply with the conditions applicable to him or it as set forth in Part IV hereof, in which event Part II hereof, insofar as it shall apply to such respondents, shall then be and become effective as to them, without thereby precluding the Bureau of Foreign Commerce from taking such other and further action based on such violation or violations as it shall deem warranted. In the event that such supplemental order is issued, such respondents and related parties as are involved therein shall have a right to review thereof, as provided in the Export Regulations.

2. During March to October 1959, Wahle placed or caused to be placed orders with American firms for the purchase of commodities to be exported from the United States to Europe, by, through and in the name of a West German firm.

3. Said orders were placed and these dealings were conducted without disclosing, and in a manner designed to conceal, Wahle's knowledge thereof, and his involvement and participation therein.

4. During the nine months following February 3, 1959, Wahle sought and obtained bids and quotations from American firms on commodities for exportation from the United States to foreign destinations.

5. Wahle knew, or should have known, that the foregoing actions were contrary to and violated the terms, conditions and provisions of the order referred to in Finding 1.

6. Neither Wahle nor anyone on his behalf sought or received permission or authorization from the United States Department of Commerce for any of the foregoing actions.

From the foregoing, the following is my conclusion.

Respondents, Kurt O. W. Wahle and Europaische Verkaufs G.m.b.H. (European Sales Company of American Market Stores), while subject to denial of export privileges under order of February 3, 1959, knowingly violated and failed to comply with the terms, conditions and provisions thereof.

Now, having carefully reviewed and considered the above application of the Director of the Investigation Staff, the entire record including the evidence submitted in support thereof, and being satisfied that the recommendation of the Compliance Commissioner in this case is reasonable, fair and just, and that the following order is necessary to achieve effective enforcement of the Export Control Act of 1949, as amended, and regulations and orders pursuant thereto: It is hereby ordered

I. Part IV of denial order of February 3, 1959 against respondents, Kurt O. W. Wahle and Europaische Verkaufs G.m.b.H. (European Sales Company of American Market Stores), is hereby revoked.

II. All outstanding validated export licenses in which either of the respondents has any interest, direct or indirect, are hereby revoked and shall be returned forthwith to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce for cancellation.

III. Henceforth and so long as export controls shall remain in effect, the respondents, Kurt O. W. Wahle and Europaische Verkaufs G.m.b.H. (European Sales Company of American Market Stores), their successors or assigns, officers, partners, representatives, agents and employees hereby are denied all privileges of participating, directly or indirectly, in any manner or capacity, in any exportation of any commodity or technical data from the United States to any foreign destination, including Canada. Without limitation of the generality of the foregoing denial of export privileges, participation in an exportation is deemed to include and prohibit participation by them or any of them, directly or indirectly, in any manner or capacity, (a) as parties or as representatives of a party to any validated export license application, (b) in the preparation or filing of any export license application or of any document to be submitted therewith, (c) in the obtaining or using of any validated or general export license or other export control document, (d) in the receiving, ordering, buying, selling, delivering, using, or disposing in any foreign country of any commodities or technical data in whole or in part exported or to be exported from the United States, and (e) in the storing, financing, forwarding, transporting, or other servicing of such exports from the United States.

IV. This denial of export privileges shall extend not only to the respondents, but also to any person, firm, corporation, partnership or business organization with which any of them may be now or hereafter related by affiliation, ownership, control, position of responsibility, or other connection in the conduct of trade which may involve exports from the United States or services connected therewith.

V. During the time when any respondent or related party is prohibited from engaging in any activity within the scope of this order, no person, firm, corporation, partnership or other business organization, whether in the United States or elsewhere, without prior disclosure to and specific authorization from the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, shall do any of the following acts, directly or indirectly, in any manner or capacity, on behalf of or in any association with any such respondent or related party, or whereby any such respondent or related party may obtain any benefit therefrom or have any interest or participation therein, directly or indirectly: (a) Apply for, obtain, transfer, or use any license, shipper's export declaration, bill of lading, or other export control document relating to any exportation, reexportation, transshipment, or diversion of any commodity or technical data exported or to be exported from the United States, by, to, or for any such respondent or related party denied export privileges; or (b) order, buy, receive, use, sell, deliver, store, dispose of, forward, transport, finance, or otherwise service or participate in, any exportation, reexportation, transshipment, or diversion of any commodity or technical data exported or to be exported from the United States.

VI. In accordance with § 382.16 the respondents shall have the right, at any time, to object to this order, request that it be set aside, and request that a hearing be held thereon.

Dated: June 13, 1960.

Uniform System of Accounts for Natural Gas Companies

Title 18—CONSERVATION OF POWER

Chapter I—Federal Power Commission

SUBCHAPTER F—ACCOUNTS, NATURAL GAS ACT

[Order No. 219; Docket No. R-174]

PART 201—UNIFORM SYSTEM OF ACCOUNTS FOR NATURAL GAS COMPANIES

This Commission has had under consideration in this proceeding the revision of its Uniform System of Accounts Prescribed for Class A and Class B Natural Gas Companies, Part 201, Chapter I, Title 18, Code of Federal Regulations (CFR). That System of Accounts, as revised, is prescribed hereinafter to become effective January 1, 1961.

Part 201, §§ 201.01–1—201.906, corresponds to, and appears at pp. 3–159 of the Commission's pamphlet publication of its Uniform System of Accounts Prescribed for Natural Gas Companies Subject to the Provisions of the Natural Gas Act, effective January 1, 1940, revised to January 1, 1954,[1] as amended by Order No. 203 issued May 29, 1958 (23 F.R. 4164, June 12, 1958). The System of Accounts, as revised and prescribed hereinafter, follows the numbering system (accounts, instructions, definitions, etc.) used in the Commission's pamphlet edition referred to above.

Important developments in the natural gas industry since the adoption of the Uniform System of Accounts effective January 1, 1940, and the Commission's experience over the intervening 20 years, indicated the need for a revision of the System of Accounts. Accordingly, this proceeding was commenced by Notice of Proposed Rulemaking served upon interested parties, including State and Federal regulatory agencies, and by publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER on May 30, 1959 (24 F.R. 4391). Copies of a proposed revised System of Accounts were served and published as a part of that general notice, and an Amended Notice of Proposed Rulemaking was issued on June 23, 1959 (24 F.R. 5312, June 30, 1959).

Generally speaking, the revisions of the Commission's System of Accounts, as then proposed, are prescribed hereinafter as a part of the Commission's System of Accounts to become effective January 1, 1961. Additional revisions and modifications of those previously proposed, are detailed hereinafter.

Overall, the more significant changes and improvements to be found in the revised System of Accounts prescribed herein are as follows:

(a) Redefinition of the size classification of natural gas companies to permit more simplified accounting requirements for smaller companies;

(b) Provisions of certain needed new accounts; i.e., inclusion in transmission function of plant and expense accounts for transmission communications facilities; addition to products extraction function of account for gas processed by others; inclusion in other gas supply expenses of account for exchange gas; addition to storage expenses of accounts for purification expenses, gas losses and exploration and development expense; inclusion of accounts for load dispatching in the transmission and distribution functions; supplanting plant and expense accounts for city gate and main line measuring stations by new provisions permitting alternative use of transmission or distribution functional classifications in appropriate circumstances; relocation of inventory account for noncurrent gas in storage from detailed plant classifications to separate account in balance sheet plant section;

(c) Rearrangement of certain accounts, inclusion of items lists and improvement of account texts;

(d) Rearrangement of balance sheet and certain other accounts to make them more informative;

(e) Reduction in number of expense account classifications, mainly but not entirely, by the discontinuance of segregations of numerous functional accounts as to labor and other expenses;

(f) Expansion of items lists of account texts and clearer description of such items according to their functional nature, to facilitate use and consistency of respective account classifications;

(g) Restatements of the accounting aspects of certain accounting interpretations issued in the past;

(h) Condensation of plant and expense classifications for manufactured gas operations;

(i) Rearrangement and improvement in accounts for inventories of natural gas in storage.

None of these changes affect, adversely, the basic principles, generally, of the Commission's existing System of Accounts. They remain undisturbed.

In recommending the form of revised System of Accounts accompanying the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking in this proceeding, the staff of the Commission correlated its activities with the activities of the National Association of Railroad and Utility Commissioners (NARUC) which has recently prepared a revised form of the NARUC's Uniform System of Accounts for Class A and Class B Gas Utilities. This was done to promote continued consistency and uniformity of approach to the common problems with which the two accounting systems are concerned; and to assure a minimum amount of deviation where the two accounting systems do differ. The staff's activities in this regard were undertaken mainly with the Committee on Statistics and Accounts of the NARUC.

Subsequent to the general public notice of proposed rulemaking in this proceeding on May 30, 1959 [2] comments and suggestions were filed by the following respondents:

State Public Service Commission (Missouri)	1
Natural Gas Companies	19
Public Accounting Firms	2
Legal Firm	1
Total	23

These comments, criticisms, and suggestions covered a wide spectrum. Some respondents objected to any general revision of the effective System of Accounts as unnecessary, expensive, and time-consuming. Also, issue was taken with some definitions of basic terms. Other respondents urged basic changes in the accounting requirements for income taxes and other matters contrary to settled Commission policy and decisions. Objections were made to the specificity of the records requirements for depreciation and certain other accounts. Some respondents further suggested that this Commission completely abandon its cost accounting policies in favor of a fair value concept of depreciation.

In reviewing all of the responses, the staff of this Commission again correlated its activities with those of the NARUC Committee on Statistics and Accounts at a conference held December 8, 9, and 10, 1959. Thereafter, the staff presented its recommendations in this matter to the Commission. The staff recommends Commission adoption of the revised System of Accounts as proposed in the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking initiating this proceeding as amended by the Amended Notice of Proposed Rulemaking issued June 23, 1959 (24 F.R. 5312, June 30, 1959), with the following further revisions or modifications (page citations are to Volume 24 of the FEDERAL REGISTER, issue of May 30, 1959):

C. The numbers prefixed to account titles are to be considered as part of the titles. Each utility, however, may adopt for its own purposes a different system of account numbers (see also General Instruction 2D) provided that the numbers herein prescribed shall appear in the descriptive headings of the ledger accounts and in the various sources of original entry; however, if a utility uses a different group of account numbers and it is not practicable to show the prescribed account numbers in the various sources of original entry, such reference to the prescribed account numbers may be omitted from the various sources of original entry. Moreover, each utility using different account numbers for its own purposes shall keep readily available a list of such account numbers which it uses and a reconciliation of such account numbers with the account numbers provided herein. It is intended that the utility's records shall be so kept as to permit ready analysis by prescribed accounts (by direct reference to sources of original entry to the extent practicable) and to permit preparation of financial and operating statements directly from such records at the end of each accounting period according to the prescribed accounts.

The Commission recognizes that some burden and expense will have to be borne by the accounting and reporting parties affected in connection with the transition from the present to the revised System of Accounts. However, the Commission is of the opinion that the physical burden and monetary cost of the changeover is of minor importance when viewed in relation to the immediate and future benefits to be derived from the revised System of Accounts, as prescribed herein.

For the convenience of all parties concerned, attached Appendix A set forth below correlates the account titles of the Commission's Uniform System of Accounts Prescribed for Natural Gas Companies Subject to the Provisions of the Natural Gas Act, effective January 1, 1940 with the revised System of Accounts prescribed herein effective January 1, 1961. Being a schematic presentation only, and of a very general nature, nothing contained therein shall be construed as in any way modifying the general or specific account titles, texts, and instructions of either of the Systems of Accounts.

Also, it should be noted that for the period of time required for the preparation and publication of the revised System of Accounts prescribed herein in pamphlet form, the revised System of Accounts (18 CFR §§ 201.01–1—201.906) will be available in the printed form set forth below as Appendix B.

The Commission finds:

(1) In view of the foregoing, and upon consideration of all relevant matters presented, it is necessary and appropriate for the purposes of the Natural Gas Act that the proposed revised System of Accounts as set forth in the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (24 F.R. 4391–4445), as amended by the Amended Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (24 F.R. 5312), and as modified by the changes set forth above, be adopted and promulgated as this Commission's revised Uniform System of Accounts Prescribed for Natural Gas Companies Subject to the Provisions of the Natural Gas Act, effective January 1, 1961, all in the manner as hereinafter provided.

(2) Good cause exists for the adoption of the revised System of Accounts set forth herein to be effective as of January 1, 1961.

The Commission, acting pursuant to authority granted by the Natural Gas Act, as amended, particularly sections 8(a), 10, and 16 (15 U.S.C. 717g, 717i, and 717o), orders:

(A) Effective January 1, 1961, §§ 201.01–1 through 201.906, Part 201 of Subchapter F—Accounts, Natural Gas Act (18 CFR 201.01–1 through 201.906) are amended to read as provided by Appendix B set forth below.

(B) Effective January 1, 1961, all Class A and Class B Natural Gas Companies under the Natural Gas Act shall keep their accounts in the manner set forth in the revised System of Accounts appearing in Appendix B annexed hereto.

(C) The Secretary of the Commission shall cause prompt publication of this order.

Issued: June 21, 1960.

By the Commission.

[SEAL] JOSEPH H. GUTRIDE, Secretary.

APPENDIX B

UNIFORM SYSTEM OF ACCOUNTS PRESCRIBED FOR NATURAL GAS COMPANIES SUBJECT TO THE PROVISIONS OF THE NATURAL GAS ACT

Definitions

When used in this system of accounts:

1. "Accounts" means the accounts prescribed in this system of accounts.

2. "Actually issued," as applied to securities issued or assumed by the utility, means those which have been sold to bona fide purchasers for a valuable consideration, those issued as dividends on stock, and those which have been issued in accordance with contractual requirements direct to trustees of sinking funds.

3. "Actually outstanding," as applied to securities issued or assumed by the utility, means those which have been actually issued and are neither retired nor held by or for the utility; provided, however, that securities held by trustees shall be considered as actually outstanding.

4. "Amortization" means the gradual extinguishment of an amount in an account by distributing such amount over a fixed period, over the life of the asset or liability to which it applies, or over the period during which it is anticipated the benefit will be realized.

5. A. "Associated companies" means companies or persons that directly, or indirectly through one or more intermediaries, control, or are controlled by, or are under common control with, the accounting company.

B. "Control" (including the terms "controlling," "controlled by," and "under common control with") means the possession, directly or indirectly, of the power to direct or cause the direction of the management and policies of a company, whether such power is exercised through one or more intermediary companies, or alone, or in conjunction with, or pursuant to an agreement, and whether such power is established through a majority or minority ownership or voting of securities, common directors, officers, or stockholders, voting trusts, holding trusts, associated companies, contract or any other direct or indirect means.

6. "Book cost" means the amount at which property is recorded in these accounts without deduction of related provisions for accrued depreciation, depletion, amortization, or for other purposes.

7. "Commission," means the Federal Power Commission.

8. "Cost" means the amount of money actually paid for property or services. When the consideration given is other than cash in a purchase and sale transaction, as distinguished from a transaction involving the issuance of common stock in a merger or a pooling of interest, the value of such consideration shall be determined on a cash basis.

9. "Cost of removal" means the cost of demolishing, dismantling, tearing down or otherwise removing gas plant, including the cost of transportation and handling incidental thereto.

10. "Debt expense" means all expenses in connection with the issuance and initial sale of evidences of debt, such as fees for drafting mortgages and trust deeds; fees and taxes for issuing or recording evidences of debt; cost of engraving and printing bonds and certificates of indebtedness; fees paid trustees; specific costs of obtaining governmental authority; fees for legal services; fees and commissions paid underwriters, brokers, and salesmen for marketing such evidences of debt; fees and expenses of listing on exchanges; and other like costs.

11. (a) "Depletion," as applied to natural gas producing land and land rights, means the loss in service value incurred in connection with the exhaustion of the natural resource in the course of service.

(b) "Depreciation," as applied to depreciable gas plant, means the loss in service value not restored by current maintenance, incurred in connection with the consumption or prospective retirement of gas plant in the course of service from causes which are known to be in current operation and against which the utility is not protected by insurance. Among the causes to be given consideration are wear and tear, decay, action of the elements, inadequacy, obsolescence, changes in the art, changes in demand and requirements of public authorities, and, in the case of natural gas companies, the exhaustion of natural resources.

12. "Discount", as applied to the securities issued or assumed by the utility, means the excess of the par (stated value of no-par stocks) or face value of the securities plus interest or dividends accrued at the date of the sale over the cash value of the consideration received from their sale.

13. "Investment advances" means advances, represented by notes or by book accounts only, with respect to which it is mutually agreed or intended between the creditor and debtor that they shall be settled by the issuance of securities or shall not be subject to current settlement.

14. "Minor items of property" means the associated parts or items of which retirement units are composed.

15. "Natural gas" means either natural gas unmixed, or any mixture of natural and artificial gas.

16. "Natural gas company" means a person engaged in the transportation of natural gas in interstate commerce, or the sale in interstate commerce of such gas for resale.

17. "Net salvage value" means the salvage value of property retired less the cost of removal.

18. "Nominally issued," as applied to securities issued or assumed by the utility, means those which have been signed, certified, or otherwise executed, and placed with the proper officer for sale and delivery, or pledged, or otherwise placed in some special fund of the utility, but which have not been sold, or issued direct to trustees of sinking funds in accordance with contractual requirements.

19. "Nominally outstanding," as applied to securities issued or assumed by the utility, means those which, after being actually issued, have been reacquired by or for the utility under circumstances which require them to be considered as held alive and not retired, provided, however, that securities held by trustees shall be considered as actually outstanding.

20. "Original cost," as applied to gas plant, means the cost of such property to the person first devoting it to public service.

21. "Person" means an individual, a corporation, a partnership, an association, a joint stock company, a business trust, or any organized group of persons, whether incorporated or not, or any receiver or trustee.

22. "Premium," as applied to securities issued or assumed by the utility, means the excess of the cash value of the consideration received from their sale over the sum of their par (stated value of no-par stocks) or face value and interest or dividends accrued at the date of sale.

23. "Property retired," as applied to gas plant, means property which has been removed, sold, abandoned, destroyed, or which for any cause has been withdrawn from service.

24. "Replacing" or "replacement," when not otherwise indicated in the context, means the construction or installation of gas plant in place of property retired, together with the removal of the property retired.

25. "Retirement units" means those items of gas plant which, when retired, with or without replacement, are accounted for by crediting the book cost thereof to the gas plant account in which included.

26. "Salvage value" means the amount received for property retired, less any expenses incurred in connection with the sale or in preparing the property for sale; or, if retained, the amount at which the material recoverable is chargeable to Materials and Supplies, or other appropriate account.

27. "Service life" means the time between the date gas plant is includible in gas plant in service, or gas plant leased to others, and the date of its retirement. If depreciation is accounted for on a production basis rather than on a time basis, then service life should be measured in terms of the appropriate unit of production.

28. "Service value" means the difference between original cost and net salvage value of gas plant.

29. "Utility," as used herein and when not otherwise indicated in the context, means any natural gas company to which this system of accounts is applicable.

General Instructions

1. Classification of Utilities.

A. For the purpose of applying systems of accounts prescribed by the Commission, natural gas companies are divided into four classes, as follows:

Class A. Natural Gas Companies having annual gas operating revenues of $2,500,000 or more.

Class B. Natural Gas Companies having annual gas operating revenues of $1,000,000 or more but less than $2,500,000.

Class C. Natural Gas Companies having annual gas operating revenues of $150,000 or more but less than $1,000,000.

Class D. Natural Gas Companies having annual gas operating revenues of $25,000 or more but less than $150,000.

B. This system of accounts applies to Class A and Class B utilities. Those applicable to Class C and Class D utilities are issued separately.

C. The class to which any utility belongs shall originally be determined by the average of its annual gas operating revenues for the last three consecutive years. Subsequent changes in classification shall be made when the annual gas operating revenues for each of the three immediately preceding years shall exceed the upper limit, or be less than the lower limit, of the annual gas operating revenues of the classification previously applicable to the utility.

D. Any utility may, at its option, adopt the system of accounts prescribed by the Commission for any larger class of utilities.

2. Records. A. Each utility shall keep its books of account, and all other books, records, and memoranda which support the entries in such books of account so as to be able to furnish readily full information as to any item included in any account. Each entry shall be supported by such detailed information as will permit ready identification, analysis, and verification of all facts relevant thereto.

B. The books and records referred to herein include not only accounting records in a limited technical sense, but all other records, such as minute books, stock books, reports, correspondence, memoranda, etc., which may be useful in developing the history of or facts regarding any transaction.

C. No utility shall destroy any such books or records unless the destruction thereof is permitted by rules and regulations of the Commission.

D. In addition to prescribed accounts, clearing accounts, temporary or experimental accounts, and subdivisions of any accounts, may be kept, provided the integrity of the prescribed accounts is not impaired.

E. All amounts included in the accounts prescribed herein for gas plant and operating expenses shall be just and reasonable and any payments or accruals by the utility in excess of just and reasonable charges shall be included in account 426, Other Income Deductions.

F. The arrangement or sequence of the accounts prescribed herein shall not be controlling as to the arrangement or sequence in report forms which may be prescribed by the Commission.

3. Numbering system. A. The account numbering plan used herein consists of a system of three-digit whole numbers as follows:

100–199	Assets and Other Debits.
200–299	Liabilities and Other Credits.
300–399	Plant Accounts.
400–439	Income Accounts.
480–499	Revenue Accounts.
700–899	Production, Transmission and Distribution Expenses.
900–949	Customer Accounts, Sales and General and Administrative Expenses.

B. In certain instances, numbers have been skipped in order to allow for possible later expansion or to permit better coordination with the numbering system for other utility departments.

C. The numbers prefixed to account titles are to be considered as part of the titles. Each utility, however, may adopt for its own purposes a different system of account numbers (See also general instruction 2D) provided that the numbers herein prescribed shall appear in the descriptive headings of the ledger accounts and in the various sources of original entry; however, if a utility uses a different group of account numbers and it is not practicable to show the prescribed account numbers in the various sources of original entry, such reference to the prescribed account numbers may be omitted from the various sources of original entry. Moreover, each utility using different account numbers for its own purposes shall keep readily available a list of such account numbers which it uses and a reconciliation of such account numbers with the account numbers provided herein. It is intended that the utility's records shall be so kept as to permit ready analysis by prescribed accounts (by direct reference to sources of original entry to the extent practicable) and to permit preparation of financial and operating statements directly from such records at the end of each accounting period according to the prescribed accounts.

4. Accounting period. Each utility shall keep its books on a monthly basis so that for each month all transactions applicable thereto, as nearly as may be ascertained, shall be entered in the books of the utility. Amounts applicable or assignable to specific utility departments shall be so segregated monthly. Each utility shall close its books at the end of each calendar year unless otherwise authorized by the Commission.

5. Submittal of questions. To maintain uniformity of accounting, utilities shall submit questions of doubtful interpretation to the Commision for consideration and decision.

6. Item lists. Lists of "items" appearing in the texts of the accounts or elsewhere herein are for the purpose of more clearly indicating the application of the prescribed accounting. The lists are intended to be representative, but not exhaustive. The appearance of an item in a list warrants the inclusion of the item in the account mentioned only when the text of the account also indicates inclusion inasmuch as the same item frequently appears in more than one list. The proper entry in each instance must be determined by the texts of the accounts.

7. Delayed items. Items relating to transactions which occurred prior to the current calendar year but which were not recorded in the books of account shall be included in the same accounts which would have been charged or credited if the items had not been delayed; provided, that when the amount of a delayed item is relatively so large that its inclusion in the accounts for a single month would seriously distort the accounts, it may be distributed in equal amounts to the accounts for the current and remaining months of the calendar year; and provided further, that, if the amount of any delayed item is relatively so large that its inclusion in the accounts for a single year would seriously distort the accounts, the amount shall be included in account 434, Miscellaneous Credits to Surplus, or account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, unless the Commission shall prescribe otherwise in specific instances.

8. Unaudited items. Whenever a financial statement is required by the Commission, if it is known that a transaction has occurred which affects the accounts but the amount involved in the transaction and its effect upon the accounts cannot be determined with absolute accuracy, the amount shall be estimated and such estimated amount included in the proper accounts. The utility is not required to anticipate minor items which would not appreciably affect the accounts.

9. Distribution of pay and expenses of employees. The charges to gas plant, operating expense and other accounts for services and expenses of employees engaged in activities chargeable to various accounts, such as construction, maintenance, and operations, shall be based upon the actual time engaged in the respective classes of work, or in case that method is impracticable, upon the basis of a study of the time actually engaged during a representative period.

10. Payroll distribution. Underlying accounting data shall be maintained so that the distribution of the cost of labor charged direct to the various accounts will be readily available. Such underlying data shall permit a reasonably accurate distribution to be made of the cost of labor charged initially to clearing accounts so that the total labor cost may be classified among construction, cost of removal, gas operating functions (manufactured gas production, natural gas production and gathering, products extraction, underground storage, transmission, distribution, etc.), and nonutility operations.

11. Operating reserves. Accretions to operating reserve accounts made by charges to operating expenses shall not exceed a reasonable provision for the expense. Material balances in such reserve accounts shall not be diverted from the purpose for which provided unless the permission of the Commission is first obtained.

12. Records for each plant. A. Separate records shall be maintained by gas plant accounts of the book cost of each plant owned, including additions by the utility to plant leased from others, and of the cost of operating and maintaining each plant owned or operated. The term "plant," as here used, means each manufactured gas production plant, the wells and gathering lines of each distinct production area, each system of interconnected transmission mains, each system of wells and lines of an underground storage project, each large purification or dehydration plant, each compressor

The difference between the original cost, as above, and the cost to the utility of gas plant after giving effect to any accumulated provision for depreciation, depletion, or amortization, and contributions in aid of construction applicable to the property acquired if recorded by the accounting utility at the time of acquisition, shall be recorded in account 114, Gas Plant Acquisition Adjustments. The original cost of gas plant shall be determined by analysis of the utility's records or those of predecessor or vendor companies with respect to gas plant previously acquired as operating units or systems and the difference between the original cost so determined, less accumulated provisions for depreciation, depletion, and amortization and contributions in aid of construction if recorded by the accounting utility, and the cost to the utility, with necessary adjustments for retirements from date of acquisition, shall be entered in account 114, Gas Plant Acquisition Adjustments. Any difference between the cost of gas plant and its book cost, when not properly includible in other accounts, shall be recorded in account 116, Other Gas Plant Adjustments.

2. Gas plant to be recorded at cost. A. All amounts included in the accounts for gas plant acquired as an operating unit or system, except as otherwise provided in the texts of the intangible plant accounts, shall be stated at the cost incurred by the person who first devoted the property to utility service. All other gas plant shall be included in the accounts at the cost incurred by the utility. Where the term "cost" is used in the detailed plant accounts, it shall have the meaning stated in this paragraph.

B. When the consideration given for property is other than cash, the value of such consideration shall be determined on a cash basis. (See, however, definition 8.) In the entry recording such transaction, the actual consideration shall be described with sufficient particularity to identify it. The utility shall be prepared to furnish the Commission the particulars of its determination of the cash value of the consideration if other than cash.

C. When property is purchased under a plan involving deferred payments, no charge shall be made to the gas plant accounts for interest, insurance, or other expenditures occasioned solely by such form of payment.

D. Gas plant contributed to the utility or constructed by it from contributions to it of cash or its equivalent shall be charged to the gas plant accounts at cost of construction, estimated if not known. There shall be credited to the accounts for accumulated depreciation, depletion, and amortization the estimated amount of depreciation, depletion, and amortization applicable to the property at the time of its contribution to the utility. The difference between the amounts included in the gas plant accounts and the accumulated depreciation, depletion, and amortization shall be credited to account 271, Contributions in Aid of Construction.

3. Components of construction cost. The cost of construction property included in the gas plant accounts shall include, where applicable, the direct and overhead costs as listed and defined hereunder:

(1) "Contract work" includes amounts paid for work performed under contract by other companies, firms, or individuals, costs incident to the award of such contracts, and the inspection of such work.

(2) "Labor" includes the pay and expenses of employees of the utility engaged on construction work, and related workmen's compensation insurance, payroll taxes and similar items of expense. It does not include the pay and expenses of employees which are distributed to construction through clearing accounts nor the pay and expenses included in other items hereunder.

(3) "Materials and supplies" includes the purchase price at the point of free delivery plus customs duties, excise taxes, the cost of inspection, loading and transportation, the related stores expenses, and the cost of fabricated materials from the utility's shop. In determining the cost of materials and supplies used for construction, proper allowance shall be made for unused materials and supplies, for materials recovered from temporary structures used in performing the work involved, and for discounts allowed and realized in the purchase of materials and supplies.

NOTE: The cost of individual items of equipment of small value (for example, $50 or less) or of short life, including small portable tools and implements, shall not be charged to utility plant accounts unless the correctness of the accounting therefor is verified by current inventories. The cost shall be charged to the appropriate operating expense or clearing accounts, according to the use of such items, or, if such items are consumed directly in construction work, the cost shall be included as part of the cost of the construction.

(4) "Transportation" includes the cost of transporting employees, materials and supplies, tools, purchased equipment, and other work equipment (when not under own power) to and from points of construction. It includes amounts paid to others as well as the cost of operating the utility's own transportation equipment. (See item 5 following.)

(5) "Special machine service" includes the cost of labor (optional), materials and supplies, depreciation, and other expenses incurred in the maintenance, operation and use of special machines, such as steam shovels, pile drivers, derricks, ditchers, scrapers, material unloaders, and other labor saving machines; also expenditures for rental, maintenance and operation of machines of others. It does not include the cost of small tools and other individual items of small value or short life which are included in the cost of materials and supplies. (See item 3, above.) When a particular construction job requires the use for an extended period of time of special machines, transportation or other equipment, the net book cost thereof, less the appraised or salvage value at time of release from the job, shall be included in the cost of construction.

(6) "Shop service" includes the proportion of the expense of the utility's shop department assignable to construction work except that the cost of fabricated materials from the utility's shop shall be included in "materials and supplies."

(7) "Protection" includes the cost of protecting the utility's property from fire or other casualties and the cost of preventing damages to others, or to the property of others, including payments for discovery or extinguishment of fires, cost of apprehending and prosecuting incendiaries, witness fees in relation thereto, amounts paid to municipalities and others for fire protection, and other analogous items of expenditures in connection with construction work.

(8) "Injuries and damages" includes expenditures or losses in connection with the construction work on account of injuries to persons and damages to the property of others; also the cost of investigation of and defense against actions for such injuries and damages. Insurance recovered or recoverable on account of compensation paid for injuries to persons incident to construction shall be credited to the account or accounts to which such compensation is charged. Insurance recovered or recoverable on account of property damages incident to construction shall be credited to the account or accounts charged with the cost of the damages.

(9) "Privileges and permits" includes payments for and expenses incurred in securing temporary privileges, permits or rights in connection with construction work, such as for the use of private or public property, streets, or highways, but it does not include rents, or amounts chargeable as franchises and consents and Consents.

(10) "Rents" includes amounts paid for the use of construction quarters and office space occupied by construction forces and amounts properly includible in construction costs for such facilities jointly used.

(11) "Engineering and supervision" includes the portion of the pay and expenses of engineers, surveyors, draftsmen, inspectors, superintendents and their assistants applicable to construction work.

(12) "General administration capitalized" includes the portion of the pay and expenses of the general officers and administrative and general expenses applicable to construction work.

(13) "Engineering services" includes amounts paid to other companies, firms, or individuals engaged by the utility to plan, design, prepare estimates, supervise, inspect, or give general advice and assistance in connection with construction work.

(14) "Insurance" includes premiums paid or amounts provided or reserved as self-insurance for the protection against loss and damages in connection with construction, by fire or other casualty, injury to or death of persons other than employees, damages to property of others, defalcation of employees and agents, and the nonperformance of contractual obligations of others. It does not include workmen's compensation or similar insurance on employees included as "labor" in item 2, above.

(15) "Law expenditures" includes the general law expenditures incurred in connection with construction and the court and legal costs directly related thereto, other than law expenses included in protection, item 7, and in injuries and damages, item 8.

(16) "Taxes" includes taxes on physical property (including land) during the period of construction and other taxes properly includible in construction costs before the facilities become available for service.

(17) "Interest during construction" includes the net cost for the period of construction of borrowed funds used for construction purposes and a reasonable rate on other funds when so used. No interest charges shall be included in these accounts upon expenditures for construction projects which have been abandoned.

NOTE: When a part only of a plant or project is placed in operation or is completed and ready for service but the construction work as a whole is incomplete, that part of the cost of the property placed in operation, or ready for service, shall be treated as "Gas Plant in Service" and interest thereon as a charge to construction shall cease. Interest on that part of the cost of the plant which is incomplete may be continued as a charge to construction until such time as it is placed in operation or is ready for service, except as limited in item 17 above.

(18) "Earnings and expenses during construction" includes (a) all revenues derived during the construction period from property which is included in the cost of a project under construction and (b) all expenses which are attributable to the revenues received.

4. Overhead construction costs. A. All overhead construction costs, such as engineering, supervision, general office salaries and expenses, construction engineering and supervision by others than the accounting utility, law expenses, insurance, injuries and damages, relief and pensions, taxes and interest, shall be charged to particular jobs or units on the basis of the amounts of such overheads reasonably applicable thereto, to the end that each job or unit shall bear its equitable proportion of such costs and that the entire cost of the unit, both direct and overhead, shall be defrosted from the plant accounts at the time the property is retired.

B. As far as practicable, the determination of pay roll charges includible in construction overheads shall be based on time card distributions thereof. Where this procedure is impractical, special studies shall be made periodically of the time of supervisory employees devoted to construction activities to the end that only such overhead costs as have a definite relation to construction shall be capitalized. The addition to direct construction costs of arbitrary percentages or amounts to cover assumed overhead costs is not permitted.

C. The records supporting the entries for overhead construction costs shall be so kept as to show the total amount of each overhead for each year, the nature and amount of each overhead expenditure charged to each construction work order and to each utility plant account, and the bases of distribution of such costs.

5. Gas plant purchased or sold. A. When gas plant constituting an operating unit or system is acquired by purchase, merger, consolidation, liquidation, or otherwise, after the effective date of this system of accounts, the costs of acquisition, including expenses incidental thereto properly includible in gas plant, shall be charged to account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or Sold.

B. The accounting for the acquisition shall then be completed as follows:

(1) The original cost of plant, estimated if not known, shall be credited to account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or Sold, and concurrently charged to the appropriate gas plant in service accounts and to account 104, Gas Plant Leased to Others, account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use, and account 107, Construction Work in Progress—Gas, as appropriate.

(2) The depreciation, depletion, and amortization applicable to the original cost of the properties purchased, shall be charged to account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or Sold, and concurrently credited to the appropriate account for accumulated provision for depreciation, depletion or amortization.

(3) The cost to the utility of any property includible in account 121, Nonutility Property, shall be transferred thereto.

(4) The amount of contributions in aid of construction applicable to the property acquired, shall be charged to account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or shall be carried in an appropriate liability account. Interest on unpaid balances shall be charged to the appropriate interest account. If any part of the cost of public improvement is included in the general tax levy, the amount thereof shall be charged to the appropriate tax account.

C. The net profit from the sale of timber, cord wood, or other property acquired with rights-of-way or other lands shall be credited to the appropriate land and land rights or clearing land account. Where land is held for a considerable period of time and purchase increases in value, the net profit (after giving effect to the cost of the timber) from the sales of timber or its products shall be credited to account 421, Miscellaneous Nonoperating Income.

D. Separate entries shall be made for the acquisition, transfer, or retirement of each parcel of land, and each land right, or gas right (except rights-of-way for distribution mains), having a life of more than one year. A record shall be maintained showing the nature of ownership, full legal description, area, map reference, purpose for which used, city, county, and tax district in which situated, from whom purchased or to whom sold, payment given or received, other costs, contract date and number, date of recording of deed, and book and page of record. Entries transferring or retiring land or land rights shall refer to the original entry recording its acquisition. A parcel of land acquired and carried on the books as a unit is not required to be subdivided with transfers to other land accounts merely because of the erection thereon of an incidental structure to be used in gas operations but for a purpose differing from that for which the land is chiefly employed; for example, a small storehouse on production plant land.

E. Any difference between the amount received from the sale of land or land rights, less agents' commissions and other costs incident to the sale, and the book cost of such land or right, shall be included in account 434, Miscellaneous Credits to Surplus, or account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, as appropriate, unless a reserve therefor has been authorized and provided. Appropriate adjustments of the accounts shall be made with respect to any structures or improvements located on land sold.

F. The cost of buildings and other improvements (other than public improvements) shall not be included in the land accounts. If at the time of acquisition of an interest in land such interest extends to buildings or other improvements (other than public improvements), which are then devoted to utility operations, the land and improvements shall be separately appraised and the cost allocated to land and buildings or improvements on the basis of the appraisals. If the improvements are removed or wrecked without being used in operations, the cost of removing or wrecking shall be charged and the salvage credited to the account in which the cost of the land is recorded.

G. When the purchase of land for gas operations requires the purchase of more land than needed for such purposes, the charge to the specific land account shall be based upon the cost of the land purchased, less the fair market value of that portion of the land which is not to be used in utility operations. The portion of the cost measured by the fair market value of the land not to be used shall be included in account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use, or account 121, Nonutility Property, as appropriate. Regarding land and land rights held for the production of natural gas, account 101, Gas Plant in Service, shall include (1) the cost of lands owned in fee upon which producing natural gas wells are located or lands owned in fee which are being drained through the operation by the utility of wells on the other land, and (2) the first cost of lands held under lease upon which the utility pays royalties for the natural gas obtained therefrom. The cost of all other land and land rights held for the production of natural gas under a definite plan for such use shall be included in account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use.

NOTE: In addition to the accounting records prescribed herein, supplemental records of land and land rights held for future use shall be kept in such manner as to permit the segregation within a reasonable time of the land and land rights constituting (1) productive but nonproducing fields, (2) unproven or undeveloped fields, and (3) storage fields, and to show the following data with respect to each natural gas lease, regardless of the accounting treatment accorded the lease costs: (a) name of lessor, (b) location of leasehold and number or other identification assigned thereto, (c) date and period of lease agreement, (d) first cost of lease including details of the elements of such cost, (e) annual rental provisions, (f) date and cost of drilling, (g) date gas determined to exist, (h) date of completion of first well drilled by the utility in each pool of gas, (i) royalty provisions, (j) amortization and depletion provisions, and (k) date of abandonment of lease.

H. Provision shall be made for amortizing amounts carried in the accounts for limited-term interests in land, so as to apportion equitably the cost of each interest over the life thereof. For the purposes of amortization of natural gas rights, separate interests in land which comprise an interest in a production area may be grouped to form a depletion unit. (See account 111.1, Accumulated Provision for Amortization and Depletion of Producing Natural Gas Land and Land Rights, account 113.1, Accumulated Provision for Abandonment of Leases, and account 111.3, Accumulated Provision for Amortization of Other Gas Plant in Service; also account 404.1, Amortization and Depletion of Producing Natural Gas Land and Land Rights, account 404.3, Amortization of Other Limited-Term Gas Plant, and account 797, Abandoned Leases.)

I. The items of cost to be included in the accounts for land and land rights are as follows:

2. Cost, first, of acquisition including mortgages and other liens assumed (but not subsequent interest thereon).
3. Clearing (first cost) the land of brush, trees, and debris.

24. Labor and expenses in connection with securing rights of way, where performed by company employees and company agents.

D. Where furnaces and boilers are used primarily for furnishing steam for some particular department and only incidentally for furnishing steam for heating a building and operating the equipment therein, the entire cost of such furnaces and boilers shall be charged to the appropriate plant account, and no part to the building account.

E. The cost of disposing of materials excavated in connection with construction of structures shall be considered as a part of the cost of such work, except as follows: (a) When such material is used for filling, the cost of loading, hauling, and dumping shall be equitably apportioned between the work in connection with which the material is used; (b) when such material is sold, the net amount realized from such sales shall be credited to the work in connection with which the removal occurs. If the amount realized from the sale of excavated materials exceeds the removal costs and the costs in connection with the sale, the excess shall be credited to the land account in which the site is carried.

F. Lighting or other fixtures temporarily attached to buildings for purposes of display or demonstration shall not be included in the cost of the building but in the appropriate equipment account.

G. The items of cost to be included in the accounts for structures and improvements are as follows:

1. Architects' plans and specifications including supervision.
2. Ash pits (when located within the building).
3. Athletic field structures and improvements.
4. Boilers, furnaces, piping, wiring, fixtures, and machinery for heating, lighting, signaling, ventilating, and air conditioning systems, plumbing, vacuum cleaning systems, incinerator and smoke pipe, flues, etc.

(f) The amount remaining in account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or Sold, shall then be closed to account 114, Gas Plant Acquisition Adjustments.

C. If property acquired in the purchase of an operating unit or system is in such physical condition when acquired that it is necessary substantially to rehabilitate it in order to bring the property up to the standards of the utility, the cost of such work, except replacements, shall be accounted for as a part of the purchase price of the property.

D. When any property acquired as an operating unit or system includes duplicate or other plant which will be retired by the accounting utility in the reconstruction of the acquired property or its consolidation with previously owned property, the proposed accounting for such property shall be presented to the Commission.

E. In connection with the acquisition of gas plant constituting an operating unit or system, the utility shall procure, if possible, all existing records relating to the property acquired, or certified copies thereof, and shall preserve such records in conformity with regulations or practices governing the preservation of records of its own construction.

F. When gas plant constituting an operating unit or system is sold, conveyed, or transferred to another by sale, merger, consolidation or otherwise, the book cost of the property sold or transferred to another shall be credited to the appropriate utility plant accounts, including amounts carried in account 114, Gas Plant Acquisition Adjustments, and the amounts (estimated if not known) carried with respect thereto in the accounts for accumulated provisions for depreciation, depletion, and amortization and in account 252, Customer Advances for Construction, and account 271, Contributions in Aid of Construction, shall be charged to such accounts and the contra entries made to account 102 Gas Plant Purchased or Sold. Unless otherwise ordered by the Commission, the difference, if any, between (a) the net amount of debits and credits and (b) the consideration received for the property (less commissions and other expenses of making the sale) shall be included in account 434, Miscellaneous Credits to Surplus, or account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus. (See account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or Sold.)

NOTE: In cases where existing utilities merge or consolidate because of financial or operating reasons or statutory requirements rather than as a means of transferring title of purchased properties to a new owner, the accounts of the constituent utilities, with the approval of the Commission, may be combined. In the event original cost has not been determined, the resulting utility shall proceed to determine such cost as outlined herein.

6. Expenditures on leased property.

A. The cost of substantial initial improvements (including repairs, rearrangements, additions, and betterments) made in the course of preparing for a utility service property leased for a period of more than one year, and the cost of subsequent substantial additions, replacements, or betterments to such property, shall be charged to the gas plant account appropriate for the class of property leased. If the service life of the improvements is terminable by action of the lease, the cost, less net salvage, of the improvements shall be spread over the life of the lease by charges to account 404.3, Amortization of Other Limited-Term Gas Plant. However, if the service life is not terminated by action of the lease but by depreciation proper, the cost of the improvements, less net salvage, shall be accounted for as depreciable plant.

B. If improvements made to property leased for a period of more than one year are of relatively minor cost, or if the lease is for a period of not more than one year, the cost of the improvements shall be charged to the account in which the rent is included, either directly or by amortization thereof.

7. Land and land rights. A. The accounts for land and land rights shall include the cost of land owned in fee by the utility and rights, interests, and privileges held by the utility in land owned by others, such as leaseholds, easements, rights of way, natural gas rights, and other like interests in land.

B. Where special assessments for public improvements provide for deferred payments, the full amount of the assessments shall be charged to the appropriate land account and the unpaid balance included in account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use.

NOTE: In addition to the accounting records prescribed herein, supplemental records of land and land rights held for future use shall be kept in such manner as to permit the segregation within a reasonable time of the land and land rights constituting (1) productive but nonproducing fields, (2) unproven or undeveloped fields, and (3) storage fields, and to show the following data with respect to each natural gas lease, regardless of the accounting treatment accorded the lease costs: (a) name of lessor, (b) location of leasehold and number or other identification assigned thereto, (c) date and period of lease agreement, (d) first cost of lease including details of the elements of such cost, (e) annual rental provisions, (f) date and cost of drilling, (g) date gas determined to exist, (h) date of completion of first well drilled by the utility in each pool of gas, (i) royalty provisions, (j) amortization and depletion provisions, and (k) date of abandonment of lease.

H. Provision shall be made for amortizing amounts carried in the accounts for limited-term interests in land, so as to apportion equitably the cost of each interest over the life thereof. For the purposes of amortization of natural gas rights, separate interests in land which comprise an interest in a production area may be grouped to form a depletion unit. (See account 111.1, Accumulated Provision for Amortization and Depletion of Producing Natural Gas Land and Land Rights, account 113.1, Accumulated Provision for Abandonment of Leases, and account 111.3, Accumulated Provision for Amortization of Other Gas Plant in Service; also account 404.1, Amortization and Depletion of Producing Natural Gas Land and Land Rights, account 404.3, Amortization of Other Limited-Term Gas Plant, and account 797, Abandoned Leases.)

I. The items of cost to be included in the accounts for land and land rights are as follows:

9. Equipment. A. The cost of equipment chargeable to the gas plant accounts, unless otherwise indicated in the text of an equipment account, includes the net purchase price thereof, sales taxes, investigation and inspection expenses necessary to such purchase, expenses of transportation when borne by the utility, labor employed, materials and supplies consumed, and expenses incurred by the utility in unloading and placing the equipment in readiness to operate.

B. Exclude from equipment accounts hand and other portable tools which are likely to be lost or stolen or which have relatively small value (for example, $50 or less) or short life, unless the correctness of the accounting therefor as gas plant is verified by current inventories. Special tools acquired and included in the purchase price of equipment shall be included in the appropriate plant account. Portable drills and similar tool equipment when used in connection with the operation and maintenance of a particular plant or department, such as production, transmission, distribution, etc., or in "stores," shall be charged to the plant account appropriate for their use.

C. The equipment accounts shall include angle irons and similar items which are installed at the base of an item of equipment, but piers and foundations which are designed to be as permanent as the buildings which house the equipment, or which are constructed as a part of the building and which cannot be removed without cutting into the walls, ceilings or floors or without in some way impairing the building, shall be included in the building accounts.

D. The equipment accounts shall include the necessary costs of testing or running a plant or part thereof during an experimental or test period prior to becoming available for service. The utility shall furnish the Commission with full particulars of and justification for any test or experimental run extending beyond a period of thirty days.

E. The cost of efficiency or other tests made subsequent to the date equipment becomes available for service shall be charged to the appropriate expense accounts, except that tests to determine whether equipment meets the specifications and requirements as to efficiency, performance, etc., guaranteed by manufacturers, made after operations have commenced and within the period specified in the agreement or contract of purchase, may be charged to the appropriate gas plant account.

10. Additions and retirements of gas plant. A. For the purpose of avoiding undue refinement in accounting for additions to and retirements and replacements of gas plant, all property shall be considered as consisting of (1) retirement units and (2) minor items of property. Each utility shall use such list of retirement units as is in use by it at the effective date hereof or as may be prescribed by the Commission, with the option, however, of using smaller units, provided the utility's practice in this respect is consistent.

B. The addition and retirement of retirement units shall be accounted for as follows:

(1) When a retirement unit is added to gas plant, the cost thereof shall be added to the appropriate gas plant account, except that when units are acquired in the acquisition of any gas plant constituting an operating system, they shall be accounted for as provided in gas plant instruction 5.

(2) When a retirement unit is retired from gas plant, with or without replacement, the book cost thereof shall be credited to the gas plant account in which it is included, determined in the manner set forth in paragraph D, below. If the retirement unit is of a depreciable class, the book cost of the unit retired and credited to gas plant shall be charged to the accumulated provision for depreciation applicable to such property. The cost of removal and the salvage shall be charged or credited, as appropriate, to such depreciation account.

C. The addition and retirement of minor items of property shall be accounted for as follows:

(1) When a minor item of property which did not previously exist is added to plant, the cost thereof shall be accounted for in the same manner as for the addition of a retirement unit, as set forth in paragraph B(1), above, if a substantial addition results, otherwise the charge shall be to the appropriate maintenance expense account.

(2) When a minor item of property is retired and not replaced, the book cost thereof shall be credited to the gas plant account in which it is included; and, in the event the minor item is a part of depreciable plant, the account for accumulated provision for depreciation shall be charged with the book cost and cost of removal and credited with the salvage. If, however, the book cost of the minor item retired and not replaced has been or will be accounted for by its inclusion in the retirement unit of which it is a part when such unit is retired, no separate credit to the property account is required when such minor item is retired.

(3) When a minor item of depreciable property is replaced independently of the retirement unit of which it is a part, the cost of replacement shall be charged to the maintenance account appropriate for the item, except that if the replacement effects a substantial betterment (the primary aim of which is to make the property affected more useful, more efficient, or of greater durability, or of greater capacity), the excess cost of the replacement over the estimated cost at current prices of replacing without betterment shall be charged to the appropriate gas plant account.

D. The book cost of gas plant retired shall be the amount at which such property is included in the gas plant accounts, including all components of construction costs. The book cost shall be determined from the utility's records and if this cannot be done, it shall be estimated. When it is impracticable to determine the book cost of each unit, due to the relatively large number or small cost thereof, an appropriate average book cost of the units, with due allowance for any differences in size and character, shall be used as the book cost of the units retired.

E. The book cost of land retired shall be credited to the appropriate land account. If the land is sold, the difference between the book cost (less any accumulated provision for depreciation, depletion, or amortization therefor which has been authorized and provided) and the sale price of the land (less commissions and other expenses of making the sale) shall be included in account 434, Miscellaneous Credits to Surplus, or account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, as appropriate. If the land is not used in utility service but is retained by the utility, the book cost shall be charged to account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use, or account 121, Nonutility Property, as appropriate.

F. The book cost less net salvage of depreciable gas plant retired shall be charged in its entirety to account 108, Accumulated Provision for Depreciation of Gas Plant in Service. Any amounts which, by approval or order of the Commission, are charged to account 182, Extraordinary Property Losses, shall be credited to account 108.

G. The accounting for the retirement of amounts included in account 302, Franchises and Consents, and account 303, Miscellaneous Intangible Plant, and the items of limited-term interest in land included in the accounts for land and land rights, shall be as provided for in the text of account 111.3, Accumulated Provision for Amortization of Other Gas Plant in Service, account 404.3, Amortization of Other Limited-Term Gas Plant, and account 405, Amortization of Other Gas Plant.

11. Work order and property record system required. A. Each utility shall record all construction and retirements of gas plant by means of work orders or job orders. Separate work orders may be opened for additions to and retirements of gas plant or the retirements may be included with the construction work order, provided, however, that all items relating to the retirements shall be kept separate from those relating to construction and provided, further, that any maintenance costs involved in the work shall likewise be segregated.

B. Each utility shall keep its work order system so as to show the nature of each addition to or retirement of gas plant, the total cost thereof, the source or sources of costs, and the gas plant account or accounts to which charged or credited. Work orders covering jobs of short duration may be cleared monthly.

C. Each utility shall maintain records in which, for each plant account, the amounts of the annual additions and retirements, subsequent to the effective date of this system of accounts, are classified so as to show the number and cost of the various record units or retirement units.

12. Transfers of property. When property is transferred from one gas plant account to another, from one utility department to another, such as from gas to electric, from one operating division or area to another, to or from accounts 101, Gas Plant in Service, 104, Gas Plant Leased to Others, 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use, and 121, Nonutility Property, the transfer shall be recorded by transferring the original cost thereof from the one account, department, or location to the other. Any related amounts carried in the accounts for accumulated provisions for depreciation, depletion, or amortization shall be transferred in accordance with the segregation of such accounts.

NOTE: Amounts included in account 113.1, Accumulated Provision for Abandonment of Leases, shall not be related to a particular lease, and, therefore, shall not be transferred under the provisions of this instruction.

13. Common utility plant.

A. If the utility is engaged in more than one utility service such as gas, electric, and water, and any of its utility plant is used in common for several utility services or for other purposes to such an extent and in such manner that it is impracticable to segregate it by utility services currently in the accounts, such property, with the approval of the Commission, may be designated and classified as "common utility plant."

B. The book amount of utility plant designated as common plant shall be included in account 118, Other Utility Plant, and if applicable in part to gas department, shall be segregated and accounted for in subaccounts as gas plant is accounted for in accounts 101 to 107, inclusive, and gas plant adjustments in account 116; any amounts classifiable as common plant acquisition adjustments or common plant adjustments shall be subject to disposition as provided in paragraph C and B of accounts 114 and 116, respectively, for amounts classified in those accounts. The original cost of common utility plant in service shall be classified according to detailed utility plant accounts appropriate for the property.

C. The utility shall be prepared to show at any time and to report to the Commission annually, or more frequently, if required, and by utility plant accounts (301 to 399) the following: (1) the book cost of common utility plant, (2) the allocation of such cost to the respective departments using the common utility plant, and (3) the basis of the allocation.

D. The accumulated provision for depreciation and amortization of the utility shall be segregated so as to show the amount applicable to the property classified as common utility plant.

E. The expenses of operation, maintenance, rents, depreciation and amortization of common utility plant shall be recorded in the accounts prescribed herein, but designated as common expenses, and the allocation of such expenses to the departments using the common utility plant shall be supported in such manner as to reflect readily the basis of allocation used.

14. Transmission and distribution plant. For the purposes of this system of accounts:

A. "Transmission System" means the land, structures, mains, valves, meters, boosters, regulators, tanks, compressors and their driving units and appurtenances, and other equipment used primarily for transmitting gas from a production plant, delivery point of purchased gas, gathering system, storage area, or other wholesale source of gas, to one or more distribution areas. The transmission system begins at the outlet side of the valve at the connection to the last equipment in a manufactured gas plant, the connection to gathering lines or delivery point of purchased gas, and includes the equipment at such connection that is used to bring the gas to transmission pressure, and ends at the inlet side of the equipment which meters or regulates the entry of gas into the distribution system or into a storage area. It does not include storage land, structures or equipment. Pipeline companies, however, shall include city gate and main line industrial measuring and regulating stations in the transmission function, except that where pipeline companies measure deliveries of gas to their own distribution systems they shall have the option, if consistently observed, of including such stations either in the transmission or distribution function for the purposes of this system of accounts.

B. "Distribution System" means the mains which are provided primarily for distributing gas within a distribution area, together with land, structures, valves, regulators, services and measuring devices, including the mains for transportation of gas from production plants or points of receipt located within such distribution area to other points therein. The distribution system begins at the inlet side of the equipment which meters or regulates the entry of gas into the distribution system and ends with and includes property on the customer's premises. It does not include storage land, structures, or equipment.

C. "Distribution Area" as used herein means a metropolitan area or other urban area comprising one or more adjacent or nearby cities, villages or unincorporated areas, including developed areas contiguous to main highways.

15. Employee villages and living quarters. Where employee villages or living quarters are provided for operators and attendants of a functional installation such as a compressor station or gasoline plant, the structures and improvements shall be classified in the related functional structures and improvements account. The furnishings of such residential and recreational facilities shall be classified in the equipment account of the related function.

Operating Expense Instructions

1. Supervision and engineering. The supervision and engineering includible in the operating expense accounts shall consist of the pay and expenses of superintendents, engineers, clerks, other employees and consultants engaged in supervising and directing the operation and maintenance of each utility function. Wherever allocations are necessary in order to arrive at the amount to be included in any account the method and basis of allocation shall be reflected by underlying records.

ITEMS

Labor:
1. Special tests to determine efficiency of equipment operation.
2. Preparing or reviewing budgets, estimates, and drawings relating to operation or maintenance for departmental approval.
3. Preparing instructions for operations and maintenance activities.
4. Reviewing and analyzing operating results.
5. Establishing organizational setup of departments and executing changes therein.
6. Formulating and reviewing routines of departments and executing changes therein.
7. General training and instruction of employees by supervisors whose pay is chargeable hereto. Specific instruction and training in a particular type of work is chargeable to the appropriate functional account.
8. Secretarial work for supervisory personnel, but not general clerical and stenographic work chargeable to other accounts.

Expenses:
9. Consultants' fees and expenses.
10. Meals, traveling and incidental expenses.

2. Maintenance. A. The cost of maintenance chargeable to the various operating expense and clearing accounts includes labor, materials, overheads and other expenses incurred in maintenance work. A list of work operations applicable generally to utility plant is included hereunder. Other work operations applicable to specific classes of plant are listed in functional maintenance expense accounts.

B. Materials recovered in connection with the maintenance of property shall be credited to the same account to which the maintenance cost was charged.

C. If the book cost of any property is carried in account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or Sold, the cost of maintaining such property shall be charged to the accounts for maintenance of property of the same class and use, the book cost of which is carried in other gas plant in service accounts. Maintenance of property leased from others shall be treated as provided in operating expense instruction 3.

ITEMS

1. Direct field supervision of maintenance.
2. Inspecting, testing, and reporting on condition of plant specifically to determine the need for repairs, replacements, rearrangements and changes and inspecting and testing the adequacy of repairs which have been made.
3. Work performed specifically for the purpose of preventing failure, restoring serviceability or maintaining life of plant.
4. Rearranging and changing the location of plant not retired.
5. Repairing for reuse materials recovered from plant.
6. Testing for, locating and clearing trouble.
7. Net cost of installing, maintaining, and removing temporary facilities to prevent interruptions in service.
8. Replacing or adding minor items of plant which do not constitute a retirement unit. (See gas plant instruction 10.)

3. Rents. A. The rent expense accounts provided under the several functional groups of expense accounts shall include all rents, including taxes paid by the lessee on leased property, for property used in utility operations, except (1) minor amounts paid for occasional or infrequent use of any property or equipment and all amounts paid for use of equipment that, if owned, would be includible in plant accounts 391 to 398, inclusive, which shall be treated as an expense item and included in the appropriate functional account and (2) rents which are chargeable to clearing accounts, and distributed therefrom to the appropriate account. If rents cover property used for more than one function, such as production and transmission, or by more than one department, the rents shall be apportioned to the appropriate rent expense or clearing accounts of each department on an actual, or, if necessary, an estimated basis.

B. When a portion of property or equipment rented from others for use in connection with utility operations is subleased, the revenue derived from such subleasing shall be credited to the rent revenue account in operating revenues: Provided, however, That in case the rent was charged to a clearing account, amounts received from subleasing the property shall be credited to such clearing account.

C. The cost, when incurred by the lessee, of operating and maintaining leased property, shall be charged to the accounts appropriate for the expense if the property were owned.

D. The cost incurred by the lessee of additions and replacements to gas plant leased from others shall be accounted for as provided in gas plant instruction 6.

Including such property owned by the utility but held by nominees. (See also account 106 for unclassified construction costs of completed plant actually in service.)

B. The cost of additions to and betterments of property leased from others, which are includible in this account, shall be recorded in subdivisions separate and distinct from those relating to owned property. (See gas plant instruction 6.)

102 Gas plant purchased or sold.

A. This account shall be charged with the cost of gas plant acquired as an operating unit or system by purchase, merger, consolidation, liquidation, or otherwise, and shall be credited with the selling price of like property transferred to others pending the distribution to appropriate accounts in accordance with gas plant instruction 5.

B. Within six months from the date of acquisition or sale of property recorded herein, the utility shall file with the Commission the proposed journal entries to clear from this account the amounts recorded herein.

103 Gas plant in process of reclassification.

A. This account shall include temporarily the balance of gas plant as of the effective date of the prior system of accounts, which has not yet been reclassified as of the effective date of this system of accounts. The detailed or primary accounts in support of this account employed prior to such date shall be continued pending reclassification into the gas plant accounts herein prescribed (301–399), but shall not be used for additions, betterments, or new construction.

B. No charges other than as provided in paragraph A above, shall be made to this account, but retirements of such unclassified gas plant shall be credited hereto and to the supporting (old) fixed capital accounts until the reclassification shall have been accomplished.

104 Gas plant leased to others.

A. This account shall include the original cost of gas plant owned by the utility, but leased to others as operating units or systems, where the lessee has exclusive possession.

B. The property included in this account shall be classified according to the detailed accounts (301 to 399) prescribed for gas plant in service and this account shall be maintained in such detail as though the property were used by the owner in its utility operations.

105 Gas plant held for future use.

A. This account shall include the original cost of gas plant owned and held for future use in gas service under a definite plan for such use. There shall be included herein property acquired but never used by the utility in gas service, but held for such service in the future under a definite plan, and property previously used by the utility in gas service, but retired from such service and held pending its reuse in the future, under a definite plan, in gas service. This includes land and land rights held to insure a future supply of natural gas.

B. The property included in this account shall be classified according to the detailed accounts (301 to 399) prescribed for gas plant in service and the account shall be maintained in such detail as though the property were in service.

NOTE A. Materials and supplies, meters and house regulators held in reserve, and normal spare capacity of plant in service shall not be included in this account.

NOTE B. Include in this account natural gas wells shut in after construction which have not been connected with the line; also, natural gas wells which have been connected with the line but which are shut in for any reason excepting seasonal excess capacity or governmental proration requirements or for repairs.

106 Completed construction not classified—Gas.

At the end of the year or such other date as a balance sheet may be required by the Commission, this account shall include the total of the balances of work orders for gas plant which has been completed and placed in service but which work orders have not been classified for transfer to the detailed gas plant accounts.

NOTE. For the purpose of reporting to the Commission the classification of gas plant in service by accounts is required, the utility shall also report the balance in this account tentatively classified as accurately as practicable according to prescribed account classifications. The purpose of this provision is to avoid any significant omissions in reported amounts of gas plant in service.

107 Construction work in progress—Gas.

A. This account shall include the total of the balances of work orders for gas plant in process of construction.

B. Work orders shall be cleared from this account as soon as practicable after completion of the job. Further, if a project, such as a gas production plant, a compressor station, or a transmission line, is designed to consist of two or more units which may be placed in service at different dates, any expenditures which are common to and which will be used in the operation of the project as a whole shall be included in gas plant in service upon the completion and the readiness for service of the first unit. Any expenditures which are identified exclusively with units of property not yet in service shall be included in this account.

108 Accumulated provisions for depreciation of gas plant in service.

A. This account shall be credited with the following:

(1) Amounts charged to account 403, Depreciation Expense, to account 416, Cost and Expenses of Merchandising, Jobbing, and Contract Work or to clearing accounts for current depreciation expense.

(2) Amounts charged to account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, for past accrued depreciation.

(3) Amounts of depreciation applicable to gas properties acquired as operating units or systems. (See gas plant instruction 5.)

(4) Amounts charged to account 182, Extraordinary Property Losses, when authorized by the Commission.

(5) Amounts of depreciation applicable to gas plant donated to the utility.

B. At the time of retirement of depreciable gas plant in service, this account shall be charged with the book cost of the property retired and the cost of removal, and shall be credited with the salvage value and any other amounts recovered, such as insurance. When retirements, cost of removal and salvage are entered originally in retirement work orders, the net total of such work orders may be included in a separate subaccount hereunder. Upon completion of the work order, the proper distribution to subdivisions of this account shall be made as provided in the following paragraph.

C. For general ledger and balance sheet purposes, this account shall be regarded and treated as a single composite provision for depreciation. For purposes of analysis, however, each utility shall maintain subsidiary records in which this account is segregated according to the following functional classification for gas plant: (1) Production—manufactured gas, (2) Production and gathering—natural gas, (3) Products extraction—natural gas, (4) Underground gas storage, (5) Local storage, (6) Transmission, (7) Distribution, and (8) General. These subsidiary records shall reflect the current credits and debits to this account in sufficient detail to show separately for each such functional classification (a) the amount of provision for depreciation, (b) the book cost of property retired, (c) cost of removal, (d) salvage, and (e) other items, including recoveries from insurance.

D. When transfers of plant are made from one gas plant account to another, or from or to another utility department, or from or to nonutility property accounts, the accounting for the related accumulated provision for depreciation shall be as provided in gas plant instruction 12.

E. The utility is restricted in its use of the provision for depreciation to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer any portion of this account to surplus or make any other use thereof without authorization by the Commission.

109 Accumulated provision for depreciation of gas plant leased to others.

A. This account shall be credited with amounts charged to account 413, Expenses of Gas Plant Leased to Others, for current depreciation expense or to account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, for past accrued depreciation of property included in account 104, Gas Plant Leased to Others. Include, also, credits for depreciation applicable to plant acquired as operating units or systems, to plant donated to the utility or for losses transferred to account 182, Extraordinary Property Losses.

B. The requirements of account 108, Accumulated Provision for Depreciation of Gas Plant in Service, regarding retirements chargeable thereto and of subsidiary data to be maintained shall be applicable likewise to this account.

C. The utility is restricted in its use of the accumulated provision for depreciation to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer any portion of this account to surplus or make any other use thereof without authorization by the Commission.

110 Accumulated provision for depreciation of gas plant held for future use.

A. This account shall be credited with amounts charged to account 421, Miscellaneous Nonoperating Income, for depreciation expense on property included in account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use. Include also the balance of accumulated provision for depreciation on property which may be transferred to account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use, from other property accounts.

B. The utility is restricted in its use of the accumulated provision for depreciation to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer any portion of this account to surplus or make any other use thereof without authorization by the Commission.

NOTE: Normally, this account will not be used for current depreciation provisions because, as provided herein, the service life during which depreciation is computed commences with the date property is includible in gas plant in service. However, if special circumstances indicate the propriety of current accruals for depreciation, such charges shall be made to account 421, Miscellaneous Nonoperating Income.

111.1 Accumulated provision for amortization and depletion of producing natural gas land and land rights.

A. This account shall be credited with amounts charged to account 404.1, Amortization and Depletion of Producing Natural Gas Land and Land Rights, to provide for the current amortization and depletion of land and land rights from which natural gas is obtained. (See gas plant instruction 7–H).

B. This account shall also be credited with such amounts as are necessary to reflect, as of the effective date of this system of accounts, the portion of the cost of land and land rights which have been exhausted through the extraction of natural gas. To the extent that provision has not been made for amortization and depletion of such land and land rights, amounts credited to this account shall be concurrently debited to account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus.

C. When any property to which this account applies is sold, relinquished, or otherwise retired from service, this account shall be charged with the amount previously credited in respect to such property. The book cost of the property so retired less the amount chargeable to this account and less the net proceeds realized at retirement shall be included in account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, or account 434, Miscellaneous Credits to Surplus, as appropriate.

D. Records shall be maintained so as to show separately the balance applicable to each item of land and land rights which is being amortized or depleted, except that natural gas land and land rights which comprise an interest in a production area may be grouped to form a unit for amortization and depletion and the accumulated provision applicable thereto need not be segregated to show the amount related to each gas right included therein.

E. The utility is restricted in its use of the accumulated provision for amortization and depletion to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer any portion of this account to surplus or make any other use thereof without authorization by the Commission.

111.2 Accumulated provision for amortization of underground storage land and land rights.

A. This account shall be credited with amounts charged to account 404.2, Amortization of Underground Storage Land and Land Rights, to provide for current amortization of land and land rights utilized in connection with underground gas storage operations.

B. This account also shall include all amounts of accumulated past provisions for amortization and depletion of natural gas lands and land rights converted to underground gas storage purposes. These amounts shall be transferred to this account from other accounts in which included on conversion of such property to underground storage use.

C. When any property to which this account applies is sold, relinquished, or otherwise retired from service, this account shall be charged with the amount previously credited in respect to such property. The book cost of the property so retired less the amount chargeable to this account and less the net proceeds realized at retirement shall be included in account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, or account 434, Miscellaneous Credits to Surplus, as appropriate.

D. Records shall be maintained so as to show separately the balance applicable to each underground gas storage project.

E. The utility is restricted in its use of the provision to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer any portion of the account to surplus or make any other use thereof without authorization by the Commission.

111.3 Accumulated provision for amortization of other gas plant in service.

A. This account shall be credited with amounts charged to account 404.3, Amortization of Other Limited-Term Gas Plant for the current amortization of limited-term gas investments, or to account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, for past accrued amortization. It shall be credited also with amounts which may be charged to account 405, Amortization of Other Gas Plant, to account 425, Miscellaneous Amortization, or to account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, to amortize intangible or other gas plant which is not subject to charges for depreciation expense and for which the accumulated amortization is not includible in either of the preceding accounts.

B. When any property to which this account applies is sold, relinquished, or otherwise retired from service, this account shall be charged with the amount previously credited in respect to such property. The book cost of the property so retired less the amount chargeable to this account and less the net proceeds realized at retirement shall be included in account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, or account 434, Miscellaneous Credits to Surplus, as appropriate.

C. Records shall be maintained so as to show separately the balance applicable to each class of property which is being amortized.

D. The utility is restricted in its use of the accumulated provision for amortization to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer any portion of this account to surplus or make any other use thereof without authorization by the Commission.

112 Accumulated provision for amortization and depletion of gas plant leased to others.

A. This account shall be credited with amounts charged to account 413, Expenses of Gas Plant Leased to Others, for the current amortization and depletion of producing gas lands, limited-term, or other investments subject to amortization included in account 104, Gas Plant Leased to Others, or to account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, for past accrued amortization and depletion, including such amounts as may be applicable to underground gas storage property leased to others.

B. When any property to which this account applies is sold, relinquished, or otherwise retired from service, this account shall be charged with the amount previously credited in respect to such property. The book cost of the property so retired less the amount chargeable to this account and less the net proceeds realized at retirement shall be included in account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, or account 434, Miscellaneous Credits to Surplus, as appropriate.

C. Records shall be maintained so as to show separately the balance applicable to each class of property which is being amortized. Amounts applicable to producing natural gas lands shall be shown in a separate account.

D. The utility is restricted in its use of the accumulated provision for amortization and depletion to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer any portion of this account to surplus or make any other use thereof without authorization by the Commission.

113.1 Accumulated provision for abandonment of leases.

A. This account shall be credited with amounts concurrently charged to account 797, Abandoned Leases, for the purpose of providing for the costs of natural gas leases which may be abandoned and which have never been productive.

B. When such natural gas leases are abandoned, the cost thereof, including expenses incidental to abandonment, shall be charged to this account; provided, however, that any deficiency in this account at the time of abandonment of the lease shall be charged to account 797, Abandoned Leases.

C. Records supporting this account shall be so kept as to show for each abandoned lease the date and period thereof, location, date abandoned, and the nature and amounts of the cost.

D. The utility is restricted in its use of the accumulated provision for amortization to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer any portion of this account to surplus or make any other use thereof without authorization by the Commission.

NOTE: No provision shall be made in this account for the abandonment of producing natural gas leases, and the provisions of gas plant instruction 12, Transfers of Property, shall not apply to amounts included herein. (See account 111.1, Accumulated Provision for Amortization and Depletion of Producing Natural Gas Land and Land Rights.)

113.2 Accumulated provision for amortization of other gas plant held for future use.

A. This account shall be credited with amounts charged to account 421, Miscellaneous Nonoperating Income, for amortization expense on property included in account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use, not including, however, provisions for abandoned natural gas leases. Include, also, the balance of accumulated provision for amortization on property which may be transferred to account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use, from other property accounts.

B. The utility is restricted in its use of the accumulated provision for amortization to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer any portion of this account to surplus or make any other use thereof without authorization by the Commission.

NOTE: Normally, this account will not be used for current amortization provisions because, as provided herein, the service life during which amortization is computed commences with the date property is includible in utility plant in service. However, if special circumstances indicate the propriety of current accruals for depreciation or amortization, such charges shall be made to account 421, Miscellaneous Nonoperating Income.

114 Gas plant acquisition adjustments.

A. This account shall include the difference between (a) the cost to the accounting utility of gas plant acquired as an operating unit or system by purchase, merger, consolidation, liquidation, or otherwise, and (b) the original cost, estimated, if not known, of such property, less the amount or amounts credited by the accounting utility at the time of acquisition to accumulated provisions for depreciation, depletion, and amortization and contributions in aid of construction with respect to such property.

B. With respect to acquisitions after the effective date of this system of accounts, this account shall be subdivided so as to show the amounts included herein for each property acquisition and to gas plant in service, gas plant held for future use and gas plant leased to others. (See gas plant instruction 5.)

C. The amounts recorded in this account with respect to each property acquisition shall be amortized, or otherwise disposed of, as the Commission may approve or direct.

115 Accumulated provision for amortization of gas plant acquisition adjustments.

This account shall be credited or debited with amounts which are includible in account 406, Amortization of Gas Plant Acquisition Adjustments, account 425, Miscellaneous Amortization, or account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, for the purpose of providing for the extinguishment of amounts in account 114, Gas Plant Acquisition Adjustments, in instances where the amortization of account 114 is not being made by direct write-off of the account.

116 Other gas plant adjustments.

A. This account shall include the difference between the original cost, estimated if not known, and the book cost of gas plant to the extent that such difference is not properly includible in account 114, Gas Plant Acquisition Adjustments.

B. Amounts included in this account shall be classified in such manner as to show the origin of each amount and shall be disposed of as the Commission may approve or direct.

NOTE: The provisions of this account shall not be construed as approving or authorizing the recording of appreciation of gas plant.

117 Gas stored underground—Noncurrent.

A. This account shall include the cost of gas purchased or produced by the utility which is stored in depleted or partially depleted gas or oil fields, or other underground reservoirs, and held for use in meeting service requirements of the utility's customers.

B. Gas stored during the year shall be priced at cost according to generally accepted methods of cost determination consistently applied from year to year. Transmission expenses for facilities of the utility used in moving the gas to the storage area and expenses of storage facilities shall not be included in the inventory of gas except as may be authorized or directed by the Commission.

NOTE B–1: In general, gas stored from the supply in an integrated system shall be priced at the average cost of the gas constituting the common supply of the system, although this general rule may be departed from where conditions of system operation of gas supply and utilization permit a valid presumption that the gas stored may be considered to be from specified sources, as indicated below.

NOTE B–2: When in harmony with the over-all system operation of gas supply and utilization, and the presumption is consistently observed from year to year, gas stored during the year may be presumed to be from total gas purchases, or from purchases from specified sources. When either of these presumptions is proper, the cost of gas stored shall be priced at the weighted average cost of all gas purchased, or at the weighted average cost of purchases from the specified sources, as appropriate. The weighted average cost may be the average for the preceding twelve months, except where a significant change occurs in the cost of gas, the full effect of such change shall be reflected for the period after the change is effective.

NOTE B–3: When in harmony with the over-all system operation of gas supply and utilization, and the presumptions are consistently observed from year to year, gas stored during the year may be presumed to be from identified sources of the utility's own production. Such stored gas shall be priced at the weighted average cost of gas produced from the specified production areas. Where this presumption is made, or where the stored gas is identified as a matter of fact under circumstances which do not permit a proper application of the theory of displacement, the utility shall maintain separate records of the cost of gas produced from such areas and the derivation of the cost used for stored gas from such sources.

NOTE B–4: Where gas is purchased specifically for storage, or a price concession received because of the storing of purchased gas, such gas shall be priced at the net contract price of the gas so purchased and stored.

NOTE B–5: The provisions of this instruction and the related footnotes shall not be construed as permitting or authorizing a restatement of the amounts at which stored gas inventories are stated on the utility's books at the effective date of this instruction, except as may be authorized by the Commission.

C. Withdrawals of gas may be priced according to the first-in-first-out, last-in-first-out, or weighted average cost method, in connection with which a "base stock" may be employed provided the method adopted by the utility is used consistently from year to year and the inventory records are maintained in accordance therewith. Approval of the Commission must be obtained for any other pricing method, or change in the pricing method adopted by the utility.

D. If the gas of any storage project is withdrawn below the amount established as "base stock" or encroaches upon native gas of a storage reservoir, and such gas is to be replaced within 12 months, it shall be permissible to price such gas at the estimated cost of replacement with purchased gas and to record a deferred credit therefor. For the purpose of this instruction, account 808, Gas Withdrawn from Underground Storage—Debit, shall be charged with the estimated cost of such replacement gas and account 253, Other Deferred Credits, credited. When replacement of the gas is made the amount in account 253 shall be cleared and this account credited. This accounting will not affect normal accounting for inputs and withdrawals from storage.

E. Separate records shall be maintained for each storage project of the Mcf of gas delivered to storage, withdrawn from storage, and remaining in storage. The projects shall be grouped, however, for the purpose of maintaining inventory cost records of the cost of gas in storage. Exceptions to this general rule are permitted in any of the following circumstances:

(a) Projects at the supply end of long transmission lines,

(b) Projects located on separate noninterconnected pipeline systems, and

(c) Projects which by contractual arrangements approved by the Commission are devoted exclusively to the service of specified customers, and no portion of the gas withdrawals from any such project becomes part of the common system gas supply by displacement or otherwise.

Where the utility establishes specified volumes of gas as "base stock," separate inventory cost records by projects shall be maintained therefor.

F. Amounts debited to this account for gas placed in storage shall be credited to account 809, Gas Delivered to Underground Storage—Credit. Amounts credited to this account for gas withdrawn from storage shall be debited to account 808, Gas Withdrawn from Underground Storage—Debit.

G. Adjustments for inventory losses due to cumulative inaccuracies of gas measurements, or from other causes, shall be charged to account 823, Gas Losses. (See, however, general instruction 7, Delayed Items, for any loss so large as to cause distortion of the accounts.) In the operation of storage projects the utility shall maintain such procedures of verification as will disclose and result in prompt accounting recognition of significant losses.

This account shall be credited with an amount equal to that debited to account 164, Gas Stored Underground—Current, to classify for balance sheet purposes such portion of the total inventory of gas stored underground as constitutes a current asset according to conventional rules for classification of current assets. (See account 164.)

NOTE: If with respect to any storage reservoir, the utility determines that a portion of the stored gas included in this account will not eventually be fully recovered, it may submit for consideration of the Commission, a plan to create a reserve to provide for such anticipated gas losses.

118 Other utility plant.

This account shall include the balance in accounts for utility plant, other than gas plant, such as electric, railway, etc.

119 Accumulated provision for depreciation and amortization of other utility plant.

This account shall include the accumulated provision for depreciation and amortization applicable to utility property other than gas plant.

2. OTHER PROPERTY AND INVESTMENTS

A. This account shall include the book cost of land, structures, equipment or other tangible or intangible property owned by the utility, but not used in utility service and not properly includible in account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use.

B. This account shall be subdivided so as to show the amount of property used in operations which are nonutility in character but nevertheless constitute a distinct operating activity of the company (such as operation of an ice department where such activity is not classed as a utility) and the amount of miscellaneous property not used in operations. The records in support of each subaccount shall be maintained so as to show an appropriate classification of the property.

NOTE C: Balances in open accounts with associated companies, which are subject to current settlement, are includible in account 146, Accounts Receivable from Associated Companies.

NOTE D: The utility may write down the cost of any security in recognition of a decline in the value thereof. Securities shall be written off or written down to a nominal value if there be no reasonable prospect of substantial value. Fluctuations in market value shall not be recorded but a permanent impairment in the value of securities shall be recognized in the accounts. When securities are written off or written down, the amount of the adjustment shall be charged to account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, or to an appropriate account for accumulated provisions for loss in value established as a separate subdivision of this account.

124 Other investments.

A. This account shall include the book cost of investments in securities issued or assumed by nonassociated companies, investment advances to such companies, and any investments not accounted for elsewhere. B. The cost of capital stock of the utility reacquired by it under a definite plan for resale pursuant to authorization by the Board of Directors may, if permitted by statutes, be included in a separate subdivision of this account. (See also account 210, Gain on Resale or Cancellation of Reacquired Capital Stock, and account 217, Reacquired Capital Stock.

C. The records shall be maintained in such manner as to show the amount of each investment and the investment advances to each person.

NOTE A: Securities owned and pledged shall be included in this account, but securities held in special deposits or in special funds shall be included in appropriate deposit or fund accounts. A complete record of securities pledged shall be maintained.

NOTE B: Securities held as temporary cash investments shall not be included in this account.

NOTE C: See Note D of account 123.

125 Sinking funds.

This account shall include the amount of cash and book cost of investments held in sinking funds. A separate account, with appropriate title, shall be kept for each sinking fund. 126 Depreciation fund.

This account shall include the amount of cash and the book cost of investments which have been segregated in a special fund for the purpose of identifying such assets with the accumulated provisions for depreciation.

128 Other special funds.

This account shall include the amount of cash and book cost of investments which have been segregated in special funds for insurance, employee pensions, savings, relief, hospital, and other purposes not provided for elsewhere. A separate account, with appropriate title, shall be kept for each fund.

There shall not be included in the group of accounts designated as current and accrued assets any item, the amount or collectibility of which is not reasonably assured, unless an adequate provision for possible loss has been made therefor. Items of current character but of doubtful value may be written down and for record purposes carried in these accounts at nominal value.

131 Cash.

This account shall include the amount of current cash funds except working funds.

132 Interest special deposits.

152 Fuel stock expenses undistributed.

A. This account may include the cost of labor and of supplies used and expenses incurred in unloading fuel from the shipping medium and in the handling thereof prior to its use, if such expenses are sufficiently significant in amount to warrant being treated as a part of the cost of fuel inventory rather than being charged direct to expense as incurred.

B. Amounts included herein shall be charged to expense as the fuel is used to the end that the balance herein shall not exceed the expenses attributable to the inventory of fuel on hand.

ITEMS

Labor:
1. Procuring and handling of fuel.
2. All routine fuel analyses.
3. Unloading from shipping facility and putting in storage.
4. Moving of fuel in storage and transferring from one station to another.

NOTE: It shall not be considered conformity to conventional rules of current asset classification if the amount included in this account exceeds an amount equal to the cost of estimated withdrawals of gas from storage for purposes of sale within the 24-month period from date of the balance sheet, or if the amount represents a volume of gas which, in fact, could not be withdrawn from storage without impairing the pressure level of any project for normal operating purposes.

181 Unamortized debt discount and expense.

A. This account shall include the total of the debit balances in the discount, expense, and premium accounts for all classes of long-term debt, determined as provided in the following paragraphs of this account.

B. A discount, expense, and premium account shall be maintained for each class and series of long-term debt (including receivers' certificates) issued or assumed by the utility, in which shall be recorded the discount, expense, and premium associated with the issuance and sale of each such class and series of debt. In stating the balance sheet, the total of the debit balances remaining in those accounts having debit balances shall be reported under this account and the total of credit balances remaining in those accounts having credit balances shall be reported under account 251, Unamortized Premium on Debt. Accounts with debit balances shall not be set off against accounts with credit balances.

C. The discount, expense, and premium shall be amortized over the life of the respective issues under a plan which will distribute the amounts equitably over the life of the securities. The amortization shall be on a monthly basis, and the amounts thereof shall be charged to account 428, Amortization of Debt Discount and Expense, or credited to account 429, Amortization of Premium on Debt.—Cr., as may be appropriate. The utility may, however, accelerate the writing off of discount and expense where the amounts are insignificant.

D. When any long-term debt is reacquired or redeemed without being converted into another form of long-term debt and when the transaction is not in connection with a refunding operation, the difference between the amount paid upon reacquirement and the face value plus the unamortized premium or less the unamortized discount and expense, as the case may be, applicable to the debt redeemed, retired and canceled, shall be included in account 434, Miscellaneous Credits to Surplus, or account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, as appropriate.

E. When the redemption of one issue or series of bonds or other long-term obligations is financed by another issue or series before the maturity date of the first issue, account 434, Miscellaneous Credits to Surplus or account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, shall be credited or debited, as appropriate, with any unamortized discount, expense, or premium on the first issue and any premium paid or discount earned on the redemption. If the utility desires to amortize any of the discount, expense, or premium associated with the issuance or redemption of the first issue over a period subsequent to the date of redemption, the permission of the Commission must be obtained; provided, however, that special permission of the Commission shall not be necessary, if the utility proceeds with a plan of disposition of the discount, expense, and redemption premiums associated with the refunded bonds, as follows:

(1) A special charge is recorded in the year of refunding in account 428, Amortization of Debt Discount and Expense, equal to the saving in income taxes arising from the refunding transactions;

(2) There is charged to account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, in the year of refunding, any amounts of unamortized discount and expenses or redemption premiums relating to bonds or other long-term obligations previously refunded by the refunded bonds under immediate consideration, such amounts sometimes being referred to as "grandfather items"; and,

(3) The utility proceeds to amortize by equal monthly charges, from the date of refunding, the remainder of the charges associated with the refunded bonds, over a period not longer than that in which the saving in net annual interest and amortization charges equals the remainder of charges to be amortized, after taking into consideration the estimated additional taxes on income attributable to the saving in net annual interest and amortization charges.

F. Discount, expense, or premium on debt shall not be included as part of the cost of constructing or acquiring any property, tangible or intangible, except under the provisions of account 432, Interest Charged to Construction—Cr.

182 Extraordinary property losses.

A. When authorized or directed by the Commission, this account shall include extraordinary losses on property abandoned or otherwise retired from service which are not provided for by the accumulated provisions for depreciation or amortization and which could not reasonably have been foreseen and provided for, and extraordinary losses, such as unforeseen damages to property, which could not reasonably have been anticipated and which are not covered by insurance or other provisions.

B. The entire cost, less net salvage, of depreciable property retired shall be charged to accumulated provision for depreciation. If all, or a portion, of the loss is to be included in this account, the accumulated provision for depreciation shall then be credited and this account charged with the amount properly chargeable hereto.

C. Application to the Commission for permission to use this account shall be accompanied by a statement giving a complete explanation with respect to the items which it is proposed to include herein, the period over which, and the accounts to which it is proposed to write off the charges, and other pertinent information.

If the project is abandoned, the expenditures related thereto shall be charged to account 798, Other Exploration.

B. The records supporting the entries to this account shall be so kept that the utility can furnish, for each investigation, complete information as to the identification and location of territory investigated, the number or other identification assigned to the land tract or leasehold acquired, and the nature and respective amounts of the charges.

NOTE: The amount of preliminary survey and investigation charges transferred to gas plant shall not exceed the expenditures which may reasonably be determined to contribute directly and immediately and without duplication to gas plant.

183.2 Other preliminary survey and investigation charges.

A. This account shall be charged with all expenditures for preliminary surveys, plans, investigations, etc., made for the purpose of determining the feasibility of utility projects under contemplation, other than the acquisition of land and land rights to provide a future supply of natural gas. If construction results, this account shall be credited and the appropriate utility plant account charged. If the work is abandoned, the charge shall be made to account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, or the appropriate operating expense account.

A. This account shall include all operating reserves maintained by the utility which are not provided for elsewhere.

B. This account shall be maintained in such manner as to show the amount of each separate reserve and the nature and amounts of the debits and credits thereto.

NOTE: This account includes only such reserves as may be created for operating purposes and does not include any reservations of income the credits of which should be carried in account 215, Appropriated Earned Surplus.

10. Contributions in Aid of Construction

271 Contributions in aid of construction.

A. This account shall include donations or contributions in cash, services, or property from States, municipalities or other governmental agencies, individuals, and others for construction purposes.

B. The credits to this account shall not be transferred to earned surplus or to any other account without approval of the Commission.

C. The records supporting the entries to this account shall be so kept that the utility can furnish information as to the purpose of each donation, the conditions, if any, upon which it was made, the amount of donations from (a) States, (b) municipalities, (c) customers, and (d) others, and the amount applicable to each utility department.

NOTE. There shall not be included in this account advances for construction which are ultimately to be repaid wholly or in part. (See account 252, Customer Advances for Construction.)

11. Accumulated Deferred Income Taxes

NOTE A: The text of accounts below are designed primarily to cover deferrals of Federal income taxes arising under provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 but the accounts are also applicable to deferrals of State taxes on income.

NOTE B: Natural Gas Companies which, in addition to a gas utility department, have another utility department, electric, water, etc., and which have deferred taxes on income with respect thereto shall classify such deferrals in the accounts provided below under subdivisions for each utility department.

281 Accumulated deferred income taxes—Accelerated amortization.

A. This account shall be credited and account 410, Provision for Deferred Income Taxes, shall be debited with an amount equal to that by which taxes on income payable for the year are lower because of the use of accelerated (5-year) amortization of certified defense facilities in computing such taxes, as permitted by Section 168 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (Section 124A of previous Internal Revenue Code), as compared to the depreciation (deduction) otherwise appropriate and allowable for tax purposes according to the straight line or other nonaccelerated depreciation method and appropriate estimated useful life for such property.

B. This account shall be debited and account 411, Income Taxes Deferred in Prior Years—Credit, shall be credited with an amount equal to that by which taxes on income payable for the year are greater because of the use in prior year of accelerated (5-year) amortization of certified defense facilities instead of nonaccelerated depreciation otherwise appropriate for income tax purposes, and deferral of taxes in such prior years as described in paragraph A, above. Such debit to this account and credit to account 411 shall, in general, represent the effect on taxes payable for the current year of the unavailability of a depreciation deduction for tax purposes, or a reduced amount, with respect to any depreciable property for which accelerated amortization was used in prior years, as compared to the depreciation deduction otherwise available and appropriate for such property, considering its estimated useful life, according to the depreciation method ordinarily used by the utility for similar property in computing depreciation for tax purposes by a nonaccelerated or nonliberalized depreciation method.

C. Records with respect to entries to this account, as described above, and the account balance, shall be so maintained as to show the factors of calculation and the separate amounts applicable to the facilities of each certification or authorization of accelerated amortization for tax purposes.

D. The use of this account and the accounting described above are not mandatory for any utility which, in accordance with a consistent policy, elects not to follow deferred tax accounting even though accelerated amortization is used in computing taxes on income. If, however, deferred tax accounting is initiated with respect to any certified defense facility, the accounting shall not be suspended or discontinued on the property covered by that certificate, without approval of the Commission.

E. The utility is restricted in its use of this account to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer the balance in this account or any portion thereof to surplus or make any use thereof except as provided in the text of this account without prior approval of the Commission. Any remaining balance of accumulated deferred taxes with respect to any certified defense facility for which deferred tax accounting has been followed shall, upon expiration of the estimated useful life of the facility on which deferred tax calculations were based, or upon retirement from service of such facility or predominant part thereof, be credited to account 411, Income Taxes Deferred in Prior Years—Credit, or otherwise be applied as the Commission may authorize or direct.

282 Accumulated deferred income taxes—Liberalized depreciation.

A. This account shall be credited and account 410, Provision for Deferred Income Taxes, shall be debited with an amount equal to that by which taxes on income payable for the year are lower because of the use of liberalized depreciation in computing such taxes, as permitted by Section 167 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as compared to the depreciation deduction otherwise appropriate and allowable for tax purposes for similar property of the same estimated useful life according to the straight line or other nonliberalized method of depreciation.

B. This account shall be debited and account 411, Income Taxes Deferred in Prior Years—Credit, shall be credited with an amount equal to that by which taxes on income payable for the year are greater because of the use in prior years of liberalized depreciation for income tax purposes, and deferral of taxes in such prior years as described in paragraph A above. Such debit to this account and credit to account 411, shall, in general, represent the effect on taxes payable for the current year of the smaller amount of depreciation permitted for tax purposes for the current year with respect to any depreciable property for which liberalized depreciation was used in prior years, as compared to the depreciation deduction otherwise appropriate and available for similar property of the same estimated useful life according to the straight line or other nonliberalized depreciation method ordinarily used by the utility in computing depreciation for tax purposes.

C. Records with respect to entries to this account, as described above, and account balance, shall be so maintained as to show the factors of calculation and the separate amounts applicable to the plant additions of each vintage year for each class, group, or unit as to which different liberalized depreciation methods and estimated useful lives have been used. The underlying calculations to segregate and associate deferred tax amounts with the respective vintage years may be based on reasonable methods of approximation, if necessary, consistently applied.

D. The use of this account and the accounting described above are not mandatory for any utility, which in accordance with a consistent policy, elects not to follow deferred tax accounting even though liberalized depreciation is used in computing taxes on income. If, however, deferred tax accounting is initiated with respect to any property, such accounting shall not be discontinued on that property without approval of the Commission.

E. The utility is restricted in its use of this account to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer the balance in the account or any portion thereof to surplus or make any use thereof except as provided in the text of this account without prior approval of the Commission. Any remaining deferred tax reserve balance with respect to any year's plant additions or subdivisions thereof for which liberalized depreciation accounting has been followed or, upon retirement from service of such property or predominant portion thereof, or upon expiration of the estimated useful life on which the depreciation calculations for tax purposes are based, shall be credited to account 411, Income Taxes Deferred in Prior Years—Credit, or otherwise applied as the Commission may authorize or direct.

283 Accumulated deferred income taxes—Other.

A. This account, when its use has been authorized by the Commission for specific types of tax deferrals, shall be credited and account 410, Provision for Deferred Income Taxes, shall be debited with an amount equal to that by which taxes on income payable for the year are lower because of the current use of deductions other than accelerated amortization or liberalized depreciation in the computation of income taxes, which deductions for general accounting purposes will not be fully reflected in the utility's determination of annual net income until subsequent years.

B. This account when its use has been authorized by the Commission, shall be debited and account 411, Income Taxes Deferred in Prior Years—Credit, shall be credited with an amount equal to that by which taxes on income payable for the year are greater because of deferral of taxes on income in previous years, as provided by paragraph A, above, because of difference in timing for tax purposes of particular income deductions from that recognized by the utility for general accounting purposes, other than with respect to accelerated amortization or liberalized depreciation. Such debit to this account and credit to account 411 shall, in general, represent the effect on taxes payable in the current year of the smaller deduction permitted for tax purposes as compared to the amount recognized in the utility's general accounts with respect to the item or class of items for which deferred tax accounting by the utility was authorized by the Commission.

C. Records with respect to entries to this account, as described above, and the account balance, shall be so maintained as to show the factors of calculation with respect to each annual amount of the item or class of items, other than accelerated amortization or liberalized depreciation, for which tax deferral accounting by the utility is authorized by the Commission.

D. The utility is restricted in its use of this account to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer the balance in the accounts or any portion thereof to surplus or make any use thereof except as provided in the text of this account, without prior approval of the Commission. Any remaining deferred tax account balance with respect to an amount for any prior year's tax deferral, the amortization of which or other recognition in the utility's income accounts has been completed, or other disposition made, shall be credited to account 411, Income Taxes Deferred in Prior Years—Credit, or otherwise disposed of as the Commission may authorize or direct.

NOTE: In determining appropriate use of this account as a basis of request to the Commission for authorization of its use, consideration shall be given to the relative importance of the amount involved, and to other items in the utility's accounts where "prepaid tax accounting" may be appropriate, such as situations (a) where the time of taking a deduction in computing taxes on income is such that the tax deduction must be delayed or applied to a series of future years as opposed to earlier recognition of such item in determination of income in the general accounts of the utility, or (b) where inclusion of an income item is required for tax purposes but is to be recognized in whole or in part in the utility's income accounts of a subsequent year or years.

PART 517—FRUITS AND BERRIES, FRESH

Subpart—Cranberry Payment Program AMM 181a

The following interpretations and amendments are issued for the purpose of effecting clarification and revision of, and additions to, the program terms and conditions:

Sec.
517.489 Sales on or before November 9, 1959.
517.490 Other sales.
517.491 Cranberries consigned.
517.492 Disposition of both screened and unscreened berries.
517.493 Shrinkage.
517.494 Marketing and operating costs.

AUTHORITY: §§ 517.489 to 517.494 issued under sec. 32, 49 Stat. 774, as amended; 7 U.S.C. 612c.

§ 517.489 Sales on or before November 9, 1950.

Notwithstand any other provision of this subpart, any grower who, on or before November 9, 1959, sold all of his 1959-crop cranberries at a fixed price shall not be eligible for any payment under this program, even though he may not have received all or part of the sales price therefor.

§ 517.490 Other sales.

In cases in which a grower, or an association of growers operating under a pooling arrangement (hereinafter in this section included with the term "grower"), did not sell the grower's entire crop on or before November 9, 1959, the following provisions shall apply:

(a) Sales for a fixed price where title has passed. If a grower has sold his cranberries for a fixed price to a handler or processor and title to the cranberries has passed, this transaction has been completed. It is immaterial whether or not the handler or processor has disposed of the cranberries. If the grower received total payments of $10.34 or more a barrel for screened berries or $9.74 or more a barrel for unscreened berries, he is not eligible for payment under cranberry program. If he received total payments amounting to less than $10.34 per barrel for screened berries or $9.74 per barrel for unscreened berries, he may apply for payment under the program. If he received only a part payment in cash and has an account receivable for the balance of the sales price, he is not eligible to apply for payment under the program, unless the total of the cash payment received and the account receivable is less than $10.34 per barrel for screened berries and $9.74 for unscreened berries.

(b) Deliveries where title has not passed. If any cranberries have been delivered by the grower to a handler or processor under arrangements whereby title to such berries has not passed to the handler or processor, and whereby the grower has received no payment or only an advance payment of a portion of an anticipated ultimate sales price for such berries, and further payment is dependent upon disposition of such berries by the handler or processor, the grower may take back such quantity of such fresh or frozen cranberries which the handler or processor still has on hand as is necessary to effect a complete or partial settlement of the transaction, without refund of any advance payment. The berries must be taken back either physically or by obtaining a warehouse receipt therefor. If the grower does this, he is eligible to apply for payment on such cranberries under the program.

(c) Sales on an adjustable price basis. If berries have been sold to a handler or processor on an adjustable price basis, and the berries have been canned or disposed of in commercial channels of trade, the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, will recognize an adjustment in accounts receivable, if (1) provision for such adjustment in the price of cranberries was included as a term of the sales agreement, (2) the grower furnishes satisfactory evidence of such provision, and (3) the adjustment is made in accordance therewith.

(d) Indefinite or borderline cases. In indefinite or borderline cases, growers should make individual application and give a full recitation of facts.

§ 517.491 Cranberries consigned.

If a grower has consigned cranberries to an agent for disposition other than under a pooling arrangement, the grower's signature, and not that of the agent, must appear on the application and on the invoices, although the grower's agent may fill out the forms. This must be handled on an individual grower basis and not under a pooling arrangement.

§ 517.492 Disposition of both screened and unscreened berries.

The grower or the grower's representative who disposes of part of the crop as screened berries and part of the crop as unscreened berries is entitled to an advance payment of not more than $4.00 per barrel and total payments of not more than $8.02 per barrel when the net proceeds of all sales of screened and unscreened berries are less than the sum obtained by adding the products of (a) the total number of barrels of screened berries harvested multiplied by $10.34, and (b) the total number of barrels of unscreened berries harvested multiplied by $9.74. This sum will be the amount shown in item 3 of the Invoice for Advance Payment.

§ 517.493 Shrinkage.

Shrinkage is the loss of weight after harvest caused by dehydration and spoilage. Shrinkage may occur prior to screening, or on screened cranberries held in fresh form, or on frozen cranberries in storage. The weight of such shrinkage may be listed, on an equivalent screened basis, as "shrinkage" under item 4(b) on Invoice for Advance Payment if the records of the grower or his representative show actual shrinkage. On the Invoice for Final Payment, however, any shrinkage shown under item 4(b) shall be only the shrinkage on the quantity of cranberries disposed of and shall not include shrinkage on cranberries on hand as of time of preparation of the invoice or at close of business October 31, 1960, whichever is earlier.

§ 517.494 Marketing and operating costs.

Marketing and operating costs shown in item 4(c) on invoices for payment with respect to screened berries shown in item 1a of the application shall not include the cost of screening. The 60-cent differential between screened and unscreened berries, as provided in the terms and conditions of the program, covers the cost of screening; therefore, marketing and operating costs on screened berries begin after screening.

Effective date. This amendment shall become effective June 21, 1960.

Dated this 17th day of June 1960.

FLOYD F. HEDLUND,
Authorized Representative of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Title 8—ALIENS AND NATIONALITY

Chapter I—Immigration and Naturalization Service, Department of Justice

PART 245—ADJUSTMENT OF STATUS OF NONIMMIGRANT TO THAT OF A PERSON ADMITTED FOR PERMANENT RESIDENCE

Application

The following amendment to Chapter I of Title 8 of the Code of Federal Regulations is hereby prescribed:

The first sentence of § 245.1 Application is amended to read as follows: "An alien whose deportability has not been established in proceedings under Part 242 of this chapter subsequent to January 1, 1960, may if he believes he meets the eligibility requirement of section 245 of the Act, file an application Form I-485 with the district director in whose district he resides."

(Sec. 103, 66 Stat. 173; 8 U.S.C. 1103)

This order shall become effective on the date of its publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Compliance with the provisions of section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 238; 5 U.S.C. 1003) as to notice of proposed rule making and delayed effective date is unnecessary in this instance because the rule prescribed by the order confers benefits upon the persons affected thereby.

Dated: June 17, 1960.

J. M. SWING,
Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization.

PART 600—DESIGNATION OF FEDERAL AIRWAYS

PART 601—DESIGNATION OF THE CONTINENTAL CONTROL AREA, CONTROL AREAS, CONTROL ZONES, REPORTING POINTS, AND POSITIVE CONTROL ROUTE SEGMENTS

Modification

On March 5, 1960, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (25 F.R. 1956) stating that the Federal Aviation Agency proposed to modify VOR Federal airway No. 1 and the west alternate to Victor 1 between Wilmington, N.C., and Cofield, N.C., via a VOR to be installed near Kinston, N.C.

Although not mentioned in the Notice, this action will eliminate the requirement for the Kinston intersection as a designated reporting point. In lieu thereof, the Kinston VOR is being designated as a reporting point. Therefore § 601.7001 of the regulations of the Administrator, relating to domestic VOR reporting points, is being amended herein.

No adverse comments were received regarding the proposed amendments.

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of the rules herein adopted, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented.

The substance of the proposed amendments having been published, therefore, pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (24 F.R. 4530) and for the reasons stated in the notice, the following actions are taken:

In the text of § 600.6001 (24 F.R. 10503), "Wilmington, N.C., VOR; INT of the Wilmington VOR 014° and the Cofield VOR 209° radials; Cofield, N.C., VOR, including a west alternate from the Wilmington VOR to the Cofield VOR via the point of INT of the Wilmington VOR 352° with the Myrtle Beach, S.C., VOR 033° radials and the INT of the Wilmington VOR 014° and the Cofield VOR 209° radials; Norfolk, Va., VOR; Cape Charles, Va., VOR; INT of the Cape Charles VOR 008° and the Salisbury VOR 206° radials;" is deleted and "Wilmington, N.C., VORTAC; Kinston, N.C., VOR, including a west alternate from the Wilmington VORTAC to the Kinston VOR via the INT of the Wilmington VORTAC 352° True and the Kinston VOR 214° True radials; Cofield, N.C., VOR; Norfolk, Va., VORTAC; Cape Charles, Va., VORTAC; INT of the Cape Charles VORTAC 008° True and the Salisbury VOR 206° True radials;" is substituted therefor.

In the text of § 601.7001 (24 F.R. 10606), "Kinson INT: The INT of the New Bern, N.C., VOR 305° T and the Rocky Mount, N.C., VOR 169° T radials." is deleted and "Kinston, N.C., VOR." is substituted therefor.

These amendments shall become effective 0001 e.s.t. August 25, 1960.

PART 601—DESIGNATION OF THE CONTINENTAL CONTROL AREA, CONTROL AREAS, CONTROL ZONES, REPORTING POINTS, AND POSITIVE CONTROL ROUTE SEGMENTS

Modification

On March 5, 1960, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (25 F.R. 1963) stating that the Federal Aviation Agency proposed to modify the east alternate to VOR Federal airway No. 51 and associated control areas between Jacksonville, Fla., and Macon, Ga.

No adverse comments were received regarding the proposed amendments.

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of the rules herein adopted, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented.

The substance of the proposed amendments having been published, therefore, pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (24 F.R. 4530) and for the reasons stated in the notice, the following action is taken:

§ 600.6051 [Amendment]

1. In the text of § 600.6051 (24 F.R. 10511, 10876, 25 F.R. 629, 2011), "Alma, Ga., VOR, including a west alternate; Macon, Ga., VOR, including an east alternate from the Jacksonville VOR to the Macon VOR via the INT of the Jacksonville VOR 334° and the Macon VOR 125° radials;" is deleted and "Alma, Ga., VOR, including an E alternate via the INT of the Jacksonville VORTAC 334° True and the Alma VOR 133° True radials and also a W alternate; Macon, Ga., VORTAC;" is substituted therefor.

2. Section 601.6051 (24 F.R. 10599) is amended to read:

PART 600—DESIGNATION OF FEDERAL AIRWAYS

PART 601—DESIGNATION OF THE CONTINENTAL CONTROL AREA, CONTROL AREAS, CONTROL ZONES, REPORTING POINTS, AND POSITIVE CONTROL ROUTE SEGMENTS

Modification of Federal Airways and Associated Control Areas

On February 18, 1960, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (25 F.R. 1468) stating that the Federal Aviation Agency proposed to modify VOR Federal airway No. 3 from the Rancho, Fla., intersection to West Palm Beach, Fla., and the east alternate between Biscayne Bay, Fla., and West Palm Beach, Fla. Additionally, a west alternate to VOR Federal airway No. 293 was proposed between West Palm Beach, Fla., and La Belle, Fla.

The notice stated that if this action was taken, a west alternate to VOR Federal airway No. 298 between West Palm Beach and La Belle would be designated. This is in error and should have read: a west alternate to VOR Federal airway No. 293 between West Palm Beach and La Belle would be designated. This change, minor in nature, will be reflected in the appropriate amendment.

No adverse comments were received regarding the proposed amendments.

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of the rule herein adopted, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented.

The substance of the proposed amendments having been published, therefore, pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (24 F.R. 4530) and for the reasons stated in the notice, the following actions are taken:

§ 600.6003 [Amendment]

1. In the text of § 600.6003 (24 F.R. 10503, 25 F.R. 2011, 25 F.R. 2662) "Intersection of the Miami omnirange 205° radial and the Miami International Airport ILS localizer west course; Miami, Fla., International Airport ILS localizer; intersection of the Miami International Airport ILS localizer east course and the West Palm Beach omnirange 183° radial; West Palm Beach, Fla., omnirange station, including an east alternate from the intersection of the Miami International Airport ILS localizer east course and the West Palm Beach omnirange 183° radial to the West Palm Beach omnirange station via the intersection of the Miami International Airport ILS localizer east course with the Biscayne Bay, Fla., omnirange 021° radial, and the intersection of the Biscayne Bay omnirange 021° with the West Palm Beach omnirange 168° radial;" is deleted and "INT of the Miami VORTAC 205° True and the Biscayne Bay, Fla., VOR 262° True radials; Biscayne Bay VOR; West Palm Beach, Fla., VORTAC, including an east alternate via the INT of the Biscayne Bay VOR 021° True and the West Palm Beach VORTAC 166° True radials;" is substituted therefor.

2. Section 600.6293 (24 F.R. 10525) is amended to read:

§ 600.6293 VOR Federal airway No. 293 (West Palm Beach, Fla., to St. Petersburg, Fla.).

From the West Palm Beach, Fla., VORTAC via the Pahokee, Fla., VOR; La Belle, Fla., VOR including a west alternate from the West Palm Beach VORTAC to the La Belle VOR via the INT of the West Palm Beach VORTAC 266° True and the La Belle VOR 112° True radials; to the St. Petersburg, Fla., VOR.

3. Section 601.6293 (24 F.R. 10605) is amended to read:

Designation of Control Zone

On April 13, 1960, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (25 F.R. 3179) stating that the Federal Aviation Agency proposed to designate a control zone at New Iberia, La.

No adverse comments were received regarding the proposed amendment.

Interested persons have been afforded opportunity to participate in the making of the rule herein adopted, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented.

The substance of the proposed amendment having been published, therefore, pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (24 F.R. 4530) and for the reasons stated in the notice, Part 601 (24 F.R. 10530) is amended as follows:

§ 601.2469 New Iberia, La., control zone.

Within a five-mile radius of the geographical center of the New Iberia, La., NAAS (latitude 30°02'15" N., longitude 91°53'02" W.), within two miles either side of the 158° True radial of the New Iberia TACAN, extending from the 5-mile radius zone to a point 10 miles SE of the TACAN, and excluding the portion which coincides with the Lafayette, La., control zone (§ 601.2263).

PART 601—DESIGNATION OF THE CONTINENTAL CONTROL AREA, CONTROL AREAS, CONTROL ZONES, REPORTING POINTS, AND POSITIVE CONTROL ROUTE SEGMENTS

Modification of Control Zone

On December 29, 1959, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (24 F.R. 10916) stating that the Federal Aviation Agency was considering amendments to Part 601 and § 601.1964 of the regulations of the Administrator which would modify the King Salmon, Alaska, control zone.

As stated in the notice, the present King Salmon control zone is designated as a 5-mile radius zone centered on the King Salmon Airport. The Federal Aviation Agency proposed modifying the King Salmon control zone to include an extension within 2 miles either side of the 123° True and 303° True radials of a VORTAC to be installed approximately June 15, 1960, near King Salmon at latitude 58°43'31" N., longitude 156°45'00" W., extending from the 5-mile radius zone to a point 10 miles northwest of the VORTAC. This modification would provide additional controlled airspace for protection of aircraft conducting instrument approaches to and departing from the King Salmon Airport.

On March 24, 1960, a modified notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (25 F.R. 2497) stating that the Federal Aviation Agency was amending its original proposal. This amended proposal would modify the King Salmon control zone to include an extension within 2 miles either side of the 132° True and 312° True radials of the VORTAC extending from the 5-mile radius zone to a point 12 miles northwest of the VORTAC, instead of within 2 miles either side of the 123° True and 303° True radials extending from the 5-mile radius zone to a point 10 miles northwest of the VORTAC. It was further proposed to designate an extension within 2 miles either side of the existing King Salmon TACAN 301° True radial from the 5-mile radius zone to a point 11 miles northwest of the TACAN. The 12-mile control zone extension based on the 132° True and 312° True radials will provide protection for aircraft conducting VORTAC instrument approaches to the King Salmon Airport, since the VORTAC instrument procedures are based on these radials. The 11-mile control zone extension based on the TACAN will provide protection for aircraft conducting TACAN instrument approaches to King Salmon Airport. The period for submitting written data, views or arguments was extended to April 15, 1960.

This action will result in the King Salmon, Alaska, control zone being redesignated within a 5-mile radius of the geographical center (latitude 58°40'40" N., longitude 156°38'55" W.), of the King Salmon Airport; within 2 miles either side of the 132° True and 312° True radials of the King Salmon VORTAC extending from the 5-mile radius zone to a point 12 miles northwest of the VORTAC; and within 2 miles either side of the King Salmon TACAN 301° True radial from the 5-mile radius zone to a point 11 miles northwest of the TACAN.

The Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association objected to the two control zone extensions stating that in regard to the proposed extension based on the King Salmon VORTAC the need for flight of aircraft below 1000 feet above ground at a distance beyond 5 miles from the field was not established in the proposal; that a control zone extension to include that airspace around the VORTAC outside of the 5-mile radius zone would seem proper, but an extension to a point 10 miles beyond the VORTAC (15 miles from the airport) did not appear to be necessary or reasonable. The AOPA further stated that no information was contained in the modified proposal that justified either the extension based on the King Salmon VORTAC or the second extension based on the King Salmon TACAN.

The prescribed instrument approach procedures for the King Salmon radio range permit aircraft to descend to 700 feet MSL (637 feet above the elevation of the King Salmon Airport) after completion of the procedure turn when inbound to the radio range. The present instrument approach procedure for the King Salmon TACAN permits aircraft to descend to this same altitude when inbound to the TACAN. Under these circumstances, it is possible for aircraft to be outside of controlled airspace while conducting an authorized instrument approach procedure to the King Salmon Airport. Therefore, the extensions to the control zone based on the VORTAC and the TACAN are required to provided the additional protection necessary for aircraft conducting authorized instrument approaches to the King Salmon Airport.

Subsequent to the publication of the notice and modified notice, the commissioning date of the VOR portion of the King Salmon VORTAC was rescheduled to August 15, 1960. The TACAN portion of the VORTAC will not be commissioned until late 1961, therefore, reference to the TACAN portion is deleted from this rule.

No other adverse comments were received. The Department of the Air Force concurred in the proposed amendments.

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of the rules herein adopted, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented.

In consideration of the foregoing, and pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (24 F.R. 4530), Part 601 (24 F.R. 10530) and § 601.1984 (24 F.R. 10570) are amended as follows:

1. Section 601.2453 is added to read:

§ 601.2453 King Salmon, Alaska, control zone.

Within a 5-mile radius of the geographical center (latitude 58°40'40" N., longitude 156°38'55" W.) of the King Salmon Airport; within 2 miles either side of the 132° True and 312° True radials of the King Salmon VORTAC extending from the 5-mile radius zone to a point 12 miles NW of the VOR and within 2 miles either side of the 301° True radial of the King Salmon TACAN from the 5-mile radius zone to a point 11 miles NW of the TACAN.

§ 601.1984 [Amendment]

2. In the text of § 601.1984 Five-mile radius zones, "King Salmon, Alaska: King Salmon Airport." is deleted.

These amendments shall become effective 0001 e.s.t., November 17, 1960.

PART 602—ESTABLISHMENT OF CODED JET ROUTES AND NAVIGATIONAL AIDS IN THE CONTINENTAL CONTROL AREA

Revocation of Segments of Coded Jet Routes

On January 7, 1960, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (25 F.R. 124) stating that the Federal Aviation Agency was considering an amendment to §§ 602.512 and 602.112 of the regulations of the Administrator which would revoke the segment of VOR/VORTAC jet route No. 12 from Provo, Utah, to Pittsburgh, Pa., and the segment of L/MF jet route No. 12 from Denver, Colo., to Pittsburgh.

As stated in the notice, VOR/VORTAC jet route No. 12 presently extends from Provo, Utah, to Baltimore, Md. L/MF jet route No. 12 presently extends from Denver, Colo., to Baltimore, Md. The Provo to Pittsburgh route is adequately served by combinations of other VOR/VORTAC jet routes. The Denver to Pittsburgh route is adequately served by combinations of other L/MF jet routes. Revocation of the segment of Jet Route 12–V from Provo to Pittsburgh, which is closely paralleled by combinations of Jet Routes 56–V, 60–V, 14–V and 80–V; and revocation of the segment of Jet Route 12–L from Denver to Pittsburgh, which is closely paralleled by combinations of Jet Routes 30–L, 14–L and 10–L, will simplify the route structure. The actions taken herein will revoke the segment of VOR/VORTAC jet route No. 12, from Provo to Pittsburgh, and the segment of L/MF jet route No. 12, from Denver to Pittsburgh.

The Air Transport Association did not object to the revocation of the segments of Jet Routes 12–V and 12–L from Denver to Pittsburgh. The ATA, however, recommended that the segment of Jet Route 12–V from Provo to Denver be retained in order to provide a dual jet route between Provo and Salt Lake City, Utah, with radar flight advisory service, at a later date, and to permit flexibility in operations with regard to air traffic and meteorological conditions. Jet Route 56–V, which is being proposed for extension from Kremmling, Colo., to Denver in Airspace Docket No. 60–WA–23 (25 F.R. 1993), will provide for air carrier service between Denver and Salt Lake City. Furthermore, sufficient traffic is not anticipated to warrant the establishment of a dual jet route structure between these two points.

No other adverse comments were received regarding the proposed amendments.

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of the rules herein adopted, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented.

The substance of the proposed amendment having been published, therefore, pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (24 F.R. 4530), § 602.512 (14 CFR, 1958 Supp., 602.512, 24 F.R. 2649) and § 602.112 (14 CFR, 1958, Supp., 602.112) are amended to read:

§ 602.512 VOR/VORTAC jet route No. 12 (Pittsburgh, Pa., to Baltimore, Md.).

From the Pittsburgh, Pa., VOR to the Baltimore, Md., VORTAC.

§ 602.112 L/MF jet route No. 12 (Pittsburgh, Pa., to Baltimore, Md.).

From the Pittsburgh, Pa., RR to the Baltimore, Md., RR.

These amendments shall become effective 0001 e.s.t. August 25, 1960.

PART 602—ESTABLISHMENT OF CODED JET ROUTES AND NAVIGATIONAL AIDS IN THE CONTINENTAL CONTROL AREA

Modification of Coded Jet Route

On January 29, 1960, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (25 F.R. 766) stating that the Federal Aviation Agency was considering an amendment to § 602.558 of the regulations of the Administrator which would modify the segment of VOR/VORTAC jet route No. 58 between Tonopah, Nev., and Amarillo, Tex.

As stated in the notice, J–58–V presently extends in part from Tonopah via Wilson Creek, Nev. (formerly Pioche, Nev.), Milford, Utah, Hanksville, Utah, and Alamosa, Colo., to Amarillo, Tex. The Federal Aviation Agency proposed to realign this segment of J–58–V from the Tonopah VOR via the Bryce Canyon, Utah, VOR, the Farmington, N. Mex., VOR, the intersection of the Farmington VOR 109° True and the Las Vegas 300° True radials, the Las Vegas, N. Mex., VOR to the Amarillo VORTAC. This action will realign approximately 400 miles of the jet route which is not presently served by radar into areas where more radar coverage is available and will reduce the over-all length of the route by approximately 20 miles.

The Department of the Air Force objected to realigning J–58–V from the Tonopah VOR direct to the Bryce Canyon VOR. The Air Force stated that this realignment would drastically reduce the Caliente jet training area of the Nellis Air Force Base, Las Vegas, Nev., and would adversely affect the activities conducted within the Tonopah, Nev., Restricted Area R–271, thereby, imposing a potential flight hazard and a serious adverse effect on present and future operations from Nellis AFB. The activities conducted within the Caliente jet training area and Restricted Area R–271 include pilot training and special weapons bombing sorties.

In view of the comments received regarding the proposed realignment of J–58–V between the Tonopah VOR and the Bryce Canyon VOR, this realignment was discussed by representatives of the Federal Aviation Agency, the Department of the Air Force and the Air Transport Association of America. As a result of these discussions, it was agreed that this segment of J–58–V should be realigned via the intersection of the Tonopah VOR 083° True and the Bryce Canyon VOR 289° True radials. The intersection of these two radials will be over the Wilson Creek VOR which will not be required as a part of the route. The Federal Aviation Agency recognizes that the realignment of J–58–V to overlie the Wilson Creek VOR will increase the over-all length of the modified segment of J–58–V by six miles. This alignment will, however, provide more separation between J–58–V and the activities conducted within the Tonopah Restricted Area R–271 and the Caliente jet training area thereby eliminating the probability of conflict between aircraft operating along J–58–V and aircraft maneuvering within the Caliente area and R–271 south of the Wilson Creek VOR.

No other comments were received regarding the proposed amendment.

In consideration of the foregoing, and pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (24 F.R. 4530), § 602.558 (24 F.R. 2650, 7608; 25 F.R. 635) is amended to read:

§ 602.558 VOR/VORTAC jet route No. 58 (Oakland, Calif., to New Orleans, La.).

From the Oakland, Calif., VORTAC via the Stockton, Calif., VOR; Tonopah, Nev., VOR; INT of the Tonopah VOR 083° True and the Bryce Canyon, Utah, VOR 289° True radials; Bryce Canyon VOR; Farmington, N. Mex., VORTAC; INT of the Farmington VORTAC 109° True and the Las Vegas, N. Mex., VOR 300° True radials; Las Vegas VOR; Amarillo, Tex., VORTAC; Dallas, Tex., VORTAC; Alexandria, La., VOR; to the New Orleans, La., VOR.

This amendment shall become effective 0001 e.s.t. August 25, 1960.

PART 602—ESTABLISHMENT OF CODED JET ROUTES AND NAVIGATIONAL AIDS IN THE CONTINENTAL CONTROL AREA

Establishment of Coded Jet Route

On December 30, 1959, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (24 F.R. 10986) stating that the Federal Aviation Agency was considering an amendment to Part 602 of the regulations of the Administrator which would establish VOR/VORTAC jet route No. 97 from Boston, Mass., to the United States/Canadian Border via Plattsburgh, N.Y.

As stated in the notice, the Federal Aviation Agency proposed to establish jet route J–97–V from the Boston VOR via the intersection of the Boston VOR 307° True and the Plattsburgh VOR 161° True radials, the Plattsburgh VOR, thence via the Plattsburgh VOR 341° True radial to the United States/Canadian Border. This route will provide a portion of a route for jet aircraft service between Boston and Anchorage, Alaska. The dog-leg between Boston and Plattsburgh was to avoid the Burlington, Vt., Restricted Area/Military Climb Corridor. However, subsequent to the issuance of the notice, the Department of the Air Force advised that there is no requirement for this climb corridor after May 30, 1960, and action has been initiated to revoke it. Therefore, the Federal Aviation Agency is establishing jet route J–97–V via the direct radials between Boston and Plattsburgh, thence via the Plattsburgh VOR 341° True radial to the United States/Canadian Border. The Department of the Air Force also recommended that J–97–V be established direct between Boston and Plattsburgh.

No adverse comments were received regarding the proposed amendment.

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of the rule herein adopted, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented.

In consideration of the foregoing, and pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (24 F.R. 4530), Part 602 (14 CFR, 1958 Supp., Part 602) is amended by adding the following:

§ 602.597 VOR/VORTAC jet route No. 97 (Boston, Mass., to United States/Canadian Border).

From the Boston, Mass., VOR via the Plattsburgh, N.Y., VOR; thence via the Plattsburgh VOR 341° True radial to the United States/Canadian Border.

This amendment shall become effective 0001 e.s.t. August 25, 1960.

In the Matter of Charles A. Eaton Co., a Corporation Trading as Charles Chester Shoe Co., and Charles C. Eaton, Jr., Robert A. Eaton, Louis F. Eaton, Carl F. Bauer and Edward B. Hutton, Individually and as Officers of Charles A. Eaton Co.

This proceeding was heard by a hearing examiner on the complaint of the Commission charging shoe manufacturers at Brockton, Mass., with representing falsely, in catalogs and sales aids furnished to their commission salesmen, that their "Charles Chester Air Cushion" stock shoes, produced by usual quantity production methods, would assure better body balance, furnish support of the feet where found to be individually indicated, and eliminate bunion pressure and fatigue, aid circulation and improve foot health.

On the basis of a consent agreement, the hearing examiner made his initial decision and order to cease and desist which became on May 1 the decision of the Commission.

The order to cease and desist is as follows:

It is ordered, That the respondents Charles A. Eaton Co., a corporation, trading as Charles Chester Shoe Co., or under any other name or names, and its officers, and Charles C. Eaton, Jr., Robert A. Eaton, Louis F. Eaton and Edward B. Hutton, individually and as officers of Charles A. Eaton Co., a corporation, representatives, agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale or distribution of shoes, in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from representing, directly or by implication, by any means, that the wearing of their shoes:

1. Will assure better body balance;

2. Will furnish support of the feet in those cases where support is found to be individually indicated;

3. Will eliminate bunion pressure, eliminate fatigue, aid circulation or improve the health of the feet.

It is further ordered, That the complaint be, and it hereby is, dismissed as to respondent Carl F. Bauer.

By "Decision of the Commission", etc., report of compliance was required as follows:

It is further ordered, That the respondents named in the preamble of the order to cease and desist shall, on or before June 30, 1960, file with the Commission a report, in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with the order to cease and desist.

Issued: May 2, 1960.

By the Commission.

Secretary.

Notice of Proposed Rule Making

Basis and purpose. Notice is hereby given that pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of the Interior by the Boulder City Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 1726), it is proposed to add a new part to Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations. The purpose of this new part is to establish procedures for the determination of lot lines and the leasing of lots, the designation of streets, and initial construction or improvement of, or additions to, street, water, electric, and sewerage systems in that part of Boulder City, Nevada, known as Lakeview Addition. In addition, this new part contemplates the transfer of Lakeview Addition by the United States to Boulder City, Nevada.

This proposed new part relates to matters which are exempt from the rule making requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 238; 5 U.S.C. 1003); however, it is the policy of the Department of the Interior that, wherever practicable, the rule making requirements be observed voluntarily. Accordingly, interested persons may submit written comments, suggestions, or objections with respect to the proposed new part to the Bureau of Reclamation, Washington 25, D.C., within thirty (30) days of the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

ELMER F. BENNETT,
Under Secretary of the Interior.

JUNE 16, 1960.

A new Part 415 is added to Title 43, Chapter II, reading as follows:

Sec.
415.1 Purpose.
415.2 Definitions.
415.3 Determinations by and duties of Regional Director.
415.4 Discretionary functions of the Regional Director.
415.5 Notices and offers to lease and selection of lieu lots.
415.6 Terms and conditions of leases.
415.7 Disposal of nonhabitable structures.
415.8 Treatment of costs of accomplishing functions prescribed by Act.

AUTHORITY: §§ 415.1 to 415.8 issued under sec. 15, 72 Stat. 1726.

§ 415.1 Purpose.

The purpose of this part is to supplement the Boulder City Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 1726), and to assist in carrying out the provisions of that Act relating to Lakeview Addition, Boulder City, Nevada. It establishes procedures relating to the determination of lot lines and the leasing of lots, the designation of streets, the determination of ownership of privately owned structures, the acquisition or relocation of privately owned structures required in order to accomplish the subdivision. It further refers to the expenditure of the amount authorized by section 6(b)(2) of said Act to be appropriated for the initial construction or improvement of, or additions to, street, water, electric, and sewerage systems for Lakeview Addition. It also provides for the transfer of Lakeview Addition by the United States to Boulder City, Nevada.

§ 415.2 Definitions.

As used in this part, the term:

(a) "Regional Director" means the Regional Director, Region 3, Bureau of Reclamation, or person designated by him to act in his behalf.

(d) "Municipality" means Boulder City, Nevada, a municipal corporation, organized and existing under the laws of the State of Nevada.

(e) "Lakeview Addition" means that portion of the Boulder City municipal area delineated on Map No. X-300-475, dated December 3, 1959, attached as Exhibit B to the Quitclaim Deed from the United States to Boulder City, Nevada, dated January 4, 1960, recorded on January 12, 1960, as Instrument No. 185058, in Official Records Book No. 228, Clark County, Nevada, where federally owned lands not under lease from the United States are occupied by privately owned structures.

(f) "Privately owned structure" means a nonfederally owned dwelling inhabited as of January 4, 1960, by the owner or with the permission of the owner thereof or, if not so inhabited, which, in the Regional Director's opinion was habitable, as of January 4, 1960, including, in either case, any nonresidential structure appurtenant to such dwelling. For the purpose of qualifying for a lease under these regulations, the meaning of "privately owned structure" does not include a nonresidential structure or improvement which is not appurtenant to a habitable dwelling or which is not located on the same lot as said dwelling.

(g) "Lieu lot" means a lot in Lakeview Addition other than a lot or area occupied in whole or part by a privately owned structure, which is determined by the Regional Director to be available for leasing.

(h) "Interim occupancy agreement" means a document tendered by the United States and executed by the owner of a privately owned structure, the removal of which was determined necessary by the Regional Director, recognizing the occupancy of the lieu lot as selected, and will be of a duration extending from conclusion of selection of lieu lots until earliest practicable date when lease may be tendered.

§ 415.3 Determinations by and duties of the Regional Director.

(a) The Regional Director shall:

(1) Determine what initial construction or improvement of, or additions to, street, water, electric, and sewerage systems within Lakeview Addition are, in his opinion, necessary toward conformance with general standards for such utilities and facilities prevailing in the community and possible of accomplishment by the expenditure of such funds as may have been appropriated for such purposes pursuant to section 6(b)(2) of the Act;

(2) Determine what are privately owned structures in Lakeview Addition, as hereinbefore defined;

(3) Determine by such methods as he deems reasonable and feasible, who are the owners of the structures referred to in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph;

(4) Determine and designate lot lines and streets in Lakeview Addition to conform as nearly as is reasonable and feasible, in his judgment, to the existing pattern of land occupancy in Lakeview Addition, including the designation, to the extent practicable, of lieu lots, as hereinbefore defined, and described the same on a map of Lakeview Addition;

(5) Cause each lot, as above designated to be appraised in accordance with section 3(d) of the Act;

(6) As soon as practicable, after completion of the work referred to in subparagraph (5) of this paragraph, offer in writing to lease each lot, as above designated, to the owner of the privately owned structure, located thereon and not requiring removal in order to accomplish the subdivision contemplated by section 4(b) of the Act;

(7) List and designate on a map those lieu lots in Lakeview Addition which are found by him to be available for leasing and, by a notice to that effect, offer in writing to each owner of a privately owned structure in Lakeview Addition which, in the Regional Director's opinion, must be removed in order to accomplish the subdivision contemplated by section 4(b) of the Act, an opportunity to choose a lot from said list and subsequently occupy, and lease same, all in the manner provided under § 415.5(c).

(8) Notify the owner of a privately owned structure or structures in Lakeview Addition who, pursuant to § 415.5 is offered either a lease of a lot occupied by said structure, or a lieu lot in Lakeview Addition and who fails to execute and return said lease or interim occupancy agreement and subsequently tendered lease, to the Regional Director within the allotted time, or who fails to accept an offer of an opportunity to choose a lieu lot, that said owner has lost his right to lease any lot in Lakeview Addition and must remove said structure or structures within thirty (30) days after such notification and that failure to comply with said notice will result in action by the Regional Director to take possession of the area and the structure or structures situated thereon;

(9) Evict all persons occupying any area or structure in Lakeview Addition, the right to possession of which has vested in the United States pursuant to subparagraph (8) of this paragraph;

(10) Transfer Lakeview Addition to Boulder City after completion of the work contemplated by subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, the leasing of lots, and other determinations and duties necessary to accomplish the subdivision at Lakeview Addition to the extent contemplated by the Act and these regulations;

(11) Perform such work and take such other actions not inconsistent herewith, as in his opinion is necessary and desirable to accomplish the determinations and fulfill the duties herein established.

(b) The Regional Director's determination hereunder shall be final and conclusive.

§ 415.4 Discretionary functions of the Regional Director.

(a) The Regional Director, in his discretion, may:

(1) Enter into an interim occupancy agreement, a lease, or both, with the owner of a privately owned structure in Lakeview Addition for a lot in Lakeview Addition determined by him to be available for leasing in lieu of a lease for the premises not designed as a lot but occupied by the structure in question;

(2) Relocate a privately owned structure on the lieu lot selected by the owner of said structure, by means of Government forces or by contract with an independent contractor or by contract with the owner of the privately owned structure, when, in the Regional Director's opinion, the removal of the structure is necessary in order to accomplish the subdivision of Lakeview Addition contemplated by section 4(b) of the Act and such structure is so built that it may be relocated without an expenditure disproportionate, in the Regional Director's opinion, to the value of the structure, as determined pursuant to an appraisal made either by Federal Housing Administration or by independent appraisers designated by the Regional Director;

(3) Acquire a privately owned structure, at its appraised value determined by the Regional Director pursuant to an appraisal of said structure made either by the Federal Housing Administration or by independent appraisers designated by the Regional Director, when in the Regional Director's opinion, the removal of the structure is necessary in order to accomplish the subdivision of Lakeview Addition contemplated by section 4(b) of the Act and such structure is, in the opinion of the Regional Director, not physically capable of being relocated or the cost of such relocation to the United States would be disproportionate to the value of the structure;

(4) Sell, destroy, or otherwise dispose of property acquired by the United States pursuant to subparagraph (3) of this paragraph or which comes into the possession of the United States pursuant to § 415.3(a)(8) by such means or upon such terms and conditions as he deems proper.

(b) The Regional Director's determinations hereunder shall be final and conclusive.

§ 415.5 Notices and offers to lease, including selection, occupancy, and lease of lieu lots.

(a) How notice or offer shall be given. (1) Any notice or offer required or otherwise deemed necessary and desirable for the accomplishment of determinations or fulfillment of duties hereunder shall be in writing and shall be deemed to have been given to the owner or occupant of the structure or premises in question when either personally delivered to said individual, or mailed by, or on behalf of, the Regional Director to said owner or occupant to the last-known address of such person or persons as it may appear in the Boulder City Post Office or the tax records of Clark County, Nevada, all as evidenced by copy thereof deposited in the official files maintained by the Regional Director. A copy of any such notice may, in the Regional Director's discretion, be posted on said privately owned structure.

(2) The offer of any lease shall be accompanied by the tender of a lease, which shall conform to the requirements of § 415.6.

(b) Acceptance of lease. (1) The offer to lease a lot in Lakeview Addition other than a lieu lot may be accepted by the owner of the qualifying privately owned structure signing and returning the tendered lease to be received in the office of the Regional Director within thirty (30) days of the date said offer was given under paragraph (a)(1) of this section.

(2) The offer to lease a lieu lot in Lakeview Addition may be accepted by the owner of the qualifying privately owned structure signing and returning the tendered lease, to be received in the office of the Regional Director within fifteen (15) days of the date said offer was given under paragraph (a)(1) of this section.

(3) Failure by the owner of a privately owned structure, or qualified holder of a lieu lot whose status has been established pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section, to return the tendered lease as required under subparagraph (1) or (2) of this paragraph shall constitute a rejection of the offer and a waiver of all claim of said owner or occupant to lease a lot in Lakeview Addition.

(c) Selection, occupancy, and lease of lieu lots. (1) All persons who are offered an opportunity to choose a lieu lot, and to subsequently occupy and lease same, in accordance with the notice provided for in § 415.3(a)(7), and who desire to be placed in order of opportunity to so choose, shall sign an application therefore which shall be enclosed with said notice and return the signed application to be received in the office of the Regional Director within fifteen (15) days of the date of the mailing of the notice, which is given in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (a)(1) of this section.

(2) Failure of said person to return said application as required by subparagraph (1) of this paragraph shall constitute a rejection of such opportunity, and a waiver of any subsequent claim to occupy and lease a lot in Lakeview Addition.

(3) Persons who sign and return the required application to choose a lieu lot shall be placed in order of opportunity to so choose pursuant to a drawing to be held at a time and a place specified in the notice.

(4) At the drawing, the names of all applicants who have qualified shall be placed in a single container and withdrawn one at a time at random. A list designating order of preference shall be prepared showing each name in the order in which it is drawn. The persons whose names have been drawn or their representatives who, in the opinion of the Regional Director, are duly authorized to attend and act in their behalf, shall meet at a time and place designated by the Regional Director on a day not less than five (5) nor more than fifteen (15) days after the date of the drawing to exercise their preference to select such lieu lot pursuant to the drawing.

(5) At 10 a.m., local time, on the date of which selections are to be made, those persons eligible to select shall meet at the designated place and make the selections in order of preference. Any preference right not exercised on the prescribed day shall be forfeited except that persons who, in the Regional Director's opinion, have not been given an opportunity to make a selection on the prescribed day because of the inability of an applicant who precedes them in the order in which the names were drawn to make a selection, may exercise their right on the day or days immediately following, all as determined by the Regional Director.

(6) After selections of lieu lots have been made, the Regional Director will, provided the work referred to in § 415.3(a)(5) has been completed, tender a lease which conforms to the requirements of § 415.6, acceptance of which shall be in accord with paragraph (b)(2) of this section.

(7) In the event work referred to in § 415.3(a)(5) has not been completed when the selection of lieu lots has been completed, the Regional Director will tender an interim occupancy agreement to each individual who has made a selection. Failure to execute and return such interim occupancy agreement, to be received in the office of the Regional Director within ten (10) days after such interim occupancy agreement is tendered, shall be deemed to be a rejection of the offer to select or to occupy said lot and a waiver of all claim to subsequently lease any lot in the Lakeview Addition.

(8) The continued validity of said interim occupancy agreement shall be conditioned upon the selectee making suitable arrangements for vacating the premises occupied by the structure, to be relocated or acquired, within fifteen (15) days of the date of notice of the Regional Director's determination made pursuant to § 415.4(a)(2) or (3).

§ 415.6 Terms and conditions of leases.

(a) The term of the lease will be ten (10) years.

(b) The rental per annum shall be five percent (5%) of the appraised value of each lot as established pursuant to § 415.3(a)(5).

(c) The lease shall include an option to purchase the lot in accordance with the provisions of the Act, upon terms of payment specified by the municipality.

(d) The continuing validity of the lease shall be conditioned upon the lessee making proper connections to water, electric, and sewerage systems; disposing of all rubbish and debris on the lot; and maintaining the premises in a manner satisfactory to lessor; and may be conditioned on the lessee's rehabilitation, replacement, or relocation of any or all structures occupying the land in order to bring about, in the Regional Director's opinion, closer conformance with general standards prevailing in the community.

(e) Where the Regional Director acquires a privately owned structure from the owner thereof, pursuant to § 415.4(a)(3), and leases a lieu lot to said owner, the lease of a lieu lot will require lessee to complete the construction of a habitable dwelling thereon, in accordance with standards of construction reasonably adequate in the opinion of the lessor, within one year of execution of the lease, unless the lessee exercises his option, pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section prior thereto.

(f) All leases may include such other terms and conditions as may be deemed necessary by the Regional Director in the interests of the United States and Boulder City and for the effectuation of the Act.

(g) The forms of the interim occupancy agreement and the lease will be available for examination in the Regional Director's office.

(h) If the purchaser desires to record his lease at his expense in the official records of Clark County, Nevada, he should have his signature acknowledged before a notary public prior to returning the lease to the office of the Regional Director.

§ 415.7 Disposal of nonhabitable structures.

Where the Regional Director determines that federally owned land in Lakeview Addition is occupied by (a) a nonresidential structure or remnant thereof which is not appurtenant to a habitable residence, or (b) an unoccupied residential structure or remnant thereof which was not habitable as of January 4, 1960, he shall endeavor to ascertain the owner thereof and shall require said owner to remove the aforesaid structure or remnant within thirty (30) days from the date a written notice to that effect is mailed by or on behalf of the Regional Director to said owner at his last-known address as it may appear in the Boulder City Post Office or the tax records of Clark County, Nevada. A copy of said notice shall also be posted on said structure or remnant. If said owner fails to remove said structure or remnant thereof, as required by said notice, or if the Regional Director is unable to ascertain who the owner of said structure or remnant therof is, the Regional Director shall, after making a record of the condition of said structure or remnant, take action to remove said structure or remnant thereof from the federally owned property in Lakeview Addition in any manner he deems to be satisfactory.

§ 415.8 Treatment of costs of accomplishing functions prescribed by Act.

The Regional Director may direct the expenditure out of the Boulder City Municipal Fund of moneys necessary to meet the costs of carrying out the functions and responsibilities of the United States, the Secretary of the Interior, or the Regional Director under the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder, except that if the amount referred to under § 415.3(a)(1) is appropriated from general funds, the Regional Director shall direct the expenditure of such sum for the purposes appropriated.

MILK IN WASHINGTON, D.C., MARKETING AREA

Notice of Recommended Decision and Opportunity To File Written Exceptions to Proposed Amendments to Tentative Marketing Agreement and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of the filing with the Hearing Clerk of this recommended decision of the Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, with respect to proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement, and order regulating the handling of milk in the Washington, D.C., marketing area. Interested parties may file written exceptions to this decision with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., not later than the close of business the 7th day after publication of this decision in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The exceptions should be filed in quadruplicate.

Preliminary statement. The hearing on the record of which the proposed amendments, as hereinafter set forth, to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, were formulated, was conducted at Washington, D.C., on February 8, 1960, pursuant to notice thereof which was issued January 27, 1960 (25 F.R. 805).

The material issues on the record of the hearing relate to:

1. The definition of "dairy farmer for other markets".

2. Location differential adjustments to handlers.

3. Accounting for milk received from farmers in bulk tank trucks.

4. Date of announcement of uniform price and dates on which payments to and from the producer settlement fund are made.

Findings and conclusions. The findings and conclusions relative to issue No. 1 were dealt with in a separate decision issued by the Assistant Secretary on March 15, 1960 (25 F.R. 2261). The following findings and conclusions on issues 2, 3, and 4 are based on evidence presented at the hearing and the record thereof:

2. The provisions of the order relative to location differential adjustments on Class I milk should not be changed.

The particular provision of the order at issue concerns the allowance for transportation cost which applies at pool plants 75 miles or more from the milestone in Washington, D.C. Such allowance is expressed as a differential to be subtracted from the Class I price and thus tends to equalize at the marketing area the minimum prices for Class I milk originating from nearby and more distant sources. In the case of milk transferred between plants, the location allowance applies only to that part of the transferred milk which is needed for Class I use in the transferee plant. Accordingly, the provision calls for a computation which assigns transferred milk to available Class II disposition in the transferee plant before assigning any to Class I disposition. Further, in any case where a pool plant receives milk from more than one other plant, the computation of location differential allowance for the transferring plants requires that the Class II milk in the transferee plant be assigned first to the transferor plant having the largest differential, and so on in sequence to that plant having the smallest differential.

The system of order pricing thus recognizes the cost of transportation for moving milk from outlying plants to the marketing area. Other movements of milk directly from producers' farms to plants in the marketing area are subject to hauling charges which are paid by each producer. These hauling charges are allowable under the order, but the rate is not specified. Under these circumstances, all milk moving to the market whether directly from farms or through plants, is subject to transportation charges which are borne by producers.

A proposal of the Queen City Cooperative Dairy would provide that, for the purpose of computing location differential credit to a handler transferring milk from his pool plant to another pool plant, the transferred milk should be considered to be Class I and Class II milk in the same proportion as all milk in the transferee plant.

The Queen City Cooperative operates plants at South Cumberland, Maryland, and Meyersdale, Pennsylvania, 146 and 169 miles, respectively, from the milestone in Washington, D.C. Location differentials of 24 and 27 cents per hundredweight, respectively, are applicable at these plants. These plants qualify for pool status on the basis of shipments to a pool plant from which fluid milk is distributed in the marketing area. In addition to receipts of milk from the two plants operated by the Queen City Cooperative, the pool distributing plant receives milk directly from nearby sources.

Utilization at the plant to which the proponent ships milk is largely for fluid distribution, but the plant also manufactures cottage cheese and sour cream. Cream in excess of plant requirements is disposed of to other plants for manufacturing purposes.

For the purpose of illustrating the effect of the proposal, it may be assumed that all of the Class II milk at the pool distributing plant is assigned to the milk from the Queen City plants. The Class II utilization at the distributing plant was said to be usually about 5 percent of total receipts from all sources. This would be equal to about 5.5 percent of the milk from the Queen City plants, which supply about 90 percent of the milk received. On the basis of these figures, 5.5 percent of the shipped-in milk would be assigned, under the existing order provisions, to Class II milk for purposes of computing the location allowance. Under the proposed revision, the percentage of shipped-in milk assigned to Class II milk should be 5 percent.

The possible effects of the proposal are not confined to the particular situation of the proponent, however, and should be examined in light of its implications for the entire market.

The proponent witness pointed out that some other Federal orders provide different methods of computing transportation allowance, including one similar to that proposed here. The question must be raised in this connection, however, whether the particular circumstances in this market justify such broader application of the transportation allowance. Under the Washington order the entire value of all producer milk is pooled under a marketwide pool. Accordingly, any increase in the transportation allowance on the milk shipments from any one plant would be an additional cost borne by all producers in the market. It was not shown, however, that such additional cost to the pool resulting from this proposal would be justified on the basis of needs of the Class I market. On the contrary, the circumstance that the operations at the distributing plant include the regular manufacture of cottage cheese and sour cream raises the question of whether the milk shipped is partly for the purpose of supplying such Class II business.

The need to limit the application of the transportation allowance must be considered in the light of possible supply arrangements which, under the proposal, would result in a greater cost to the market pool than under the present order provision. For instance, if a distributing plant receives just enough milk directly from farmers to cover its Class I milk distribution, and also carries on a Class II milk manufacturing operation which uses an equal, additional volume of milk, then any milk shipped to such plant from a plant where a location differential applies would not be eligible for transportation allowance under the present order. Under the proposal, however, there would be a deduction from the value of the market pool of the amount of the location differential on half of such shipped-in milk. This cost to producers would be in addition to the hauling charges paid by those producers whose milk moved directly from their farms to the first plant. Under this situation, it is clear that producers for the market would be bearing part of the cost of moving milk going into manufacturing uses. This result is not within the purpose of the Class I milk transportation allowance previously stated herein.

3. Payment for bulk tank milk should be based upon the quantity measured at each farm.

A proposal made by a handler would provide that for producers who have farm tanks, payment would be on the basis of the quantity of milk measured by scales (or other device) at the handler's plant, rather than on the quantity of milk in each farm tank as determined by dip-stick readings made at the farm. Any difference between the plant weight and the stick readings would be prorated to the producers whose milk deliveries are included in the same tank truck, using the amounts resulting from the respective stick readings and their sum as the basis for such proration.

Most of the milk of producers for this market is picked up at farms by tank trucks. Ordinarily the milk of several farmers is combined in one truck load before delivery to the plant. It is customary that the quantity of milk picked up at each farm is measured by use of a dip-stick or other device for measuring the level of the milk in the farm tank. This measurement is converted to pounds of milk on the basis of a chart or table which shows quantities corresponding to each such measurement. The producer of the milk is furnished a receipt for such quantity of milk drawn from the tank. Such method of accounting for milk to the producer has become accepted practice not only in this market but generally in markets where farm tanks have been put in use.

It was contended by proponent that the quantities of milk delivered to his plant in tank trucks as measured by his plant scale are consistently less than the total of the quantities measured by the hauler at the farms from which the milk on the truck is obtained. Various reasons cited as to why differences could occur included inaccurate calibration of the farm tank, failure of the milk hauler to pump all of the milk out of the farm tank, errors in reading the level of milk in the tank, errors in recording the quantities, and losses of milk after being pumped into the tank truck but prior to being placed in a holding tank at the plant. It was contended further that regardless of how perfectly the calibration may be made for any farm tank, the measurement of milk quantities based thereon can be only an approximation of the actual quantity.

As to the amounts of differences which actually have occurred, however, the proponent handler did not present specific data showing actual experience. The only data presented on the record from actual experience were given by a cooperative association engaged in picking up milk at farms in its own tank trucks and delivering such milk to handlers' plants. It found the indicated loss between farm measurements and plant weights in one month to be 19,070 pounds in the handling of approximately 60 million pounds of milk. This amounted to a difference of farm tank measurements over plant scale readings of about $^{3}/_{100}$ of one percent of the milk involved. In another month the total of the plant scale readings exceeded the total of quantities shown by farm tank measurements, in this case also by a very small percentage. A handler other than proponent testified that scale weights at his plant have been both above and below the farm stick measurements on the same milk.

On the basis of the only statistical data submitted on the record, it must be concluded that the normal differences have been relatively small. It is not unreasonable with present-day facilities for measuring, to consider some variation in results between these two methods as normal, even in situations where the farm tank calibrations and the plant scale have been checked by public authorities. In other words, there are practical limits of accuracy in either method of measuring the quantities of milk deliveries by the producer.

As previously stated, the proposal of the handler would base his obligation to producers upon the quantity of milk as determined by his plant scale rather than on the individual quantities measured at producer farms. In such weighing of the truck load as delivered to the plant, the individual quantities from each producer, of course, are obscured. The Act, on the other hand, requires that each order issued thereunder shall establish uniform, minimum prices to all handlers based upon use classification of the milk and provide for the payment of uniform prices to all producers. To fulfill these requirements, preserving equity among handlers and in the distribution of returns among individual producers, there must be a uniform method by which the milk from each producer may be known before it is combined with other milk.

The proposed method of arriving at the quantity of milk for which an individual producer would be paid would be subject, however, to aberrations not strictly related to the measurement of such producer's milk. For example, if under the proposed method, an error occurred in the measurement of milk at any farm, the error would be reflected in the returns to all producers whose milk was picked up in the same truck load.

From a practical standpoint the only available method of measurement which, in the bulk of cases, may be applied to the milk of each producer individually is that taken at the farm. In the unusual case where a single producer's milk constitutes the entire load for one tank truck, the same basis of measurement should be used in order to maintain equity among producers and a uniform method of accounting for milk by handlers. There is in this case, however, an opportunity to compare the two kinds of measurements on the same producer's milk, and if, in any particular instance an unusual difference occurs, the proper resolution should depend on available evidence as to the cause. The proposed method of plant scale reading should not be adopted as the basis of accounting for deliveries to handlers by individual producers.

4. The date on which the uniform price must be announced should be changed from the 10th to the 11th of each month.

Handlers' reports of receipts and utilization must be submitted to the market administrator no later than the 8th day of each month. Such reports are used by the market administrator to compute and announce the uniform price on or before the 10th day of each month. When a weekend or holiday falls in the period between the date on which reports are due and on which the uniform price must be announced, an unnecessary burden is placed on the market administrator in announcing the uniform price by the date specified. The proposed change would not affect the date on which payments to producers are made for their milk. The change was unopposed at the hearing.

To be consistent with the announcement of the uniform price on the 11th day of each month, the dates on which payments to and from the producer settlement fund are made should be changed from the 11th and 12th day of each month, respectively, to the 12th and 13th day of each month, respectively.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. Briefs and proposed findings and conclusions were filed on behalf of certain interested parties in the market. These briefs, proposed findings and conclusions and the evidence in the record were considered in making the findings and conclusions set forth above. To the extent that the suggested findings and conclusions filed by interested parties are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions set forth herein, the requests to make such findings or reach such conclusions are denied for the reasons previously stated in this decision.

General findings. The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and of the previously issued amendments thereto; and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed, except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) The tentative marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the Act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(c) The tentative marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Recommended marketing agreement and order amending the order. The following order amending the order regulating the handling of milk in the Washington, D.C., marketing area is recommended as the detailed and appropriate means by which the foregoing conclusions may be carried out. The recommended marketing agreement is not included in this decision because the regulatory provisions thereof would be the same as those contained in the order, as hereby proposed to be amended:

1. In § 902.22, delete the word "10th" in paragraph (j)(2) and substitute therefor "11th".

2. In § 902.84, delete the word "11th" and substitute therefor "12th".

3. In § 902.85, delete the word "12th" and substitute therefor "13th".

Issued at Washington, D.C., this 17th day of June 1960.

ORIS V. WELLS, Administrator.

MILK IN NEOSHO VALLEY MARKETING AREA

Decision on Proposed Amendments to Tentative Marketing Agreement and to Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held at Pittsburg, Kansas, on January 14-15, 1960, pursuant to notice thereof issued on December 23, 1959 (24 F.R. 10913).

Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at the hearing and the record thereof, the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, on May 11, 1960 (25 F.R. 4327) filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, his recommended decision containing notice of the opportunity to file written exceptions thereto.

The material issues on the record of the hearing relate to:

1. The level of the Class II price;
2. Expansion of the marketing area;
3. Revision of the Class I price and provisions regarding handlers subject to other orders;
4. Providing a separate subclassification and lower price for concentrated milk products;
5. Providing a separate classification and lower price for milk used to produce specified manufactured dairy products;
6. Changing the scope of regulation by raising the pool plant requirements and limiting the diversion privilege;
7. Providing for individual-handler pools;
8. Changing the base-setting months;
9. Substituting a modified take-out and pay-back plan for the base rating plan; and
10. Administrative changes.

Issue number 1 was dealt with separately and an order amending the order was issued March 28, 1960 (25 F.R. 2722).

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the material issues are based on evidence presented at the hearing and the record thereof:

2. Marketing area. The marketing area should be expanded to include Chautauqua County, Kansas.

At the time of the hearing all of the milk being sold in this county was priced under the Neosho Valley and Wichita milk marketing orders. While there is, therefore, no immediate change in milk marketing conditions to be provided by the extension of regulation in this county, such extension will provide assurance to the present handlers that effective minimum prices will apply to all handlers who may enter the sales territory. The major portion of sales are by handlers regulated under the Neosho Valley order and it is, therefore, appropriate that the county be included in this marketing area. No opposition to the proposed expansion was expressed at the hearing or in the briefs filed by interested parties.

The marketing area should not be expanded to include the three Oklahoma counties of Washington, Nowata, and Craig. Such expansion would bring under regulation two handlers who are not now subject to any orders. One of these is operating as a producer dealer and distributing only in Nowata County. The other purchases milk from eight dairy farmers and distributes in Craig County and also in Ottawa County, which was not proposed to be regulated.

The major portion of Class I sales in each of the three Oklahoma counties is made by handlers regulated under the Neosho Valley and Oklahoma Metropolitan orders. There was no evidence that producers supplying the unregulated plants are facing any milk marketing problems which would prompt them to request extension of regulation. Neither was it shown that any regulated handlers in either of the adjacent regulated markets faced any competitive problems with the unregulated handlers which were based on prices paid for milk.

In the circumstances, the three Oklahoma counties should not be included in the Neosho Valley marketing area.

3. Class I price. There should be no change in the Class I price provisions of the order nor in the provisions regarding milk marketed by handlers operating plants subject to other Federal orders.

The essential elements of the Class I price problem include the ability and willingness of local shippers to continue to furnish an adequate supply of milk to the local handlers and the relationship of the Neosho Valley Class I price to that prevailing in the other directly competitive markets.

In recent years, the fully regulated Neosho Valley handlers have obtained their entire supplies of Class I milk from regular producers. However, there has been a significant shift in the origin of such producers. In August 1958, a substantial number of new shippers were shifted from the Ozarks market to the Neosho Valley market and an additional number were similarly transferred in August 1959. On the other hand, there has been a loss of shippers from the Neosho Valley market into northeastern Oklahoma. In addition, the handler drawing milk from the northeastern Oklahoma territory has paid significant premiums in order to hold his remaining shippers.

Handlers regulated under other Federal orders have substantial route sales in the Neosho Valley marketing area. At the time of the hearing this competition included handlers regulated under the Ozarks, Kansas City and Wichita orders. Neosho Valley handlers also compete for sales outside the marketing area with handlers regulated under the Oklahoma Metropolitan and Ozarks orders. Such competition is most extensive with respect to handlers regulated under the Oklahoma Metropolitan order located at Tulsa and Ponca City which are in the minus 10-cent zone. The major Neosho Valley handlers distribute fluid milk throughout the Neosho Valley market.

The Neosho Valley Class I price is determined by a basic formula plus a Class I differential which averages $1.34. This price is further subject to limits of the Ozarks Class I price plus 15 cents and the Oklahoma Metropolitan Class I price less 33 cents. Effective April 1, 1960, the Ozarks Class I price is in fixed relationship to the St. Louis Class I price inclusive of a supply-demand adjustment based on St. Louis utilization data, and St. Louis, in turn is tied to the Chicago Class I price. Official notice is hereby taken of the Assistant Secretary's decision of March 24, 1960, regarding proposed amendments to the Ozarks milk marketing order (25 F.R. 2626). The Kansas City Class I price averages $1.35 over a basic formula price and is subject to a supply-demand adjustment; the Wichita Class I price is $1.65 over a basic formula price and is subject to a supply-demand adjustment and the Oklahoma Metropolitan Class I price averages $1.85 over a basic formula price and is subject to a supply-demand adjustment.

In 1957 the Neosho Valley Class I price for 4.0 percent milk averaged $4.83, in 1958 it was $4.78, and in 1959 it was $4.77. For the same years the Class I prices for 4.0 percent milk in the Ozarks (at Springfield, Mo.) averaged $4.40, $4.40 and $4.40, in Kansas City $4.85, $4.81 and $4.75, in Wichita $5.19, $5.06 and $4.98, and in Oklahoma, at Tulsa and Ponca City, $5.10, $5.09 and $5.07.

Since the Neosho Valley milk market is affected by competition in procurement from handlers in these other markets some of which operate on higher and some on lower price levels, it is impossible to establish a uniform Class I price for the Neosho Valley market which is in close alignment with each of these other markets.

The possibility of establishing price zones within the Neosho Valley market was extensively explored at the hearing. Such consideration was in terms of a lower priced zone at Joplin, Missouri, where the competition from Ozarks handlers is most extensive and where Neosho Valley producer prices appear most attractive to Ozarks shippers, and to a higher priced zone in the western part of the market, including Coffeyville, Kansas, where procurement and sales competition with the Oklahoma handlers is most extensive. However, zoning does not appear from this record to be an adequate solution to the price alignment problem because handlers located in the western part of the market at points such as Coffeyville and Parsons sell milk throughout the marketing area and beyond it, while the Joplin handlers also cover the entire market. Therefore, zone pricing would create lack of uniformity in prices paid by handlers competing within the Neosho marketing area.

Under the Neosho Valley order, there is a charge on milk distributed in the area from plants subject to any other Federal order under which the Class I price is less than under the Neosho Valley order. It was proposed at the hearing that this charge be eliminated. The payment, at a rate based on the difference in Class I prices at the location of the plant at which the milk is received from farmers, is paid into the producer settlement fund of the order under which such farmer's milk is pooled and priced.

In practice, the payment applies only to milk received at plants regulated under the Ozarks order. This payment is designed to assure the Neosho Valley handlers that Ozarks handlers will not have a competitive price advantage in distributing milk within the Neosho market at a lower Class I price than that prevailing under this order.

It is concluded that no change should be made in the pricing provisions relative to Class I sales in the Neosho Valley market by handlers regulated under other Federal orders.

4. Concentrated milk products. The proposal for separate classification and a 30-cent lower price on "concentrated milk products marketed in competition with fluid Grade A milk" should not be adopted.

This proposal referred to concentrated milk products other than evaporated milk. Such products are still in the preliminary stages of development and market acceptance. They include various frozen and hermetically sealed concentrates which are designed to provide longer keeping quality than fresh fluid milk but are not considered evaporated milk.

No such products are currently being sold in the Neosho Valley marketing area. At this time, it is not possible to develop an accurate definition of the product involved or to determine the manner in which plants which might produce a given concentrated milk product might be regulated. There is, therefore, no basis at this time for developing appropriate amendments to the order to deal with concentrated milk products.

5. Proposed Class III. It was proposed that milk used to produce butter, nonfat dry milk, hard cheese, and evaporated milk be classified separately in a new Class III and be priced at the level of prices paid by local manufacturing plants. This was advanced as a counterproposal to the proposals for increasing the Class II price.

The Class II price issue was considered in the decision of the Assistant Secretary, issued March 22, 1960 (25 F.R. 2535). The amendments described in the decision became effective April 1, 1960. The decision dealt with all manufacturing uses of pooled milk in this market and the proposals for a separate Class III is, therefore, denied on the basis of the findings in that decision.

6. Pool plants and diversion. The notice of hearing contained two proposals for raising the pool plant standards and two for limiting the diversion privilege. One of the pool plant proposals was not supported by its proponent at the hearing.

The principal bargaining association of producers contended that an unduly low Class II price was in fact the principal factor in the rather large portion of Class II milk carried by some handlers in this market. Moreover, the conversion from the handling of milk in 10-gallon cans to farm bulk tanks is taking place in this market. The association desires a maximum degree of flexibility in the movement of milk from farm to market during the transition period. It also expects to be able to reassign milk between handlers, thereby reducing the need for amendment of the pool plant requirements.

Official notice is taken that the order was amended effective April 1, 1960, to raise the Class II price. It is concluded that the effects of this action and of further conversion to bulk tank pickup should be studied before any further consideration is given to amendment of the pool plant standards or the diversion provisions.

7. Individual-handler pools. The proposal to substitute individual-handler pools for the marketwide pool was made by the handler who procures a portion of his supply from producers located in Oklahoma. With respect to this supply, he is in direct competition with Oklahoma handlers at higher blend prices and has paid premiums in order to hold these shippers.

This handler has also had a higher annual average utilization than the marketwide average. Individual-handler pools would, therefore, enable him to pay more to his shippers at any given level of class prices and would correspondingly reduce his premium payments. Some aspects of his procurement problem were considered in the findings and conclusions regarding Class I prices.

Since the inception of the Neosho Valley order, several handlers have undertaken substantial specialization in the handling of Class II milk while other handlers have concentrated on Class I operations and have diverted or transferred their reserve milk to manufacturing plants. It follows that individual-handler pools would cause far-reaching changes in the marketing of milk. It is concluded that the order should not be amended to provide for individual-handler pools.

8. Base-rating. The base forming months should be September through December.

The K.M.O. Milk Producers Association proposed that the base forming months should be September through December rather than August through November. The proposal was endorsed at the hearing by the Neosho Valley Cooperative Creamery Association. This proposal was supported primarily on the grounds that the percentage of producer milk in Class I had decreased during August and had increased in December 1958 and 1959 as compared to the percentage recorded for the same months of previous years.

The recommended decision proposed no change in the base forming months. The proponent producers, in their exceptions, pointed out that there has been a substantial change in the average daily production per producer during the fall and winter months, as well as an increase in the regular Class I sales of regulated handlers in the months of September through December as compared to the months of August through November.

In the past two years the seasonal pattern of the milk supply relative to Class I sales has changed. In 1958 the month of August was the month with the second largest supply in relation to Class I sales while in 1959 August was the month of largest supply. On the other hand, the supply of milk has become less in relation to Class I sales in December. During December 1958 and 1959 the utilization of producer milk in Class I was 81.92 and 67.69 percent, respectively, whereas the average utilization during the present base forming months of August through November 1958 and 1959 was 78.52 and 65.07 percent, respectively. These changes in the utilization of producer milk in Class I are largely the result of a change in the seasonal pattern of the average daily production per producer.

In view of the above facts and the support by the two cooperative associations representing producers in the market for the change in the base plan, the base forming months should be September through December.

9. Modified seasonal incentive plan. A new type of seasonal incentive plan was also considered at the hearing. It involved establishing rates of payback ranging from zero in the case of producers whose daily deliveries in the payback months were below 70 percent of their deliveries in the takeout months, to a maximum payback to those producers whose payback deliveries were equal to or above their takeout deliveries. Determination of an individual producer's fall incentive payment under this method requires classifying of producers and other determinations prior to payment.

One deficiency in the proposal is that not all producers would receive the same reward for making some improvement in the seasonality of their productions. For example, those who brought their fall production up from 50 percent of the flush season average to 69 percent would still be in the category which receives no portion of the fall payback.

The success of any fall incentive plan is related to the degree of producer knowledge and acceptance of its operation. Since the proposed new plan was not supported by two cooperatives representing the great majority of shippers serving the market, it is concluded that such an incentive payment plan should not be adopted at this time.

10. Administrative change. A necessary administrative change involves deducting from payments to any handlers out of the producer settlement fund any unpaid balances due the market administrator from such handler for the producer settlement, administrative, or marketing service accounts. This provision is required to avoid unnecessary administrative inconvenience.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. Briefs and proposed findings and conclusions were filed on behalf of certain interested parties in the market. These briefs, proposed findings and conclusions and the evidence in the record were considered in making the findings and conclusions set forth above. To the extent that the suggested findings and conclusions filed by interested parties are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions set forth herein, the requests to make such findings or reach such conclusions are denied for the reasons previously stated in this decision.

General findings. The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and of the previously issued amendments thereto; and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed, except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) The tentative marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the Act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(c) The tentative marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Rulings on exceptions. In arriving at the findings and conclusions, and the regulatory provisions of this decision, each of the exceptions received was carefully and fully considered in conjunction with the record evidence pertaining thereto. To the extent that the findings and conclusions, and the regulatory provisions of this decision are at variance with any of the exceptions, such exceptions are hereby overruled for the reasons previously stated in this decision.

Marketing agreement and order. Annexed hereto and made a part hereof are two documents entitled respectively, "Marketing Agreement Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Neosho Valley Marketing Area", and "Order amending the Order Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Neosho Valley Marketing Area", which have been decided upon as the detailed and appropriate means of effectuating the foregoing conclusions.

It is hereby ordered, That all of this decision, except the attached marketing agreement, be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The regulatory provisions of said marketing agreement are identical with those contained in the order as hereby proposed to be amended by the attached order which will be published with this decision.

Determination of representative period. The month of April 1960 is hereby determined to be the representative period for the purpose of ascertaining whether the issuance of the attached order amending the order regulating the handling of milk in the Neosho Valley marketing area, is approved or favored by producers, as defined under the terms of the order as hereby proposed to be amended, and who, during such representative period, were engaged in the production of milk for sale within the aforesaid marketing area.

Issued at Washington, D.C., this 17th day of June 1960.

CLARENCE L. MILLER,
Assistant Secretary.

Order[1] Amending the Order Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Neosho Valley Marketing Area

§ 928.0 Findings and determinations.

The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and of the previously issued amendments thereto; and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed, except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) Findings upon the basis of the hearing record. Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held upon certain proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order regulating the handling of milk in the Neosho Valley marketing area. Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at such hearing and the record thereof, it is found that:

(1) The said order as hereby amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act;

(2) The parity prices of milk, as determined pursuant to section 2 of the Act, are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the said marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the order as hereby amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest;

(3) The said order as hereby amended, regulates the handling of milk in the same manner as, and is applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial or commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

(4) All milk and milk products handled by handlers, as defined in the order as hereby amended, are in the current of interstate commerce or directly burden, obstruct, or affect interstate commerce in milk or its products; and

(5) It is hereby found that the necessary expense of the market administrator for the maintenance and functioning of such agency will require the payment by each handler, as his pro rata share of such expense, 5 cents per hundredweight or such amount not to exceed 5 cents per hundredweight as the Secretary may prescribe, with respect to (a) milk from producers including such handler's own production and (b) other source milk which is classified as Class I.

Order relative to handling. It is therefore ordered, That on and after the effective date hereof, the handling of milk in the Neosho Valley marketing area shall be in conformity to and in compliance with the terms and conditions of the aforesaid order, as hereby amended, and the aforesaid order is hereby amended as follows:

§ 928.6 [Amendment]

1. In § 928.6 after "Bourbon" insert the word "Chautauqua,".

§ 928.94 [Amendment]

2. In § 928.94 change the period at the end of the section to a colon and add the following: "And provided further, That any payments hereunder shall be reduced by the amount of any unpaid balances due the market administrator from such handler pursuant to §§ 928.93, 928.95, 928.96 or 928.97."

3. Delete § 928.80 and substitute therefor the following:

§ 928.80 Determination of daily base for each producer.

For each of the delivery periods of February through July the daily base of for each producer shall be an amount of milk computed by the market administrator by dividing the total pounds of milk received from such producer by handlers during the preceding delivery periods of September through December by the total number of days for which such producer made deliveries of milk in such period, or by 90, whichever is greater: Provided, That, with respect to any producer on "every-other-day" delivery the days of nondelivery shall be considered as days of delivery for the purposes of this section and of § 928.81: And provided further, That in the case of producers delivering milk to an approved plant which first qualifies as such during any month other than September, a daily average base for each such producer shall be calculated pursuant to this section on the basis of his verifiable deliveries of milk to such plant during the September through December immediately preceding.

4. Delete § 928.83 and substitute therefor the following:

§ 928.83 Announcement of daily bases.

On or before February 15 of each year, the market administrator shall notify each producer of his daily base.

[F.R. Doc. 60-5720; Filed, June 21, 1960; 8:48 a.m.]

[1] This order shall not become effective unless and until the requirements of § 900.14 of the rules of practice and procedure governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders have been met.

[7 CFR Part 1016]

MILK IN NORTHEASTERN WISCONSIN MARKETING AREA

Notice of Intention To Terminate Order

Pursuant to the applicable provisions of Public Act No. 10, 73d Congress, as amended, and as reenacted and amended by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the "act," and of the order regulating the handling of milk in the Northeastern Wisconsin, marketing area, hereinafter referred to as the "order," it is hereby found and determined that:

(1) A public hearing was held on certain proposed amendments to the order on March 7–9, 1960, pursuant to notice thereof issued February 17, 1960 (25 F.R. 1521);

(2) The recommended decision of the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, with respect to the issues in the record of said hearing was filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture on May 20, 1960, and published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on May 25, 1960 (25 F.R. 4593);

(3) The decision of the Assistant Secretary was issued on June 13, 1960 (25 F.R. 5397); it adopted the material issues, findings and conclusions of the recommended decision; it included a finding that the incorporation of the amendments in the order would tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act; and it contained an order directing that a referendum be conducted to determine whether producers favored the issuance of the amending order which was a part of said decision;

(4) Less than two-thirds of the producers who participated in said referendum favor the issuance of the said amending order.

Notice is hereby given of intention to terminate Order No. 116, as now in effect, regulating the handling of milk in the Northeastern Wisconsin, marketing area, effective July 1, 1960. Interested parties may submit written data, views, and arguments as to why the said order should not be so terminated. Such written data, views, and arguments should be addressed to the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, and be postmarked on or before June 25, 1960.

Done at Washington, D.C., this 20th day of June 1960.

[47 CFR Part 3]

[Docket No. 13375]

TELEVISION BROADCAST STATIONS, TABLE OF ASSIGNMENTS; NEW BEDFORD, MASS.-PROVIDENCE, R.I.

Order Extending Time for Filing Comments

In the matter of amendment of § 3.606 Table of assignments, Television Broadcast Stations (New Bedford, Mass.-Province, Rhode Island).

In a notice adopted June 8, 1960, the Commission extended the time for filing comments in Docket No. 13340 (Interim Policy on VHF Television Channel Assignments and Amendment of Part 3 of the Rules concerning Television Engineering Standards) in contemplation of the issuance of revised engineering curves for the present high VHF band. At the same time, by separate order, the Commission extended time for filing comments in Docket No. 13374, a proceeding involving a proposed shortspaced high VHF assignment under conditions dependent on the proposed new curves. Inasmuch as the instant proceeding involves assignment of Channel 6, and there will be no revision of the engineering curves for this or any of the other low VHF channels, the Commission did not at the same time extend the time for filing comments in this proceeding.

The Commission now has before it for consideration a Request for Extension of the Time for Filing Comments, filed June 15, 1960, by E. Anthony & Sons, in which it is suggested that the assignment of Channel 6 in the instant proceeding may depend in part on findings as to the coverage of Channels 10 and 12 in Providence, Rhode Island, and Channel 7 in Boston (all high VHF channels) and that therefore the instant proceeding will involve use of the revised curves to be issued in Docket No. 13340. It is therefore urged that we extend the time for filing comments in this proceeding so that it will coincide with that of Docket No. 13340.

We find that this argument has merit.

Accordingly, it is ordered, That the request of E. Anthony & Sons for additional time to file comments is granted, and that the time for filing comments in the above-entitled proceeding is extended from June 20, 1960, to September 1, 1960, and the filing of reply comments is extended from July 5, 1960, to September 16, 1960.

Adopted: June 17, 1960.

Released: June 17, 1960.

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

[Docket No. RP60-14]

KANSAS-NEBRASKA NATURAL GAS CO., INC.

Order for Hearing, Suspending Proposed Tariff Sheet and Accepting Tariff Sheets for Filing

JUNE 15, 1960.

Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Company, Inc. (KNCO), on May 16, 1960,[1] tendered for filing Original Sheet No. 35, First Revised Sheets Nos. 9, 31, 32, and Second Revised Sheets Nos. 19, 33 and 34 to its FPC Gas Tariff, Original Volume No. 3. This tariff volume comprises an agreement between KNCO and Northern Natural Gas Company (Northern) dated May 25, 1956, as amended, providing for the sale and delivery to Northern, at a point near Liberal, Kansas, of all gas produced in certain formations under certain leases in Camrick Field, Texas County, Oklahoma. The said Second Revised Sheet No. 19 reflects an increase in rate from 16 cents to 17 cents per Mcf and amounting to an annual increase to Northern of $117,300 or 6.25 percent based upon a test year ended December 31, 1959. The remainder of the tendered tariff sheets reflect the dedication of approximately 12,255 additional acres to the sale.

KNCO proposes that the aforementioned tariff sheets be permitted to become effective on July 1, 1960.

In support of the proposed increased rate, KNCO, among other things, submitted a study including a number of claimed allowances which give rise to questions that can be determined only after a hearing has been held thereon. Among such questionable allowances is included an expense item of $485,020, representing an accrual for future dry gas payments to Gulf Oil Corporation (Gulf) under a certain gas development contract and an additional allowance of over $500,000 for Federal income taxes based upon the claimed dry gas accrual expense. Additionally, KNCO's cost study includes an allowance for return on investment computed at 6.7 percent, the rate which the company seeks in its previous rate increase proceeding in Docket No. G-12391. The propriety of that rate of return is an issue pending before the Presiding Examiner in that proceeding.

The proposed changes in rates, charges, classifications, and services provided for in Second Revised Sheet No. 19 to KNCO's FPC Gas Tariff Original Volume No. 3, tendered by KNCO on May 16, 1960, as modified on May 26, 1960, may be unjust, unreasonable, unduly discriminatory or preferential, or otherwise unlawful.

The Commission finds:

(1) It is necessary and proper in the public interest and to aid in the enforcement of the provisions of the Natural Gas Act, that the Commission enter upon a public hearing concerning the lawfulness of the rates, charges, classifications, and services contained in KNCO's FPC Gas Tariff, Original Volume No. 3, as proposed to be amended by the tariff sheets tendered on May 16 and 26, 1960, and that proposed Second Revised Sheet No. 19 thereof and the rates contained therein be suspended and the use thereof deferred as hereinafter provided.

(2) It is necessary and proper in the public interest, and to aid in the enforcement of the Natural Gas Act, that the proposed Original Sheet No. 35, First Revised Sheets Nos. 9, 31, 32 and Second Revised Sheets Nos. 33 and 34 to KNCO's FPC Gas Tariff, Original Volume No. 3, be accepted for filing as hereinafter provided.

The Commission orders:

(A) Pursuant to the authority of the Natuarl Gas Act, particularly sections 4 and 15 thereof, the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, and the regulations under the Natural Gas Act (18 CFR Ch. I), a public hearing be held on a date to be fixed by notice from the Secretary concerning the lawfulness of the rates, charges, classifications, and services contained in KNCO's FPC Gas Tariff, Original Volume No. 3, as proposed to be amended by the aforementioned tariff sheets tendered on May 16 and 26, 1960.

(B) Pending such hearing and decision thereon the said Second Revised Sheet No. 19 to KNCO's FPC Gas Tariff, Original Volume No. 3, be and it is hereby suspended and the use thereof deferred until August 1, 1960, and until such further time as it may be made effective in the manner prescribed by the Natural Gas Act.

(C) KNCO's Original Sheet No. 35, First Revised Sheets Nos. 9, 31, and 32, Second Revised Sheets Nos. 33 and 34 to its FPC Gas Tariff, Original Volume No. 3, are hereby accepted for filing effective July 1, 1960, subject, however, to the hearing hereinabove provided.

(D) Nothing contained in this order shall be construed as a waiver of the requirements of section 7 of the Natural Gas Act, as amended; nor shall it be construed as constituting approval by this Commission of any service, rate, charge, classification, or any rule, regulation, contract or practice affecting such service or rate provided for in the above described tariff sheets, nor shall this order be deemed as recognition of any claimed contractual right or obligation affecting or relating to such service or rate.

(E) This order is without prejudice to any findings or orders which have been or may hereafter be made by this Commission in any proceeding now pending, or hereafter instituted, by or against Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Company, Inc.

(F) Interested State commissions may participate as provided by §§ 1.8 and 1.37(f) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 and 1.37(f)), on or before August 1, 1960.

By the Commission.

JOSEPH H. GUTRIDE,
Secretary.

[F.R. Doc. 60-5709; Filed, June 21, 1960; 8:46 a.m.]

[1] On May 26, 1960, KNCO retendered Second Revised Sheets Nos. 19, 33, and 34 to said tariff in replacement of some of the sheets tendered on May 16, 1960, for the sole purpose of correcting designations and a clerical omission.

[Docket No. G-19510]

TEXAS GAS TRANSMISSION CORP.

Notice of Application and Date of Hearing

JUNE 15, 1960.

Take notice that on September 21, 1959, Texas Gas Transmission Corporation (Applicant), filed an application and supplements thereto on January 29, 1960, March 30, 1960 and April 26, 1960, for a certificate of public convenience and necessity, pursuant to section 7 of the Natural Gas Act, authorizing the acquisition and development of the West Greenville Field in Muhlenberg County, Kentucky, as an underground gas storage field, and the abandonment by sale of its existing Hickory School and Grandview Storage Fields in Daviess County, Kentucky, all as more fully set forth in the application and supplements on file with the Commission and open to public inspection.

Applicant has entered into a contract with Western Kentucky Gas Company (Western Kentucky), dated August 31, 1959, whereby Applicant has agreed to purchase all of the rights and interests of Western Kentucky in the West Greenville Gas Field. Applicant proposes to ultimately develop and operate the field as a gas storage reservoir with an estimated peak-day deliverability of 85,000 Mcf. In connection with the development of the storage to a capacity of 21,500 Mcf per day, Applicant requests the following authority:

(1) To construct and operate one 1,760 horsepower compressor station, one dehydration plant and one meter station in the West Greenville Field and approximately 29.5 miles of 12-inch pipeline connecting the West Greenville Field to the main line facilities of Applicant near Slaughters, Kentucky.

(2) To exchange gas with Western Kentucky during the initial development period of the Field; and

(3) Upon development of the West Greenville Field to a peak-day withdrawal capacity of 21,500 Mcf, to abandon by sale to Western Kentucky, in accordance with the aforementioned agreement, all rights and interests of Applicant in the Hickory School and Grandview Storage Fields, having a combined peak-day withdrawal capacity of 21,500 Mcf, together with all pipelines and equipment presently owned by Applicant connecting such fields to Western Kentucky's distribution system in and near Owensboro, Daviess County, Kentucky.

The facilities for which authority is requested are estimated to cost $2,506,000 and will be financed from funds on hand or short-term bank loans. Other costs involved in the acquisition of the West Greenville Storage, to be paid when a capacity of 21,500 Mcf per day is accomplished amount to a net of $1,055,527, resulting in a total cost for the project of $3,561,527.

Although Applicant anticipates an ultimate capacity of 85,000 Mcf per day, no increase in the presently certificated sales of Applicant is proposed at this time.

This matter is one that should be disposed of as promptly as possible under the applicable rules and regulations, and to that end:

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a hearing will be held on July 18, 1960, at 9:30 a.m., e.d.s.t., in a Hearing Room of the Federal Power commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D.C., concerning the matters involved in and the issues presented by such application: Provided, however, That the Commission may, after a noncontested hearing, dispose of the proceedings pursuant to the provisions of § 1.30(c) (1) or (2) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure. Under the procedure herein provided for, unless otherwise advised, it will be unnecessary for Applicant to appear or be represented at the hearing.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D.C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before July 8, 1960. Failure of any party to appear at and participate in the hearing shall be construed as waiver of and concurrence in omission herein of the intermediate decision procedure in cases where a request therefore is made.

JOSEPH H. GUTRIDE,
Secretary.

[Docket No. 12787 etc.; FCC 60-682]

WALTER L. FOLLMER ET AL.

Memorandum Opinion and Order Severing Applications From Proceeding

In re applications of Walter L. Follmer, Hamilton, Ohio, Docket No. 12787, File No. BP-11323; Interstate Broadcasting Company, Inc. (WQXR), New York, New York, Docket No. 12790, File No. BP-11707; Booth Broadcasting Company (WTOD), Toledo, Ohio, Docket No. 12793, File No. BP-12035; for construction permits.

1. The Commission has before it for consideration (1) a petition for severance, filed on April 21, 1960, by Booth Broadcasting Company, and (2) the reply of the Commission's Broadcast Bureau, filed on May 4, 1960.

2. By Order released March 10, 1959 (FCC 59-194), the Commission designated for consolidated hearing twenty-three applications including those of Booth Broadcasting Company, Walter L. Follmer and Interstate Broadcasting Company, Inc. The latter applications were severed from the multi-party proceeding by Order released May 28, 1959 (FCC 59-508), and consolidated for a separate hearing to resolve issues pertaining solely to their applications. Coshocton Broadcasting Company (WTNS), Washita Valley Broadcasting Company (KWCO), and E. Weaks McKinney-Smith (WDXR), parties respondent in the original proceeding (FCC 59-194), were severed and made parties to this proceeding (FCC 59-508). Subsequently, Washita Valley defaulted as a party because of failure to file an appearance as required by § 1.170(e). (FCC 59-576).

3. The hearing issues applicable to the petitioner are an area and population issue, a standard interference issue, an interference issue between petitioner's proposed operation and WTNS, an issue as to whether petitioner's transmitter meets the requirements of § 3.188 of the Commission's rules, an issue as to whether the transmitter site is satisfactory in respect to obstructions to the proposed directional antenna radiation pattern, and a multiple ownership issue. Petitioner Booth now requests that its application to increase the power of Station WTOD from 1 kw to 5 kw, daytime only, be severed from the above-captioned proceeding and that Coshocton Broadcasting Company (WTNS) be made a party to the proceeding involving Booth's application.

4. In support of its request, Booth states that its proposal does not involve any interference problems with the other proposals in this proceeding except for the interference which its proposed operation would cause to that proposed by Follmer. This interference, according to Booth, would affect 6.6 percent of the population within Follmer's proposed 0.5 mv/m contour, and the area of interference presently receives a minimum of 9 and a maximum of 13 other services. Booth further alleges that the total daytime interference to Follmer by existing stations and pending proposals is less than 10 percent, and that the interference between Follmer and Interstate relates solely to nighttime operations. There is no issue between respondent Coshocton Broadcasting Company (WTNS) and either of the other applicants in this proceeding, and no issue exists between respondent E. Weaks McKinney-Smith and petitioner.

5. The Broadcast Bureau has no objection to petitioner's request, but points that 8.6 percent of the population within Follmer's 0.5 mv/m contour will receive interference from petitioner's proposal rather than 6.6 percent as petitioner has indicated. Follmer and Interstate have consented to the grant of the petition, and Follmer is willing to accept the interference to his proposal from petitioner's proposed operation.

6. It is the Commission's view that the instant petition should be granted. Booth's proposal is not involved in any interference problems with the proposal of Interstate, and the interference caused to Follmer's proposal is within the limits prescribed by § 3.28(c) of the rules, the interference area is presently served by numerous other stations, and Follmer has agreed to accept the interference. Hence, there is no reason for retaining Booth's application in the above-captioned consolidated proceeding. Coshocton Broadcasting Company's Station WTNS would receive interference only from the Booth proposal, and Coshocton Broadcasting Company will therefore be made a party respondent to the severed proceeding.

Accordingly, it is ordered, This 15th day of June 1960, that the petition of Booth Broadcasting Company, filed April 21, 1960, is granted;

It is further ordered, That the application of Booth Broadcasting Company (BP–12035) is severed from the above-captioned proceeding;

It is further ordered, That the application so severed shall be retained in hearing to resolve the issues pertaining to it;

It is further ordered, That respondent Coshocton Broadcasting Company (WTNS) is also severed from the above-captioned proceeding and is hereby made a party to the proceeding on the severed application.

Released: June 17, 1960.

§ 31.6011(b) Statutory provisions; identification of taxpayer.

SEC. 6011. General requirement of return, statement, or list. * * *

(b) Identification of taxpayer. The Secretary or his delegate is authorized to require such information with respect to persons subject to the taxes imposed by chapter 21 or chapter 24 as is necessary or helpful in securing proper identification of such persons.

§ 31.6011(b)–1 Employers' identification numbers.

(a) Requirement of application—(1) In general. Except as provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, every employer who on or after January 1, 1955, has in his employ one or more individuals in employment for wages subject to the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, but who prior to such date has neither secured an identification number nor made application therefor, shall make an application on Form SS–4 for an identification number. Each application, together with any supplementary statement, shall be prepared in accordance with the form, instructions, and regulations applicable thereto, and shall set forth fully and clearly the data therein called for. Copies of Form SS–4 may be obtained from any district director, or any district office of the Social Security Administration. The application shall be filed with the district director with whom the employer will file returns of the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, or with the nearest district office of the Social Security Administration. Each application shall be signed by (i) the individual, if the employer is an individual; (ii) the president, vice president, or other principal officer, if the employer is a corporation; (iii) a responsible and duly authorized member or officer having knowledge of its affairs, if the employer is a partnership or other unincorporated organization; or (iv) the fiduciary, if the employer is a trust or estate. An identification number will be assigned to the employer in due course upon the basis of information reported on the application required under this section.

(2) Exception. An employer, other than an employer who is required to file returns of the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act with the office of the United States Internal Revenue Service in Puerto Rico, who has in his employ only employees who are engaged exclusively in the performance of domestic service in his private home not on a farm operated for profit (see § 31.3121(a)(7)–1) is not required to apply for an identification number.

(3) Time for filing Form SS–4. The application for an identification number shall be filed on or before the seventh day after the date on which the first payment of wages, as defined in the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, is made by the employer. For provisions relating to the time when wages are paid, see § 31.3121(a)–2 of Subpart B of the regulations in this part.

(b) Employers who are assigned identification numbers without application. An identification number will be assigned by a district director in the case of (1) an employer who is required to make returns of the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act but who by reason of the provisions of paragraph (a)(2) of this section is not required to apply for an identification number, and (2) an employer who is required to make returns of income tax withheld from wages pursuant to section 3402 but who is not required to make returns of the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act.

(c) Crew leaders. Any person who, as a crew leader within the meaning of section 3121(o), furnishes individuals to perform agricultural labor for another person shall, on or before the first date on which he furnishes such individuals to perform such labor for such other person, advise such other person of his name; permanent mailing address, or if none, present address; and identification number, if any.

(d) Use of identification number. The identification number assigned to an employer (other than a household employer referred to in paragraph (a)(2) of this section) shall be shown in the employer's records, returns, statements for employees, depositary receipts, and claims to the extent required by the applicable forms, regulations, and instructions.

§ 31.6011(b)–2 Employees' account numbers.

(a) Requirement of application—(1) In general. Every employee who on or after January 1, 1955, is in employment for wages subject to the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, but who prior to such date has neither secured an account number nor made application therefor, shall make an application on Form SS–5 for an account number. Each application shall be prepared in accordance with the form, instructions, and regulations applicable thereto, and shall set forth fully and clearly the data therein called for. Such employee shall file the application with any district office of the Social Security Administration or, if the employee is not working within the United States, with the district office of the Social Security Administration at Baltimore, Maryland. Copies of Form SS–5 may be obtained from any district office of the Social Security Administration or from any district director. An account number will be assigned to the employee by the Social Security Administration in due course upon the basis of information reported on the application required under this section. A card showing the name and account number of an employee to whom an account number has been assigned will be furnished to the employee by the Social Security Administration.

(2) Time for filing Form SS–5. The application shall be filed on or before the seventh day after the date on which the employee first performs employment for wages, unless the employee leaves the employ of his employer before such seventh day, in which case the application shall be filed on or before the date on which the employee leaves the employ of his employer.

(3) Changes and corrections. Any employee may have his account number changed at any time by applying to a district office of the Social Security Administration and showing good reasons for a change. With that exception, only one account number will be assigned to an employee. Any employee whose name is changed by marriage or otherwise, or who has stated incorrect information on Form SS–5, should report such change or correction to a district office of the Social Security Administration. Copies of the form for making such reports may be obtained from any district office of the Administration.

(b) Duties of employee with respect to his account number—(1) Information to be furnished to employer. An employee shall, on the day on which he enters the employ of any employer for wages, comply with the provisions of subdivision (i), (ii), (iii), or (iv) of this subparagraph, except that, if the employee's services for the employer consist solely of agricultural labor, domestic service in a private home of the employer not on a farm operated for profit, or service not in the course of the employer's trade or business, the employee shall comply with such provisions on the first day on which wages are paid to him by such employer, within the meaning of § 31.3121(a)–2 of Subpart B of the regulations in this part:

(i) Employee who has account number card. If the employee has been issued an account number card by the Social Security Administration and has the card available, the employee shall show it to the employer.

(ii) Employee who has number but card not available. If the employee does not have available the account number card issued to him by the Social Security Administration but knows what his account number is, and what his name is, exactly as shown on such card, the employee shall advise the employer of such number and name. Care must be exercised that the employer is correctly advised of such number and name.

(iii) Employee who has receipt acknowledging application. If the employee does not have an account number card but has available a receipt issued to him by an office of the Social Security Administration acknowledging that an application for an account number has been received, the employee shall show such receipt to the employer.

(iv) Employee who is unable to furnish number or receipt. If an employee is unable to comply with the requirement of subdivision (i), (ii), or (iii) of this subparagraph, the employee shall furnish to the employer a statement in writing, signed by the employee, setting forth the date of the statement, the employee's full name, present address, date and place of birth, father's full name, mother's full name before marriage, and the employee's sex, including a statement as to whether the employee has previously filed an application on Form SS–5 and, if so, the date and place of such filing. The information required by this subdivision shall be furnished on Form SS–5, if a copy of Form SS–5 is available. The furnishing of such a Form SS–5 or other statement by the employee to the employer does not relieve the employee of his obligation to make an application on Form SS–5 and file it with a district office of the Social Security Administration as required by paragraph (a) of this section. The foregoing provisions of this subdivision are not applicable to an employee engaged exclusively in the performance of domestic service in a private home of his employer not on a farm operated for profit, or in the performance of agricultural labor, if the services are performed for an employer other than an employer required to file returns of the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act with the office of the United States Internal Revenue Service in Puerto Rico. However, such employee shall advise the employer of his full name and present address.

For provisions relating to the duties of an employer when furnished the information required by subdivision (i), (ii), (iii), or (iv) of this subparagraph, see paragraph (c) of this section.

(2) Additional information to be furnished by employee to employer. Every employee who, on the day on which he is required to comply with subdivision (i), (ii), (iii), or (iv) of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, has an account number card but for any reason does not show such card to the employer on such day shall promptly thereafter show the card to the employer. An employee who does not have an account number card on such day shall, upon receipt of an account number card from the Social Security Administration, promptly show such card to the employer, if he is still in the employ of that employer. If the employee has left the employ of the employer when the employee receives an account number card from the Social Security Administration, he shall promptly advise the employer of his account number and name exactly as shown on such card. The account number originally assigned to an employee (or the number as changed in accordance with paragraph (a)(3) of this section) shall be used by the employee as required by this paragraph even though he enters the employ of other employers.

(c) Duties of employer with respect to employees' account numbers—(1) Employee who shows account number. Upon being shown the account number card issued to an employee by the Social Security Administration, the employer shall enter the account number and name, exactly as shown on the card, in the employer's records, returns, statements for employees, and claims to the extent required by the applicable forms, regulations, and instructions.

(2) Employee who does not show account number card. With respect to an employee who, on the day on which he is required to comply with subdivision (i), (ii), (iii), or (iv) of paragraph (b)(1) of this section, does not show the employer an account number card issued to the employee by the Social Security Administration, the employer shall request such employee to show him such card. If the card is not shown, the employer shall comply with the applicable provisions of subdivision (i), (ii), (iii), (iv), or (v) of this subparagraph:

(i) Employee who has not applied for account number. If the employee has not been assigned an account number and has not made application therefor with a district office of the Social Security Administration, the employer shall inform the employee of his duties under this section.

(ii) Employee who has account number. If the employee advises the employer of his number and name as shown on his account number card, as provided in paragraph (b)(1)(ii) of this section, the employer shall enter such number and name in his records.

(iii) Employee who has receipt for application. If the employee shows the employer, as provided in paragraph (b)(1)(iii) of this section, a receipt issued to him by an office of the Social Security Administration acknowledging that an application for an account number has been received from the employee, the employer shall enter in his records with respect to such employee the name and address of the employee exactly as shown on the receipt, the expiration date of the receipt, and the address of the issuing office. The receipt shall be retained by the employee.

(iv) Employee who furnishes Form SS–5 or statement. If the employee furnishes information to the employer as provided in paragraph (b)(1)(iv) of this section, the employer shall retain such information for use as provided in subparagraph (3)(ii) of this paragraph.

(v) Household or agricultural employees. If the employee advises the employer of his full name and present address in accordance with those provisions of paragraph (b)(1)(iv) of this section which are applicable in the case of employees engaged exclusively in the performance of domestic service in a private home of the employer not on a farm operated for profit, or agricultural labor, the employer shall enter such name and address in his records.

(3) Account number unknown when return is filed. In any case in which the employee's account number is for any reason unknown to the employer at the time the employer's return is filed for any return period with respect to which the employer is required to report the wages paid to such employee—

(i) If employee has shown receipt for application. If the employee has shown to the employer, as provided in paragraph (b)(1)(iii) of this section, a receipt issued to him by an office of the Social Security Administration acknowledging that an application for an account number has been received from the employee, the employer shall enter on the return, with the entry with respect to the employee, the name and address of the employee exactly as shown on the receipt, the expiration date of the receipt, and the address of the issuing office.

(ii) If employee furnished Form SS–5 or statement. If the employee has furnished information to the employer as provided in paragraph (b)(1)(iv) of this section, the employer shall prepare a copy of the Form SS–5 or statement furnished by the employee and attach the copy to the return.

(iii) If employee did not furnish receipt, Form SS–5, or statement. If neither subdivision (i) nor (ii) of this subparagraph is applicable, the employer shall, except as provided in subparagraph (4) of this paragraph, attach to the return a Form SS–5 or statement, signed by the employer, setting forth as fully and clearly as practicable the employee's full name, his present or last known address, date and place of birth, father's full name, mother's full name before marriage, the employee's sex, and a statement as to whether an application for an account number has previously been filed by the employee and, if so, the date and place of such filing. The employer shall also insert in such Form SS–5 or statement an explanation of why he has not secured from the employee the information referred to in paragraph (b)(1)(iv) of this section, and shall insert the word "Employer" as part of his signature.

(4) Household or agricultural employees. The provisions of subparagraph (3)(iii) of this paragraph are not applicable with respect to an employee engaged exclusively in the performance of domestic service in a private home of his employer not on a farm operated for profit, or in the performance of agricultural labor, if the services are performed for an employer other than an employer required to file returns of the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act with the office of the United States Internal Revenue Service in Puerto Rico. If any such employee has not furnished to the employer the information required by paragraph (b)(1)(i), (ii), or (iii) of this section prior to the time the employer's return is filed for any return period with respect to which the employer is required to report wages paid to such employee, the employer shall enter the word "Unknown" in the account number column of the return and (i) file with the return a statement showing the employee's full name and present or last known address, or (ii) enter such address on the return form immediately below the name of the employee.

(5) Where to obtain Form SS–5. Employers may obtain copies of Form SS–5 from any district office of the Social Security Administration or from any district director.

(6) Prospective employees. While not mandatory, it is suggested that the employer advise any prospective employee who does not have an account number of the requirements of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section.

§ 31.6051–1 Statements for employees.

(a) Requirement if wages are subject to withholding of income tax—(1) General rule. (i) Every employer, as defined in section 3401(d), required to deduct and withhold from an employee a tax under section 3402, or who would have been required to deduct and withhold a tax under section 3402 if the employee had claimed no more than one withholding exemption, shall furnish to each such employee, in respect of the remuneration paid by such employer to such employee during the calendar year, the tax return copy and the employee's copy of a statement on Form W–2. For example, if the wage bracket method of withholding provided in section 3402(c)(1) is used, a statement on Form W–2 must be furnished to each employee whose wages during any payroll period are equal to or in excess of the smallest wage from which tax must be withheld in the case of an employee claiming one exemption. If the percentage method is used, a statement on Form W–2 must be furnished to each employee whose wages during any payroll period are in excess of one withholding exemption for such payroll period as shown in the percentage method withholding table contained in section 3402(b)(1). Each statement on Form W–2 shall show the following:

(a) The name, address, and identification number of the employer,

(b) The name and address of the employee, and, if wages as defined in section 3121(a) have been paid, his social security account number,

(c) The total amount of wages as defined in section 3401(a),

(d) The total amount deducted and withheld as tax under section 3402,

(e) The total amount of wages as defined in section 3121(a), and

(f) The total amount of employee tax under section 3101 deducted and withheld (increased by any adjustment in the calendar year for overcollection, or decreased by any adjustment in such year for undercollection, of such tax during any prior year).

See paragraph (d) of this section for provisions relating to the time for furnishing the statement required by this subparagraph.

(ii) Payments made in 1955 under a wage continuation plan shall be reported on Form W–2 to the extent, and in the manner, provided in paragraph (b)(8)(i) of § 31.3401(a)–1 of Subpart E of the regulations in this part.

(iii) In the case of statements furnished by the employer for whom services are performed, with respect to wages paid after December 31, 1955, "the total amount of wages as defined in section 3401(a)", as used in section 6051(a)(3), shall include all payments made directly by such employer under a wage continuation plan which constitute wages in accordance with § 31.3401(a)–1(b)(8)(ii)(a), without regard to whether tax has been withheld on such amounts.

(iv) Form W–2 is not required in respect of any wage continuation payment made to an employee by or on behalf of a person who is not the employer for whom the employee performs services but who is regarded as an employer under section 3401(d)(1). See paragraph (b)(8) of § 31.3401(a)–1 of Subpart E of the regulations in this part.

(v) In the case of remuneration paid for service described in section 3121(m), relating to service in the uniformed services, performed after 1956, "wages as defined in section 3121(a)", as used in section 6051(a)(2) and (5), shall be determined in accordance with section 3121(i)(2) and section 3122.

(2) Statements for members of the Armed Forces of the United States. Section 6051(b) contains certain special provisions which are applicable in the case of members of the Armed Forces of the United States in active service. In such case, Form W–2 shall be furnished to each such member of the Armed Forces if any tax has been withheld under section 3402 during the calendar year from the remuneration of such member or if any of the remuneration paid during the calendar year for such active service is includible under chapter 1 in the gross income of such member. Form W–2, in the case of such member, shall show, as "the total amount of wages as defined in section 3401(a)", as used in section 6051(a)(3), the amount of the remuneration paid during the calendar year which is not excluded under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 from the gross income of such member, whether or not such remuneration constitutes wages as defined in section 3401(a) and whether or not paid for such active service.

(3) Undelivered Forms W–2. The tax return copy and the employee's copy of each withholding statement on Form W–2 for the calendar year which the employer is required to furnish to the employee and which after reasonable effort he is unable to deliver to the employee shall be transmitted to the district director with the return on Form 941 filed by the employer for the return period ending June 30 in the next succeeding calendar year or with the employer's final return if filed for a period ending on an earlier date. Thus, the undelivered copies of Forms W–2 ordinarily will be transmitted to the district director on or before July 31 or August 10 of the year following that for which they were issued, depending upon when the return for such return period is required to be filed. In the case of an employer having branch offices, the undelivered copies of Forms W–2 held in such branch offices may be transmitted by the employer with such return or, at the option of the employer, may be transmitted by the branch office directly to the district director for the internal revenue district in which the branch office is located. Such direct transmittal by branch offices shall be made at the time prescribed for the filing of the employer's return for the return period ending June 30 in the calendar year following that for which the Forms W–2 were issued or at the time of the filing of the employer's final return if filed for a period ending on an earlier date. The provisions of this subparagraph are also applicable with respect to any undelivered corrected statements issued for a prior calendar year.

(b) Requirement if wages are not subject to withholding of income tax—(1) General rule. If during the calendar year an employer pays to an employee wages subject to the employee tax imposed by section 3101, and the employer is not required by paragraph (a) of this section to furnish to such employee a statement on Form W–2 for such calendar year, the employer shall, in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph, furnish a written statement to the employee with respect to such wages. Such statement shall be in a form suitable for retention by the employee and shall show, with respect to the wages paid by the employer to the employee during the calendar year for employment after 1936, the following:

(i) The name and address of the employer,

(ii) The name, address, and social security account number of the employee,

(iii) The total amount of wages as defined in section 3121(a), and

(iv) The total amount of employee tax deducted and withheld from such wages (increased by any adjustment in such year for overcollection, or decreased by any adjustment in such year for undercollection, of employee tax during any prior year).

See paragraph (d) of this section for provisions relating to the time for furnishing the statement required by this paragraph.

(2) Uniformed services. In the case of remuneration paid for service described in section 3121(m), relating to service in the uniformed services, performed after 1956, "wages as defined in section 3121(a)", as used in section 6051(a)(5), shall be determined in accordance with section 3121(i)(2) and section 3122.

(3) Form of statement. No particular form is prescribed for the statement required by this paragraph. For the convenience of employers in complying with the requirements of this paragraph, copies of a form of statement, Form SS–14, will be furnished by district directors upon request.

(c) Correction of statements—(1) Federal Insurance Contributions Act. If (i) the amount of employee tax under section 3101 deducted and withheld in the calendar year from the wages, as defined in section 3121(a), paid during such year was less or greater than the tax imposed by section 3101 on such wages by reason of the adjustment in such year of an overcollection or undercollection of the tax in any prior year, or (ii) regardless of the reason for the error or the method of its correction, the amount of wages as defined in section 3121(a), or tax under section 3101, entered on a statement furnished pursuant to this section to an employee for a prior year was incorrect, a corrected statement for such prior year reflecting the adjustment or the correct data shall be furnished to the employee. Such statement shall be marked "Corrected by Employer".

(2) Income tax withholding. A corrected statement on Form W–2 shall be furnished to the employee with respect to a prior calendar year (i) to show the correct amount of wages, as defined in section 3401(a), paid during the prior calendar year if the amount of such wages entered on a statement furnished to the employee for such prior year is incorrect, or (ii) to show the amount actually deducted and withheld as tax under section 3402 if such amount is less or greater than the amount entered as tax withheld on the statement furnished the employee for such prior year. Such statement shall be marked "Corrected by Employer".

(3) Cross reference. For provisions relating to the disposition of the district director's copy of a corrected Form W–2, see paragraph (b)(4) of § 31.6011(a)–4.

(d) Time for furnishing statements—(1) In general. Each statement required by this section for a calendar year and each corrected statement required for any prior year shall be furnished to the employee on or before January 31 of the year succeeding such calendar year, or, if his employment is terminated before the close of such calendar year, on the day on which the last payment of wages is made. For provisions relating to the filing of the district director's copies of Form W–2, see paragraph (b) of § 31.6011(a)–4.

(2) Extensions of time. (i) For good cause shown upon written application by an employer, the district director may grant an extension of time not exceeding 30 days in which to furnish to employees the statements required by this section. Each application for an extension of time under this subdivision shall be made in writing, properly signed by the employer or his duly authorized agent; shall be addressed to the district director with whom the employer files his returns; and shall contain a full recital of the reasons for requesting the extension, to aid the district director in determining the period of the extension, if any, which will be granted. Such a request in the form of a letter to the district director will suffice as an application. The application shall be filed on or before the date prescribed in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph for furnishing the statements required by this section. In any case in which an employer is unable, by reason of illness, absence, or other good cause, to sign a request for an extension, any person standing in close personal or business relationship to the employer may sign the request on his behalf, and shall be considered as a duly authorized agent for this purpose, provided the request sets forth a reason for a signature other than the employer's and the relationship existing between the employer and the signer. For provisions relating to extensions of time for filing the district director's copies of Form W–2, see paragraph (a)(3) of § 31.6081(a)–1.

(ii) An extension of time, not exceeding 30 days, within which to furnish any statement required by this section upon termination of employment is hereby granted to any employer with respect to any employee whose employment is terminated during the calendar year. In the case of intermittent or interrupted employment where there is reasonable expectation on the part of both employer and employee of further employment, there is no requirement that a written statement be immediately furnished the employee; but when such expectation ceases to exist, the statement must be furnished within 30 days from that time.

(3) Cross references. For provisions relating to the penalties provided for the willful furnishing of a false or fraudulent statement, or for the willful failure to furnish a statement, see § 31.6674–1 and section 7204.

§ 31.6061 Statutory provisions; signing of returns and other documents.

SEC. 6061. Signing of returns and other documents. * * * any return, statement, or other document required to be made under any provision of the internal revenue laws or regulations shall be signed in accordance with forms or regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate.

§ 31.6061–1 Signing of returns.

Each return required under the regulations in this subpart shall, if signature is called for by the form or instructions relating to the return, be signed by (a) the individual, if the person required to make the return is an individual; (b) the president, vice president, or other principal officer, if the person required to make the return is a corporation; (c) a responsible and duly authorized member or officer having knowledge of its affairs, if the person required to make the return is a partnership or other unincorporated organization; or (d) the fiduciary, if the person required to make the return is a trust or estate. The return may be signed for the taxpayer by an agent who is duly authorized in accordance with § 31.6011(a)–7 to make such return.

SEC. 6065. Verification of returns—(a) Penalties of perjury. Except as otherwise provided by the Secretary or his delegate, any return, declaration, statement, or other document required to be made under any provision of the internal revenue laws or regulations shall contain or be verified by a written declaration that it is made under the penalties of perjury.

§ 31.6065(a)–1 Verification of returns or other documents.

If a return, statement, or other document made under the regulations in this part is required by the regulations contained in this part, or the form and instructions issued with respect to such return, statement, or other document, to contain or be verified by a written declaration that it is made under the penalties of perjury, such return, statement, or other document shall be so verified by the person signing it.

SEC. 6091. Place for filing returns or other documents—(a) General rule. When not otherwise provided for by this title, the Secretary or his delegate shall by regulations prescribe the place for the filing of any return, declaration, statement, or other document, or copies thereof, required by this title or by regulations.

(b) Tax returns. In the case of returns of tax required under authority of part II of this subchapter—

(1) Individuals. Returns (other than corporation returns) shall be made to the Secretary or his delegate in the internal revenue district in which is located the legal residence or principal place of business of the person making the return, or, if he has no legal residence or principal place of business in any internal revenue district, then at such place as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe.

(2) Corporations. Returns of corporations shall be made to the Secretary or his delegate in the internal revenue district in which is located the principal place of business or principal office or agency of the corporation, or, if it has no principal place of business or principal office or agency in any internal revenue district, then at such place as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe.

* * * * *

(4) Exceptional cases. Notwithstanding paragraph (1), (2) * * * of this subsection, the Secretary or his delegate may permit a return to be filed in any internal revenue district, and may require the return of any officer or employee of the Treasury Department to be filed in any internal revenue district selected by the Secretary or his delegate.

§ 31.6091–1 Place for filing returns.

(a) Persons other than corporations. The return of a person other than a corporation shall be filed with the district director for the internal revenue district in which is located the principal place of business or legal residence of such person. If such person has no principal place of business or legal residence in any internal revenue district, the return shall be filed with the District Director at Baltimore, Maryland, except as provided in paragraph (c) of this section.

(b) Corporations. The return of a corporation shall be filed with the district director for the district in which is located the principal place of business or principal office or agency of the corporation, except as provided in paragraph (c) of this section.

(d) Exceptional cases—(1) Permission to file in district other than required district. The Commissioner may permit the filing of any return required to be made under the regulations in this subpart in any internal revenue district, notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 6091(b) and paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of this section.

(2) Returns of officers and employees of the Internal Revenue Service. The Commissioner may require any officer or employee of the Internal Revenue Service to file any return required of him under the regulations in this subpart in any internal revenue district selected by the Commissioner, notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 6091(b) and paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of this section.

§ 31.6101 Statutory provisions; period covered by returns or other documents.

SEC. 6101. Period covered by returns or other documents. When not otherwise provided for by this title, the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe the period for which, or the date as of which, any return, statement, or other document required by this title or by regulations, shall be made.

§ 31.6101–1 Period covered by returns.

The period covered by any return required under the regulations in this subpart shall be as provided in those provisions of the regulations under which the return is required to be made. See § 31.6011(a)–1, relating to returns of taxes under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act; § 31.6011(a)–2, relating to returns of taxes under the Railroad Retirement Tax Act; § 31.6011(a)–3, relating to returns of tax under the Federal Unemployment Tax Act; § 31.6011(a)–4, relating to returns of income tax withheld under section 3402; and § 31.6011(a)–5, relating to monthly returns of taxes under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act and of income tax withheld under section 3402.

§ 31.6161(a)(1) Statutory provisions; extension of time for paying tax.

SEC. 6161. Extension of time for paying tax—(a) Amount determined by taxpayer on return—(1) General rule. The Secretary or his delegate, except as otherwise provided in this title, may extend the time for payment of the amount of the tax shown, or required to be shown, on any return or declaration required under authority of this title (or any installment thereof), for a reasonable period not to exceed 6 months from the date fixed for payment thereof. Such extension may exceed 6 months in the case of a taxpayer who is abroad.

§ 31.6161(a)(1)–1 Extensions of time for paying tax.

No extension of time will be granted for payment of any of the taxes to which the regulations in this part have application.

§ 31.6205 Statutory provisions; special rules applicable to certain employment taxes.

SEC. 6205. Special rules applicable to certain employment taxes—(a) Adjustment of tax—(1) General rule. If less than the correct amount of tax imposed by section 3101, 3111, 3201, 3221, or 3402 is paid with respect to any payment of wages or compensation, proper adjustments, with respect to both the tax and the amount to be deducted, shall be made, without interest, in such manner and at such times as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe.

(2) United States as employer. For purposes of this subsection, in the case of remuneration received from the United States or a wholly-owned instrumentality thereof during any calendar year, each head of a Federal agency or instrumentality who makes a return pursuant to section 3122 and each agent, designated by the head of a Federal agency or instrumentality, who makes a return pursuant to such section shall be deemed a separate employer.

(b) Underpayments. If less than the correct amount of tax imposed by section 3101, 3111, 3201, 3221, or 3402 is paid or deducted with respect to any payment of wages or compensation and the underpayment cannot be adjusted under subsection (a) of this section, the amount of the underpayment shall be assessed and collected in such manner and at such times (subject to the statute of limitations properly applicable thereto) as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe.

§ 31.6205–1 Adjustments of underpayments.

(a) In general. (1) An employer who makes, or has made, an undercollection or underpayment of—

(i) Employee tax under section 3101, employer tax under section 3111, or the employee or employer tax under corresponding provisions of prior law,

(ii) Employee tax under section 3201, employer tax under section 3221, or the employee or employer tax under corresponding provisions of prior law, or

(iii) Income tax required under section 3402 to be withheld, with respect to any payment of wages or compensation, shall correct such error as provided in this section. Such correction shall constitute an adjustment without interest to the extent provided in paragraph (b) or (c) of this section.

(2) Every correction under this section of an underpayment of tax with respect to a payment of wages or compensation shall be made on the return form which is prescribed for use, at the time the correction is made, in reporting tax which corresponds to the tax underpaid.

(3) Every return or supplemental return on which an underpayment is corrected pursuant to this section must have securely attached as a part thereof a statement explaining the correction, designating the return period in which the error was ascertained and the return period to which the error relates, and setting forth such other information as may be required by the regulations in this subpart and by the instructions relating to the return.

(4) For purposes of this section, an error is ascertained when the employer has sufficient knowledge of the error to be able to correct it.

(5) If a correction is made under this section with respect to the erroneous reporting on a return, or omission from a return, under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, as in effect prior to or on and after January 1, 1955, of an amount of wages required to be shown on the return as a separate item in respect of a particular employee, the statement referred to in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph shall include the following information:

(i) The name and account number of each employee whose wages were erroneously reported or omitted from such return,

(ii) The period for which such wages were required to be reported on such return,

(iii) The amount, if any, of wages actually reported on such return for each such employee, and

(iv) The amount of wages which should have been reported on such return for each such employee.

No particular form is prescribed for furnishing the information required by this subparagraph, but if printed forms are desired, the district director will supply Form 941c or Form 941c PR, whichever is appropriate, upon request.

(6) No underpayment shall be reported pursuant to this section after receipt from the district director of notice and demand for payment thereof based upon an assessment, but the amount shall be paid in accordance with such notice and demand.

(7) For provisions relating to correction of erroneous statements furnished to employees in respect of wages subject to withholding of income tax under section 3402, and of wages under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, see paragraph (c) of § 31.6051–1.

(b) Federal Insurance Contributions Act and Railroad Retirement Tax Act—(1) Undercollection ascertained before return is filed. If no employee tax or less than the correct amount of employee tax is deducted from any payment to an employee of wages, as defined in the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, or compensation as defined in the Railroad Retirement Tax Act, and the error is ascertained before the filing of the return on which the employee tax with respect to such wages or compensation is required to be reported, the employer shall nevertheless report on such return and pay to the district director the correct amount of such employee tax. However, the reporting and payment by the employer of the correct amount of such tax in accordance with this subparagraph do not constitute an adjustment.

(2) Underpayment ascertained after return is filed. (i) If a return is filed, and if no employee tax, no employer tax, or less than the correct amount of either such tax with respect to any payment to an employee of wages as defined in the Federal Insurance Contributions Act or corresponding provisions of prior law, or compensation as defined in the Railroad Retirement Tax Act or corresponding provisions of prior law, is reported on such return and paid to the district director, the employer shall adjust the underpayment (a) by reporting the additional amount due by reason of the underpayment as an adjustment on a return filed on or before the last day on which the return is required to be filed for the return period in which the error is ascertained, or (b) by reporting such additional amount on a supplemental return for the return period in which such payment of wages or compensation is made. The reporting of such underpayment on a supplemental return constitutes an adjustment within the meaning of this section only when the supplemental return is filed on or before the last day on which the return is required to be filed for the return period in which the error is ascertained. The amount of each underpayment adjusted in accordance with this subdivision shall be paid to the district director, without interest, at the time fixed for reporting the adjustment. If an adjustment is reported pursuant to this subdivision, but the amount thereof is not paid when due, interest thereafter accrues (see section 6601).

(ii) If a return is filed, and if no employee tax, no employer tax, or less than the correct amount of either such tax with respect to a payment to an employee of wages or compensation is reported on such return and paid to the district director, and such underpayment is not reported as an adjustment within the time prescribed by subdivision (i) of this subparagraph, the amount of such underpayment shall be (a) reported on the employer's next return, or (b) reported immediately on a supplemental return. For interest accruing on amounts so reported, see section 6601 and corresponding provisions of prior law.

(3) Deductions from employees. If an employer collects no employee tax or less than the correct amount of employee tax from an employee with respect to a payment of wages as defined in the Federal Insurance Contributions Act or corresponding provisions of prior law, or compensation as defined in the Railroad Retirement Tax Act or corresponding provisions of prior law, the employer shall collect the amount of the undercollection by deducting such amount from remuneration of the employee, if any, under his control after he ascertains the error. Such deductions may be made even though the remuneration, for any reason, does not constitute wages or compensation. The amount of an undercollection of employee tax from an employee shall be reported and paid, as provided in subparagraph (1) or (2) of this paragraph, whether or not the undercollection is corrected by a deduction made as prescribed in the foregoing provisions of this subparagraph. If such a deduction is not made, the obligation of the employee to the employer with respect to the undercollection is a matter for settlement between the employee and the employer. If any employer makes an erroneous collection of employee tax from two or more of his employees, a separate settlement must be made with respect to each employee. Thus, an overcollection of employee tax from one employee may not be used to offset an undercollection of such tax from another employee.

(c) Income tax required to be withheld from wages—(1) Undercollection ascertained before return is filed. If no income tax, or less than the correct amount of income tax, required under section 3402 to be withheld from wages is deducted from wages paid to an employee in any return period, and if the error is ascertained before the return is filed for the period in which such wages are paid, the employer shall nevertheless report on such return the correct amount of the tax required to be withheld. However, the reporting and payment by an employer of tax in accordance with this subparagraph do not constitute an adjustment.

(2) Underpayment ascertained after return is filed. (i) If a return is filed for a return period, and if no income tax, or less than the correct amount of income tax, required under section 3402 to be withheld from wages paid to an employee in such period, is reported on a return and paid to the district director, the employer shall (a) report the additional amount due by reason of the underpayment on a return for any return period in the calendar year in which the wages were paid, or (b) report such additional amount on a supplemental return for the return period in which such wages were paid. Such reporting constitutes an adjustment within the meaning of this section only if the return or supplemental return on which the underpayment is reported is filed on or before the last day on which the return is required to be filed for the return period in which the error was ascertained.

(ii) If a return is filed for a return period, and if no income tax, or less than the correct amount of income tax, required under section 3402 to be withheld from wages paid to an employee in such period is reported on such return and paid to the district director, and such underpayment is not reported as an adjustment within the time prescribed by subdivision (i) of this subparagraph, the amount of such underpayment shall be (a) reported on the employer's next return, if such next return is for any return period in the calendar year in which the wages were paid, or (b) reported immediately on a supplemental return.

(3) Payment of amounts reported as undercollections or underpayments. (i) For provisions relating to the employer's liability for an underpayment of tax unless he can show that the income tax against which the tax under section 3402 may be credited has been paid, see § 31.3402(d)–1 of Subpart E of the regulations in this part.

(ii) Except as provided in § 31.3402(d)–1 of Subpart E of the regulations in this part, any amount reported as an adjustment within the meaning of this paragraph shall be paid to the district director, without interest, at the time fixed for reporting the adjustment.

(iii) For interest accruing on amounts which are not paid when due, see section 6601.

(4) Deductions from employee. If no income tax, or less than the correct amount of income tax, required under section 3402 to be withheld from wages is deducted from wages paid to an employee in a calendar year, the employer shall collect the amount of the undercollection on or before the last day of such year by deducting such amount from remuneration of the employee, if any, under his control. Such deductions may be made even though the remuneration, for any reason, does not constitute wages. Any undercollection in a calendar year not corrected by a deduction made pursuant to the foregoing provisions of this subparagraph is a matter for settlement between the employee and the employer within such calendar year. For provisions relating to the employer's liability for the tax, whether or not he collects it from the employee, see § 31.3403–1 of Subpart E of the regulations in this part.

§ 31.6302(b) Statutory provisions; mode or time of collection; discretionary method.

SEC. 6302. Mode or time of collection. • • •

(b) Discretionary method. Whether or not the method of collecting any tax imposed by chapters 21, 31, 32, 33, section 4481 of chapter 36, sections 4501(a) or 4511 of chapter 37, or sections 4701 or 4721 of chapter 39 is specifically provided for by this title, any such tax may, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate, be collected by means of returns, stamps, coupons, tickets, books, or such other reasonable devices or methods as may be necessary or helpful in securing a complete and proper collection of the tax.

§ 31.6302(b)–1 Method of collection.

For provisions relating to collection by means of returns of the taxes imposed by chapter 21 (Federal Insurance Contributions Act), see §§ 31.6011(a)–1 and 31.6011(a)–5.

§ 31.6402(a) Statutory provisions; authority to make credits or refunds.

SEC. 6402. Authority to make credits or refunds—(a) General rule. In the case of any overpayment, the Secretary or his delegate, within the applicable period of limitations, may credit the amount of such overpayment, including any interest allowed thereon, against any liability in respect of an internal revenue tax on the part of the person who made the overpayment and shall refund any balance to such person.

§ 31.6402(a)–1 Credits or refunds.

(a) In general. For regulations under section 6402 of special application to credits or refunds of employment taxes, see §§ 31.6402(a)–2, 31.6402(a)–3, and 31.6414–1. For regulations under section 6402 of general application to credits or refunds, see §§ 301.6402–1 and 301.6402–2 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). For provisions relating to credits of employment taxes which constitute adjustments without interest, see §§ 31.6413(a)–1 and 31.6413(a)–2.

(b) Period of limitation. For the period of limitation upon credit or refund of taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, see § 301.6511(a)–1 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). For the period of limitation upon credit or refund of any tax imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, see the regulations applicable with respect to such tax.

§ 31.6402(a)–2 Credit or refund of tax under Federal Insurance Contributions Act or Railroad Retirement Tax Act.

(a) Claim by person who paid tax to district director—(1) In general. Any person who pays to the district director more than the correct amount of—

(i) Employee tax under section 3101, or employer tax under section 3111, of the Federal Insurance Contributions Act,

(ii) Employee tax under section 3201, employee representative tax under section 3211, or employer tax under section 3221, of the Railroad Retirement Tax Act,

(iii) Any such tax under a corresponding provision of prior law, or

(iv) Interest, addition to the tax, additional amount, or penalty with respect to any such tax, may file a claim for refund of the overpayment (except to the extent that the overpayment must be credited pursuant to § 31.3503–1 of Subpart F of the regulations in this part), or may claim credit for such overpayment, in the manner and subject to the conditions stated in this section and § 301.6402–2 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). If credit is claimed pursuant to this section, the amount thereof shall be claimed by entering such amount as a deduction on a return filed by the person making the claim. The return on which the credit is claimed must be on a form which is prescribed for use, at the time of the claim, in reporting tax which corresponds to the tax overpaid. If credit is taken pursuant to this section, a claim on Form 843 is not required, but the return on which the credit is claimed shall have attached as a part thereof a statement which shall constitute the claim for credit, setting forth in detail the grounds and facts relied upon in support of the credit, designating the return period in which the error was ascertained, and setting forth such other information as may be required by the regulations in this subpart and by the instructions relating to the return. No refund or credit of employee tax under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act shall be allowed if for any reason (for example, an overcollection of employee tax having been inadvertently included by the employee in computing a special refund—see § 31.6413(c)–1) the employee has taken the amount of such tax into account in claiming a credit against, or refund of, his income tax, or if so, such claim has been rejected.

(2) Statements supporting employers' claims for employee tax. (i) Every claim filed by an employer for refund or credit of employee tax under section 3101 or section 3201, or a corresponding provision of prior law, collected from an employee shall include a statement that the employer has repaid the tax to such employee or has secured the written consent of such employee to allowance of the refund or credit. The employer shall retain as part of his records the written receipt of the employee showing the date and amount of the repayment, or the written consent of the employee, whichever is used in support of the claim.

(ii) Every claim filed by an employer for refund or credit of employee tax under section 3101, or a corresponding provision of prior law, collected from an employee in a calendar year prior to the year in which the credit or refund is claimed, also shall include a statement that the employer has obtained from the employee a written statement (a) that the employee has not claimed refund or credit of the amount of the overcollection, or if so, such claim has been rejected, and (b) that the employee will not claim refund or credit of such amount. The employer shall retain the employee's written statement as part of the employer's records.

(b) Claim by employee—(1) In general. If more than the correct amount of employee tax under section 3101 or section 3201, or a corresponding provision of prior law, is collected by an employer from an employee and paid to the district director, the employee may file a claim for refund of the overpayment if (i) the employee does not receive reimbursement in any manner from the employer and does not authorize the employer to file a claim and receive refund or credit, (ii) the overcollection cannot be corrected under § 31.3503–1 of Subpart F of the regulations in this part, and (iii) in the case of employee tax under section 3101 or a corresponding provision of prior law, the employee has not taken the overcollection into account in claiming a credit against, or refund of, his income tax, or if so, such claim has been rejected. See § 31.6413(c)–1.

(2) Statements supporting employee's claim. (i) Each employee who makes a claim under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph shall submit with such claim a statement setting forth (a) the extent, if any, to which the employer has reimbursed the employee in any manner for the overcollection, and (b) the amount, if any, of credit or refund of such overpayment claimed by the employer or authorized by the employee to be claimed by the employer. The employee shall obtain such statement, if possible, from the employer, who should include in such statement the fact that it is made in support of a claim against the United States to be filed by the employee for refund of employee tax paid by such employer to the district director. If the employer's statement is not submitted with the claim, the employee shall make the statement to the best of his knowledge and belief, and shall include therein an explanation of his inability to obtain the statement from the employer.

(ii) Each individual who makes a claim under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph for refund of employee tax under section 3101, or a corresponding provision of prior law, also shall submit with such claim a statement setting forth whether the individual has taken the amount of the overcollection into account in claiming a credit against, or refund of, his income tax, and the amount, if any, so claimed (see § 31.6413(c)–1).

(c) Statements to accompany employers' and employees' claims under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act. Whenever a claim for credit or refund of employee tax under section 3101, employer tax under section 3111, or either such tax under a corresponding provision of prior law, is made with respect to remuneration which was erroneously reported on a return or schedule as wages paid to an employee, such claim shall include a statement showing (1) the identification number of the employer, if he was required to make application therefor, (2) the name and account number of such employee, (3) the period covered by such return or schedule, (4) the amount of remuneration actually reported as wages for such employee, and (5) the amount of wages which should have been reported for such employee. No particular form is prescribed for making such statement, but if printed forms are desired, the district director will supply copies of Form 941c or Form 941c PR, whichever is appropriate, upon request.

§ 31.6402(a)–3 Refund of Federal unemployment tax.

Any person who pays to the district director more than the correct amount of—

(a) Tax under section 3301 of the Federal Unemployment Tax Act or a corresponding provision of prior law, or

(b) Interest, addition to the tax, additional amount, or penalty with respect to such tax, may file a claim for refund of the overpayment, in the manner and subject to the conditions stated in § 301.6402–2 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). See § 31.6413(d) and the corresponding section of prior law for provisions which bar the allowance or payment of interest on the amount of any refund based on credit allowable for contributions paid under the unemployment compensation law of a State.

§ 31.6404(a) Statutory provisions; abatements.

SEC. 6404. Abatements—(a) General rule. The Secretary or his delegate is authorized to abate the unpaid portion of the assessment of any tax or any liability in respect thereof, which—

(1) Is excessive in amount, or

(2) Is assessed after the expiration of the period of limitation properly applicable thereto, or

(3) Is erroneously or illegally assessed.

§ 31.6404(a)–1 Abatements.

For regulations under section 6404 of general application to the abatement of taxes, see § 301.6404–1 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). Every claim filed by an employer for abatement of employee tax under section 3101 or section 3201, or a corresponding provision of prior law, shall be made in the manner and subject to the conditions stated in paragraphs (a)(2) and (c) of § 31.6402(a)–2, as if the claim for abatement were a claim for refund.

§ 31.6413(a) Statutory provisions; special rules applicable to certain employment taxes; adjustment of tax.

SEC. 6413. Special rules applicable to certain employment taxes—(a) Adjustment of tax—(1) General rule. If more than the correct amount of tax imposed by section 3101, 3111, 3201, 3221, or 3402 is paid with respect to any payment of remuneration, proper adjustments, with respect to both the tax and the amount to be deducted, shall be made, without interest, in such manner and at such times as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe.

(2) United States as employer. For purposes of this subsection, in the case of remuneration received from the United States or a wholly-owned instrumentality thereof during any calendar year, each head of a Federal agency or instrumentality who makes a return pursuant to section 3122 and each agent, designated by the head of a Federal agency or instrumentality, who makes a return pursuant to such section shall be deemed a separate employer.

§ 31.6413(a)–1 Repayment by employer of tax erroneously collected from employee.

(a) Before employer files return—(1) Employee tax under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act or the Railroad Retirement Tax Act. (i) If an employer—

(a) During any return period collects from an employee more than the correct amount of tax under section 3101 or section 3201, or a corresponding provision of prior law,

(b) Repays the amount of the overcollection to the employee before the return for such period is filed with the district director, and

(c) Obtains and keeps as part of his records the written receipt of the employee showing the date and amount of the repayment,

the employer shall not report on any return or pay to the district director the amount of the overcollection.

(ii) Any overcollection not repaid to and receipted for by the employee as provided in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph shall be reported and paid to the district director with the return for the return period in which the overcollection was made. Such return shall be accompanied by a statement explaining the overcollection, setting forth the account number (if known) and name of the individual from whom the overcollection was made, and showing the total amount overcollected from and not repaid to the individual. If the employer is not required to make a return for such period, the employer nevertheless shall furnish to the district director a statement as described in the preceding sentence, on or before the date fixed for filing a return for such period, and shall pay the amount of the overcollection with such statement.

(2) Income tax withheld from wages. (i) If an employer—

(a) During any return period collects from an employee more than the correct amount of tax under section 3402,

(b) Repays the amount of the overcollection to the employee before the return for such period is filed with the district director and before the end of the calendar year in which the overcollection was made, and

(c) Obtains and keeps as part of his records the written receipt of the employee showing the date and amount of the repayment, the employer shall not report on any return or pay to the district director the amount of the overcollection.

(ii) Any overcollection not repaid to and receipted for by the employee as provided in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph shall be reported and paid to the district director with the return for the return period in which the overcollection was made.

(b) After employer files return—(1) Employee tax under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act or the Railroad Retirement Tax Act. (i) If an employer collects from any employee and pays to the district director more than the correct amount of employee tax under section 3101 or section 3201, or a corresponding provision of prior law, and if the error is ascertained within the applicable period of limitation on credit or refund, the employer shall repay or reimburse the employee in the amount thereof prior to the expiration of the return period following the return period in which the error is ascertained and prior to the expiration of such limitation period. This subparagraph has no application in any case in which an overcollection is made the subject of a claim by the employer for refund or credit, and the employer elects to secure the written consent of the employee to the allowance of the refund or credit under the procedure provided in paragraph (a)(2)(i) of § 31.6402(a)–2.

(ii) If the amount of an overcollection is repaid to an employee, the employer shall obtain and keep as part of his records the written receipt of the employee, showing the date and amount of the repayment. If, in any calendar year, an employer repays or reimburses an employee in the amount of an overcollection of employee tax under section 3101, or a corresponding provision of prior law, which was collected from the employee in a prior calendar year, the employer shall obtain from the employee and keep as part of his records a written statement (a) that the employee has not claimed refund or credit of the amount of the overcollection, or if so, such claim has been rejected, and (b) that the employee will not claim refund or credit of such amount. See § 31.6413(c)–1.

(iii) If the employer does not repay the employee the amount overcollected, the employer shall reimburse the employee by applying the amount of the overcollection against the employee tax which attaches to wages or compensation paid to the employee prior to the expiration of the return period following the return period in which the error is ascertained and prior to the expiration of the applicable period of limitation on credit or refund. If the amount of the overcollection exceeds the amount so applied against such employee tax, the excess amount shall be repaid to the employee as required by this subparagraph.

(iv) For purposes of this subparagraph, an error is ascertained when the employer has sufficient knowledge of the error to be able to correct it.

(v) For the period of limitation upon credit or refund of taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, see § 301.6511(a)–1 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). For the period of limitation upon credit or refund of any tax imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, see the regulations applicable with respect to such tax.

(2) Income tax withheld from wages. (i) If, in any return period in a calendar year, an employer collects from any employee more than the correct amount of tax under section 3402, and the employer pays the amount of such overcollection to the district director, the employer may repay or reimburse the employee in the amount thereof in any subsequent return period in such calendar year.

(ii) If the amount of the overcollection is repaid to the employee, the employer shall obtain and keep as part of his records the written receipt of the employee, showing the date and amount of the repayment. If the employer does not repay the amount of the overcollection, the employer may reimburse the employee by applying the amount of the overcollection against the tax under section 3402 which otherwise would be required to be withheld from wages paid by the employer to the employee in the calendar year in which the overcollection is made.

§ 31.6413(a)–2 Adjustment of overpayments.

(a) Taxes under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act or the Railroad Retirement Tax Act—(1) Employee tax. After an employer repays or reimburses an employee in the amount of an overcollection, as provided in paragraph (b)(1) of § 31.6413(a)–1, the employer may claim credit for such amount in the manner, and subject to the conditions, stated in § 31.6402(a)–2. Such credit shall constitute an adjustment, without interest, if the amount thereof is entered on a return for a period ending on or before the last day of the return period following the return period in which the error was ascertained. No credit or adjustment in respect of an overpayment shall be entered on a return after the filing of a claim for refund of such overpayment.

(2) Employer tax. If an employer pays more than the correct amount of employer tax under section 3111 or section 3221, or a corresponding provision of prior law, the employer may claim credit for the amount of the overpayment in the manner, and subject to the conditions, stated in § 31.6402(a)–2. Such credit shall constitute an adjustment, without interest, if the amount thereof is entered on the same return on which the employer adjusts, pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, a corresponding overpayment of employee tax.

(b) Income tax withheld from wages. If, pursuant to paragraph (b)(2) of § 31.6413(a)–1, an employer repays or reimburses an employee in the amount of an overcollection of tax under section 3402, the employer may adjust the overcollection, without interest, by entering the amount thereof as a deduction on a return of tax under section 3402, filed by the employer for any return period in the calendar year in which the employer repays or reimburses the employee. The return on which the adjustment is entered as a deduction shall have attached thereto a statement explaining the adjustment, designating the return period in which the error occurred, and setting forth such other information as is required by the regulations in this subpart and by the instructions relating to the return.

(b) Overpayments of certain employment taxes. If more than the correct amount of tax imposed by section 3101, 3111, 3201, 3221, or 3402 is paid or deducted with respect to any payment of remuneration and the overpayment cannot be adjusted under subsection (a) of this section, the amount of the overpayment shall be refunded in such manner and at such times (subject to the statute of limitations properly applicable thereto) as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe.

§ 31.6413(b)–1 Overpayments of certain employment taxes.

For provisions relating to the adjustment of overpayments of tax imposed by section 3101, 3111, 3201, 3221, or 3402, see § 31.6413(a)–2. For provisions relating to refunds of tax imposed by section 3101, 3111, 3201, or 3221, see §§ 31.6402(a)–1 and 31.6402(a)–2. For provisions relating to refunds of tax imposed by section 3402, see §§ 31.6402(a)–1 and 31.6414–1.

§ 31.6413(c) Statutory provisions; special rules applicable to certain employment taxes; special refunds.

SEC. 6413. Special rules applicable to certain employment taxes. • • •

(c) Special refunds—(1) In general. If by reason of an employee receiving wages from more than one employer during a calendar year after the calendar year 1950 and prior to the calendar year 1955, the wages received by him during such year exceed $3,600, the employee shall be entitled (subject to the provisions of section 31(b)) to a credit or refund of any amount of tax, with respect to such wages, imposed by section 1400 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 and deducted from the employee's wages (whether or not paid to the Secretary or his delegate), which exceeds the tax with respect to the first $3,600 of such wages received; or if by reason of an employee receiving wages from more than one employer (A) during any calendar year after the calendar year 1954 and prior to the calendar year 1959, the wages received by him during such year exceed $4,200, or (B) during any calendar year after the calendar year 1958, the wages received by him during such year exceed $4,800, the employee shall be entitled (subject to the provisions of section 31(b)) to a credit or refund of any amount of tax, with respect to such wages, imposed by section 3101 and deducted from the employee's wages (whether or not paid to the Secretary or his delegate), which exceeds the tax with respect to the first $4,200 of such wages received in such calendar year after 1954 and before 1959, or which exceeds the tax with respect to the first $4,800 of such wages received in such calendar year after 1958.

(2) Applicability in case of Federal and State employees and employees of certain foreign corporations—(A) Federal employees. In the case of remuneration received from the United States or a wholly-owned instrumentality thereof during any calendar year, each head of a Federal agency or instrumentality who makes a return pursuant to section 3122 and each agent, designated by the head of a Federal agency or instrumentality, who makes a return pursuant to such section shall, for purposes of this subsection, be deemed a separate employer, and the term "wages" includes for purposes of this subsection the amount, not to exceed $3,600 for the calendar year 1951, 1952, 1953, or 1954, $4,200 for the calendar year 1955, 1956, 1957, or 1958, or $4,800 for any calendar year after 1958, determined by each such head or agent as constituting wages paid to an employee.

(B) State employees. For purposes of this subsection, in the case of remuneration received during any calendar year, the term "wages" includes such remuneration for services covered by an agreement made pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act as would be wages if such services constituted employment; the term "employer" includes a State or any political subdivision thereof, or any instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing; the term "tax" or "tax imposed by section 3101" includes, in the case of services covered by an agreement made pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act, an amount equivalent to the tax which would be imposed by section 3101, if such services constituted employment as defined in section 3121; and the provisions of this subsection shall apply whether or not any amount deducted from the employee's remuneration as a result of an agreement made pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act has been paid to the Secretary.

(C) Employees of certain foreign corporations. For purposes of paragraph (1) of this subsection, the term "wages" includes such remuneration for services covered by an agreement made pursuant to section 3121(l) as would be wages if such services constituted employment; the term "employer" includes any domestic corporation which has entered into an agreement pursuant to section 3121(l); the term "tax" or "tax imposed by section 3101", includes, in the case of services covered by an agreement entered into pursuant to section 3121(l), an amount equivalent to the tax which would be imposed by section 3101, if such services constituted employment as defined in section 3121; and the provisions of paragraph (1) of this subsection shall apply whether or not any amount deducted from the employee's remuneration as a result of the agreement entered into pursuant to section 3121(l) has been paid to the Secretary or his delegate.

[Sec. 6413(c) as amended by sec. 202(a)(1), Social Security Amendments 1954 (68 Stat. 1089); sec. 402(d), Social Security Amendments 1958 (72 Stat. 1043)]

§ 31.6413(c)–1 Special refunds.

(a) Who may make claims—(1) In general. (i) If, during any calendar year after 1954 and before 1960, an employee receives wages, as defined in section 3121(a), in excess of $4,200 from two or more employers, or if during any calendar year after 1958, an employee receives wages, as defined in section 3121(a), in excess of $4,800 from two or more employers, the employee shall be entitled to a special refund of the amount, if any, by which the employee tax imposed by section 3101 with respect to such wages and deducted therefrom (whether or not paid to the district director) exceeds the employee tax with respect to the first $4,200 or $4,800, whichever is appropriate, of such wages. If the employee is required to file an income tax return for such calendar year (or for his last taxable year beginning in such calendar year) he may obtain the benefit of the special refund only by claiming credit as provided in § 1.31–2 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations).

(ii) The application of this subparagraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). Employee A in the calendar year 1959 receives taxable wages in the amount of $3,000 from each of his employers, B, C, and D, for services performed during such year (or at any time after 1936), or a total of $9,000. Employee tax (computed at 2½ percent, the employee tax rate in effect in 1959) is deducted from A's wages in the amount of $75 by B and $75 by C, or a total of $150. Employer D pays employee tax in the amount of $75 to the district director without deducting such tax from A's wages. The employee tax with respect to the first $4,200 of such wages is $120. A is entitled to a special refund of $30 ($150 minus $120). The $3,000 of wages received from employer D and the $75 of employee tax paid with respect thereto have no bearing in computing A's special refund since such tax was not deducted from his wages.

Example (2). Employee E in the calendar year 1959 performs services for employers F and G, for which E is entitled to wages of $4,800 from each employer, or a total of $9,600. On account of such services, E in 1958 received an advance payment of $600 of wages from F; and in 1959, receives wages in the amount of $4,200 from F and $4,800 from G. Employee tax was deducted as follows: In 1958, $13.50 ($600×2¼%, the employee tax rate in effect in 1958) by employer F; and in 1959, $105 ($4,200×2½%, the employee tax rate in effect in 1959) by employer F, and $120 ($4,800×2½%) by employer G. Thus, E in the calendar year 1959 received $9,000 in wages, from which $225 of employee tax was deducted. The amount of employee tax with respect to the first $4,800 of such wages received in 1959 is $120. E is entitled to a special refund of $105 ($225 minus $120). The $600 advance of wages received in 1958 from F, and the $13.50 of employee tax with respect thereto, have no bearing in computing E's special refund for 1959, because the wages were not received in 1959. Such amounts could not form the basis for a special refund unless E during 1958 received from F and at least one more employer wages totaling more than $4,200.

(2) Federal employees. For purposes of special refunds of employee tax, each head of a Federal agency or of a wholly owned instrumentality of the United States who makes a return pursuant to section 3122 (and each agent designated by a head of a Federal agency or instrumentality who makes a return pursuant to such section) is considered a separate employer. For such purposes, the term "wages" includes the amount which each such head (or agent) determines to constitute wages paid an employee, but not in excess of $4,200 paid in any calendar year after 1954 and before 1959, or $4,800 paid in any calendar year after 1958. For example, if wages received by an employee during any calendar year after 1958 are reportable by two or more agents of one or more Federal agencies and the amount of such wages is in excess of $4,800, the employee shall be entitled to a special refund of the amount, if any, by which the employee tax imposed with respect to such wages and deducted therefrom exceeds the employee tax with respect to the first $4,800 of such wages. Moreover, if an employee receives wages during any calendar year from an agency or wholly-owned instrumentality of the United States and from one or more other employers, either private or governmental, the total amount of such wages shall be taken into account for purposes of the special refund provisions.

(3) State employees. For purposes of special refunds of employee tax, the term "wages" includes such remuneration for services covered by an agreement made pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act, relating to voluntary agreements for coverage of employees of State and local governments, as would be wages if such services constituted employment (see § 31.3121(a)–1 of Subpart B of the regulations in this part, relating to wages); the term "employer" includes a State or any political subdivision thereof, or any instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing; and the term "tax" or "tax imposed by section 3101" includes an amount equivalent to the employee tax which would be imposed by section 3101 if such services constituted employment. The provisions of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph are applicable whether or not any amount deducted from an employee's remuneration as a result of an agreement made pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act has been paid pursuant to such agreement. Thus, the special refund provisions are applicable to amounts equivalent to employee tax deducted from employees' remuneration by States, political subdivisions, or instrumentalities by reason of agreements made under section 218 of the Social Security Act. Moreover, if during any calendar year an employee receives remuneration for services covered by such an agreement and during the same calendar year receives wages from one or more other employers, either private or governmental, the total amount of such remuneration and wages shall be taken into account for purposes of the special refund provisions.

(4) Employees of certain foreign corporations. For purposes of special refunds of employee tax, the term "wages" includes such remuneration for services covered by an agreement made pursuant to section 3121(l), relating to agreements for coverage of employees of certain foreign corporations, as would be wages if such services constituted employment (see § 31.3121(a)–1 of Subpart B of the regulations in this part, relating to wages); the term "employer" includes any domestic corporation which has entered into an agreement pursuant to section 3121(l); and the term "tax" or "tax imposed by section 3101" includes, in the case of services covered by an agreement entered into pursuant to section 3121(l), an amount equivalent to the employee tax which would be imposed by section 3101 if such services constituted employment. The provisions of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph are applicable whether or not any amount deducted from the employee's remuneration by reason of such agreement has been paid to the district director. Thus, the special refund provisions are applicable to amounts equivalent to employee tax deducted from employees' remuneration by reason of agreements made under section 3121(l). A domestic corporation which enters into an agreement pursuant to section 3121(l) shall, for purposes of this paragraph, be considered an employer in its capacity as a party to such agreement separate and distinct from its identity as an employer employing individuals on its own account (see section 3121(l)(9)). If during any calendar year an employee receives remuneration for services covered by such an agreement and during the same calendar year receives wages for services in employment, the total amount of such remuneration and wages shall be taken into account for purposes of the special refund provisions. For provisions relating to agreements entered into under section 3121(l), see the regulations in Part 36 of this chapter (Regulations on Contract Coverage of Employees of Foreign Subsidiaries).

(b) Claims for special refund—(1) In general. An employee who is entitled to a special refund under section 6413(c) may claim such refund under the provisions of this section only if the employee is not entitled to claim the amount thereof as a credit against income tax as provided in § 1.31–2 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations). Each claim under this section shall be made with respect to wages received within one calendar year (regardless of the year or years after 1936 during which the services were performed for which such wages are received), and shall be filed after the close of such year.

(2) Form of claim. Each claim for special refund under this section shall be made on Form 843, in accordance with the regulations in this subpart and the instructions relating to such form. The claim shall be filed with the district director for the internal revenue district in which the employee resides or, if the employee does not reside in any internal revenue district, with the District Director at Baltimore, Maryland. However, in the case of an employee who does not reside in any internal revenue district and who is outside the United States, the claim shall be filed with the Director, International Operations Division, United States Internal Revenue Service, Washington 25, D.C., unless the employee resides in Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands, in which case the claim shall be filed with the office of the Director, International Operations Division, United States Internal Revenue Service, Santurce, Puerto Rico. The claim shall include the employee's account number and the following information with respect to each employer from whom he received wages during the calendar year: (i) The name and address of such employer, (ii) the amount of wages received during the calendar year to which the claim relates, and (iii) the amount of employee tax collected by the employer from the employee with respect to such wages. Other information may be required but should be submitted only upon request.

(3) Period of limitation. For the period of limitation upon special refund of employee tax imposed by section 3101, see § 301.6511(a)–1 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration).

(d) Refund or credit of Federal unemployment tax. Any credit allowable under section 3302, to the extent not previously allowed, shall be considered an overpayment, but no interest shall be allowed or paid with respect to such overpayment.

§ 31.6414 Statutory provisions; income tax withheld.

SEC. 6414. Income tax withheld. In the case of an overpayment of tax imposed by chapter 24, * * * refund or credit shall be made to the employer * * * only to the extent that the amount of such overpayment was not deducted and withheld by the employer * * *.

§ 31.6414–1 Credit or refund of income tax withheld from wages.

(a) In general. Any employer who pays to the district director more than the correct amount of—

(1) Tax under section 3402 or a corresponding provision of prior law, or

(2) Interest, addition to the tax, additional amount, or penalty with respect to such tax, may file a claim for refund of the overpayment or may claim credit for such overpayment, in the manner and subject to the conditions stated in this section and § 301.6402–2 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). If credit is claimed pursuant to this section, the amount thereof shall be claimed by entering such amount as a deduction on a return of tax under section 3402 filed by the employer. If credit is taken pursuant to this section, a claim on Form 843 is not required, but the return on which the credit is claimed shall have attached as a part thereof a statement, which shall constitute the claim for credit, setting forth in detail the grounds and facts relied upon in support of the credit, and showing such other information as is required by the regulations in this subpart and by the instructions relating to the return. No refund or credit to the employer shall be allowed under this section for the amount of any overpayment of tax which the employer deducted or withheld from an employee.

(b) Period of limitation. For the period of limitation upon credit or refund of taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, see § 301.6511(a)–1 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). For the period of limitation upon credit or refund of any tax imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, see the regulations applicable with respect to such tax.

§ 31.6674 Statutory provisions; fraudulent statement or failure to furnish statement to employee.

SEC. 6674. Fraudulent statement or failure to furnish statement to employee. In addition to the criminal penalty provided by section 7204, any person required under the provisions of section 6051 to furnish a statement to an employee who willfully furnishes a false or fraudulent statement, or who willfully fails to furnish a statement in the manner, at the time, and showing the information required under section 6051, or regulations prescribed thereunder, shall for each such failure be subject to a penalty under this subchapter of $50, which shall be assessed and collected in the same manner as the tax on employers imposed by section 3111.

§ 31.6674–1 Penalties for fraudulent receipt or failure to furnish receipt.

Any person required to furnish a statement to an employee under the provisions of section 6051 is subject to a civil penalty for willful failure to furnish such statement in the manner, at the time, and showing the information required under such section or § 31.6051–1, or for willfully furnishing a false or fraudulent statement to an employee. The penalty for each such violation is $50, which shall be assessed and collected in the same manner as the tax imposed on employers under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act. See section 7204 for criminal penalty.

§ 31.7805 Statutory provisions; rules and regulations.

SEC. 7805. Rules and regulations—(a) Authorization. Except where such authority is expressly given by this title to any person other than an officer or employee of the Treasury Department, the Secretary or his delegate shall prescribe all needful rules and regulations for the enforcement of this title, including all rules and regulations as may be necessary by reason of any alteration of law in relation to internal revenue.

(b) Retroactivity of regulations or rulings. The Secretary or his delegate may prescribe the extent, if any, to which any ruling or regulation, relating to the internal revenue laws, shall be applied without retroactive effect.

(c) Preparation and distribution of regulations, forms, stamps, and other matters. The Secretary or his delegate shall prepare and distribute all the instructions, regulations, directions, forms, blanks, stamps, and other matters pertaining to the assessment and collection of internal revenue.

§ 31.7805–1 Promulgation of regulations.

In pursuance of section 7805 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, the foregoing regulations are hereby prescribed. (See § 31.0–3 of Subpart A of the regulations in this part relating to the scope of the regulations.)

PAR. 2. The Employment Tax Regulations (26 CFR Part 31) are amended by inserting the following immediately after § 31.6001–5:

§ 31.6001–6 Notice by district director requiring returns, statements, or the keeping of records.

The district director may require any person, by notice served upon him, to make such returns, render such statements, or keep such specific records as will enable the district director to determine whether or not such person is liable for any of the taxes to which the regulations in this part have application.

PAR. 3. Paragraph (c) of § 31.6011(a)–7 of the Employment Tax Regulations (26 CFR Part 31) is amended to read as follows:

§ 31.6011(a)–7 Execution of returns.

(b) Special rule as to compensation of members of Armed Forces. In the case of compensation paid for service as a member of the Armed Forces, the statement required by subsection (a) shall be furnished if any tax was withheld during the calendar year under section 3402, or if any of the compensation paid during such year is includible in gross income under chapter 1, or if during the calendar year any amount was required to be withheld as tax under section 3101. Because these regulations are a part of an integrated recodification program under Chapter 51, I.R.C., and in order that the entire program may be effective on July 1, 1960, it is found that it is contrary to the public interest to issue these regulations subject to the effective date limitation of section 4(c) of the Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 238; 5 U.S.C. 1003). Accordingly, these regulations shall become effective on July 1, 1960.

[SEAL] CHARLES I. FOX,
Acting Commissioner of Internal Revenue.
RALPH KELLY,
Commissioner of Customs.

Approved: June 17, 1960.

FRED C. SCRIBNER, Jr.,
Acting Secretary of the Treasury.

The approval of customs Form 5125 shall be subject to the further condition that any such liquors remaining on board while the vessel is in port shall be safeguarded in the manner and to such extent as the collector of the port or place of arrival shall deem necessary. In the case of liquors withdrawn without payment of tax, assessment of tax liability found to have been incurred shall be made against the principal on the bond. In the case of taxpaid or tax determined liquors, the assistant regional commissioner shall determine as to whether to make demand upon the principal and the surety on the bond or to disallow the claim as the case may be.

Where application is made to withdraw or lade liquors for use on aircraft of other countries, which it is claimed reciprocate similar privileges to aircraft of the United States, the applicant must first establish the right of such withdrawal or lading. In appropriate cases, the applicant should request the Secretary of Commerce to find and advise the Secretary of the Treasury that such foreign country or countries allow, or will allow, substantially reciprocal privileges to aircraft of the United States.

Liquors may be transferred to a foreign-trade zone for the sole purpose of exportation, or storage pending exportation. Liquors of domestic manufacture deposited in a foreign-trade zone under this part shall be considered to be exported for the purpose of the statutes and bonds exacted for the payment of drawback, refund, or exemption from liability for internal revenue taxes and for the purposes of the internal revenue laws generally and the regulations thereunder. Export status is not acquired until application on Zone Form D for admission of the liquors into the zone has been approved by the collector of customs pursuant to the appropriate provisions of 19 CFR Chapter I, and the required certification of deposit of the liquors in the zone has been made on the Internal Revenue Service form prescribed in this part. For the purpose of section 309 of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended by section 11 of the Customs Simplification Act of 1956 (Pub. Law 243, 83d Congress), liquors removed to foreign-trade zones under the provisions of this part may be removed, pursuant to the provisions of 19 CFR Ch. VOLUNTARY DESTRUCTION OF LIQUORS AFTER RECEIPT IN A FOREIGN-TRADE ZONE

§ 252.35 General.

Liquors may not, under the law, be transferred to a foreign-trade zone for the purpose of destruction. However, liquors transported to and deposited in a foreign-trade zone for exportation or for storage pending exportation may be destroyed under the supervision of the collector of customs, where it is shown to the satisfaction of the assistant regional commissioner of the region in which the zone is located that the liquors, after deposit in a zone, have become unmerchantable or unfit for export.

(48 Stat. 999, as amended; 19 U.S.C. 81c)

§ 252.36 Application.

Application, addressed to the assistant regional commissioner of the region in which the zone is located and filed as hereinafter provided, for authority to destroy domestic distilled spirits (including alcohol), wines, or beer on storage in a foreign-trade zone shall be made by the exporter on letter-size paper, in duplicate, showing the name and address of the claimant and setting forth the following information:

(a) The kind and quantity of the liquor, the serial numbers, if any, of the containers thereof, and identification of the zone in which the liquor is stored;

(b) The name and address of the producer of the liquor, and the name, registry number, if any, and location of the plant, warehouse or other establishment from which such liquors were withdrawn for transportation to and deposit in the foreign-trade zone;

(c) The date, form, and serial number of the Form 206, 1582, 1582–A, 1582–B, 1629, or 1689, as the case may be; and, in the case of liquors on which drawback of internal revenue tax has been allowed, the claim number assigned thereto by the assistant regional commissioner;

(d) Whether the liquor has become unmerchantable or unfit for export after deposit in the zone, together with all the known facts relating thereto; and

(e) Whether the unmerchantable or unfit liquor is covered by valid insurance in excess of the market value thereof, exclusive of tax. If the liquor is insured, the application shall show its market value, the amount and date of each and every policy of insurance, the name and location of the company by which each and every policy was issued, the name and address of the bona fide owner of the liquor, and to the best of the affiant's knowledge, whether any other person or party is indemnified against the loss of the liquor by reason of its spoilage or destruction.

Such application shall be signed by the exporter or his authorized agent and be executed under the penalties of perjury. The assistant regional commissioner may require any further evidence as is deemed necessary. The operator of the foreign-trade zone shall countersign the application or otherwise indicate thereon his knowledge of and concurrence in the application to destroy the liquor. The exporter shall file the application with the collector of customs in whose district the foreign-trade zone is located; at the same time the exporter shall likewise file Zone Form E in accordance with Customs Regulations (19 CFR Ch. I). On receipt of the application the collector of customs shall determine the completeness thereof and shall report any facts relating to the condition of the liquor of which he may have knowledge. The original application shall be forwarded to the assistant regional commissioner and the collector of customs shall retain the copy for his files.

§ 252.37 Action by assistant regional commissioner.

The assistant regional commissioner shall carefully examine the application to see that all the required information has been furnished and shall cause such investigation to be made or require such additional evidence, including samples, to be submitted as he may deem necessary. If the assistant regional commissioner finds that the domestic distilled spirits (including alcohol), wines, or beer were transported to and deposited in a foreign-trade zone in good faith for the purpose of exportation or storage pending exportation, and that such liquors, after deposit in the zone, have become unmerchantable or unfit for export, he may approve the application and authorize the destruction of the liquor described therein under the supervision of the collector of customs. On approval or disapproval of the application, the assistant regional commissioner shall advise the collector of customs of his action.

§ 252.38 Action by collector of customs.

On receipt of the assistant regional commissioner's authorization for destruction of the liquor, or his disapproval of the application for destruction, the collector of customs shall act upon the exporter's application on Zone Form E and dispose of it in accordance with the applicable provisions of Customs Regulations (19 CFR Ch. I). Where the assistant regional commissioner has authorized the destruction of the liquor, such destruction shall be accomplished under customs supervision.

The penal sum of such bond shall be not less than the tax prescribed by law on the quantity of spirits or wines to be withdrawn: Provided, That the maximum penal sum of such bond shall not exceed $200,000, but in no case shall the penal sum be less than $1,000.

(a) General. If distilled spirits and/or wines are to be withdrawn from time to time without payment of tax, as authorized in §§ 252.91 (a), (b), or (c) and 252.121 (a), (b), or (c), by a person other than the proprietor of the bonded premises, a continuing bond on Form 2735 shall be filed by the exporter with the assistant regional commissioner as provided in § 252.51. The bond shall be executed in a penal sum sufficient to cover the tax at the rates prescribed by law on the maximum quantity of distilled spirits and wines that may remain unaccounted for at any one time: Provided, That the maximum penal sum of such bond shall not exceed $200,000, but in no case shall the penal sum be less than $1,000. (b) Apportioning bonds. Where a bond on Form 2735 is given in less than the maximum penal sum to cover withdrawals from more than one premise, the principal, at the time of execution of the bond, shall, if he intends to withdraw both distilled spirits and wine, apportion the coverage under the bond between distilled spirits and wine. Where distilled spirits are to be withdrawn from more than one premise, the principal shall also, as to distilled spirits withdrawals, at the time of execution, either (1) apportion the coverage under the bond among the several premises, or (2) designate one distilled spirits plant to which all applications for withdrawals of distilled spirits shall be submitted. If the distilled spirits bond coverage is apportioned at the time of execution, the amount designated by the principal for any distilled spirits plant becomes the maximum bond coverage for withdrawals from that plant. The principal may reapportion the bond coverage if changing conditions make such action necessary, provided that consent of surety, Form 1533, is filed with, and approved by, the assistant regional commissioner. Where the principal designates that all applications for withdrawals of distilled spirits under the bond shall be submitted to one plant, all such applications shall be submitted to the internal revenue officer at that plant for approval, who, after giving his approval, will then forward all copies of the application to the proprietor of the distilled spirits plant from which the distilled spirits are to be withdrawn.

§ 252.280 Distilled spirits and wines.

When an airline desires to withdraw distilled spirits or wines from its stock being held at the airport under customs custody, for use on a particular aircraft, a requisition in triplicate shall be prepared for presentation to the customs officer. The requisition shall show the flight number, the registry number of the aircraft on which the distilled spirits or wines are to be laden, the country for which the aircraft is to be cleared, the date of departure of the aircraft, and the brand, kind, and quantity of distilled spirits or wines. Where the distilled spirits or wines are contained in kits which have been previously prepared while under customs custody, the kit number shall also be shown on the requisition. Where the kits are not prepared and the distilled spirits or wines are withdrawn for direct lading on aircraft, the requisition shall be serially numbered in lieu of the insertion of the kit number. When the distilled spirits or wines are withdrawn and laden aboard the aircraft, the lading shall be verified by the customs officer by an appropriate stamp or notation on the requisition. One copy of the requisition shall be retained by the customs officer who certifies to the lading for attachment to the outgoing manifest. The other two copies shall be delivered to the airline which shall retain both copies until the return of the flight. In case any of the distilled spirits or wines are removed from the aircraft on its return, they shall be returned to customs custody, appropriate notation made on both copies of the requisition retained by the airline and one copy shall be delivered to the customs officer for attachment to the incoming manifest. The remaining copy shall be retained by the airline.

The certificate shall be executed under the penalties of perjury by an officer of the airline and shall show the name of the exporter, the entry number, the brand and kind of distilled spirits or wines, and the number of bottles to be accounted for; and, as to each requisition, the requisition (or kit) number, the date laden, the registry number of the aircraft, the country for which the aircraft was cleared, and the number of bottles used. When completed, the certificate shall be presented to the customs officer at the airport who shall than execute his certificate on both copies of the appropriate application, notice, or claim, Form 206, 1582, or 1582–A, as the case may be, noting thereon any exception, such as shortages or breakage. The customs officer shall then attach the certificate of use to the copy of the appropriate form and forward both copies of the form to the collector of customs.

Subpart O—Losses

DISTILLED SPIRITS

§ 252.301 Loss of distilled spirits in transit.

(72 Stat. 1323; 26 U.S.C. 5008)

§ 252.302 Notice to exporter.

If, on examination of the Form 206 (and attached gauge reports, if any) received from the officer required to certify the same under the provisions of Subpart N of this part, the assistant regional commissioner is of the opinion that the distilled spirits reported lost had been unlawfully diverted, or had been lost by theft, he will advise the exporter by letter:

(a) Of the identity of the containers;
(b) Of the amount of the loss;
(c) Of the circumstances indicating diversion or theft;
(d) That allowance of the loss will be subject to filing (1) proof that such loss is allowable under the provisions of section 5008 (a) and (f), I.R.C., and (2) claim for remission of the tax on the spirits so lost; and
(e) That action in respect of the loss will be withheld for a period of not more than 30 days to afford an opportunity to file such proof and claim.

In any case in which distilled spirits are lost during transportation, as described in § 252.301, whether by theft or otherwise, the assistant regional commissioner may require the exporter to file a claim for relief in accordance with § 252.303. When circumstances may warrant, extensions of additional time for submission of the proof and claim may be granted by the assistant regional commissioner. Where such proof and claim are not filed within the 30-day period, or such extensions as the assistant regional commissioner may grant, the tax on the distilled spirits diverted or lost will be assessed, or liability asserted against the bond covering the shipment, as the case may be.

(j) In the case of a loss by theft, whether the claimant is indemnified or recompensed in respect of the tax on the spirits lost, and, if so, the amount and nature of such indemnity or recompense and the actual value of the spirits, less the tax.

The claim shall be executed by the exporter or his authorized agent under the penalties of perjury, and shall be supported (whenever possible) by affidavits of persons having personal knowledge of the loss. The assistant regional commissioner may require such further evidence as he deems necessary.

§ 252.304 Action on claim.

The assistant regional commissioner will allow or disallow claims filed under § 252.303 in accordance with existing law and regulations. If the assistant regional commissioner finds that there has been a diversion or theft of the distilled spirits as the result of any connivance, collusion, fraud, or negligence on the part of the exporter, owner, consignor, consignee, bailee, or carrier, or the employees or agents of any of them, the tax on the distilled spirits diverted or lost by theft will be assessed, or liability asserted against the bond covering the shipment, as the case may be.

(e) That action in respect of the loss will be withheld for a period of not more than 30 days to afford an opportunity to file such proof and claim.

In any case in which wines are lost during transportation, as described in § 252.315, whether by theft or otherwise, the assistant regional commissioner may require the exporter to file a claim for relief in accordance with § 252.317. He shall then, on receipt of the evidence of exportation required by § 252.40, or of lading for use on vessels or aircraft required by § 252.41, or of deposit in a foreign-trade zone required by § 252.42, as the case may be, and, in the case of claims on Form 1582–A, the certificate of tax determination, Form 2605, allow the claim in the amount of the tax paid on the beer or the tax paid or determined on the distilled spirits or wines on which the claim is based and which were exported, laden as supplies on vessels or aircraft, or deposited in a foreign-trade zone, as the case may be.

Where the credit relates to tax determined distilled spirits, procedure for taking the credit shall be in accordance with the procedures set forth in Part 201 of this chapter. Where the credit relates to tax-determined wines, procedure for taking the credit shall be in accordance with the procedures set forth in Part 240 of this chapter. No credit may be given for drawback of the tax on beer nor may one class of tax be credited to another.

Title 7—AGRICULTURE

Chapter VII—Commodity Stabilization Service (Farm Marketing Quotas and Acreage Allotments), Department of Agriculture

PART 718—DETERMINATION OF ACREAGE AND PERFORMANCE

Methods of Measurement

On pages 3338 and 3339 of the FEDERAL REGISTER of April 16, 1960, there was published a notice of proposed rule making to issue an amendment to the regulations governing the determination of acreage and performance. Interested persons were given 15 days in which to submit written comments, suggestions, or objections with respect to the proposed amendment of the regulations.

No objections have been received and comments submitted do not require a revision of the proposal.

The proposed amendment to the regulations is hereby adopted without change and shall become effective beginning with the determination of acreages for crops planted for harvest in 1961. No allotment or history acreage for any allotment crop or any soil bank base, which was established on the basis of acreages determined prior to the effectiveness of this amendment, would be adjusted because of the amendment.

Issued at Washington, D.C., this 17th day of June 1960.

ANDREW J. MAIR,
Acting Administrator,
Commodity Stabilization Service.

Section 718.5 (e) and (g)(1) is amended to read as follows:

§ 718.5 Methods of measurement.

* * * * *

(e) Effect of planting pattern on determination of acreage—(1) General. In determining the acreage of any row crop, measurements shall extend beyond the planted area to a point equal to one-half the distance between the rows. All acreage determinations made in accordance with this paragraph (e) are subject to the deductions and adjustment credit prescribed in paragraphs (g) and (h) of this § 718.5. When an allotment row crop other than tobacco and another allotment row crop or an allotment row crop and a competitive row crop are planted in alternate rows or in strips of two or more rows, the acreage shall be considered as intertilled. For the purpose of determining the acreage of tobacco, other intertilled crops shall not be considered competitive with tobacco and the intertilled provisions of this paragraph (e) shall not apply. When an allotment row crop is planted in alternate rows or strips with non-competitive crops or in alternate rows or strips with idle or fallow land, the acreage shall be considered as fallow-stripped. In the application of the provisions of this paragraph (e), deviations from prescribed row width requirements attributable to variations which are normal to the operation of mechanical equipment shall not serve to disqualify a planting pattern or a deductible strip.

(2) Block or solid planted allotment row crops. When an allotment row crop is planted in a continuous area and intertilled or fallow-stripped planting is not involved, the acreage of such crop shall be the area devoted to the crop.

(3) Close-seeded allotment crops. The acreage of close-seeded allotment crops shall be the acreage in the area devoted to the crop.

(4) Non-allotment soil bank base crops and other land uses. The acreage of non-allotment soil bank base crops or other land uses shall be the acreage in the area devoted to the crops or land use except that when non-allotment soil bank base crops are planted in alternate rows, alternate strips, or fallow strips with idle or fallow land or non-soil bank base crops, the entire area shall be considered as planted to the soil bank base crop(s) unless the area composed of idle or fallow land or non-soil bank base crops is as wide as four normal rows of the soil bank base crop(s). If the area composed of idle or fallow land or non-soil bank base crop(s) is as wide as four normal rows of the soil bank base crop(s), only the land actually occupied by the soil bank base crop(s) shall be considered as planted to soil bank base crop(s). Where allotment crops are intertilled or fallow-stripped with non-allotment soil bank base crops and the entire area is considered as planted to allotment crops, the acreage shall be counted only once in determining the acreage of soil bank base crops.

(5) Intertilled allotment row crops other than tobacco—(i) Intertilled alternate rows. Acreages of crops intertilled in alternate rows shall be determined as follows:

(a) Normal rows. If the distance between each row of the crops planted is not less than the normal row width for the allotment crop (the wider normal row if two allotment crops are involved), only the land actually occupied by the allotment crop shall be considered as planted to the allotment crop.

(b) Less than normal rows. If the distance between the rows of the crops planted is less than the normal row width for the allotment crop, the entire intertilled area shall be considered as planted to the allotment crop.

(ii) Intertilled alternate strips. Acreages of crops intertilled in alternate strips shall be determined as follows:

(a) Less than one normal row. If the distance between the strips of the allotment crop is less than one normal row width, the entire area shall be considered as planted to the allotment crop.

(b) Less than four normal rows. If the distance between the strips of the allotment crop is as wide as one but less than four normal rows of the allotment crop, the acreage of the allotment crop shall be the total acreage in the area less the acreage actually occupied by any competitive crop.

(c) Four normal rows or more. If the distance between the strips of the allotment crop is as wide as or wider than four normal rows of the allotment crop, only the area occupied by the allotment crop shall be considered as planted to the allotment crop.

Chapter IX—Agricultural Marketing Service (Marketing Agreements and Orders), Department of Agriculture

PART 966—MILK IN NORTHERN LOUISIANA MARKETING AREA

Order Suspending Certain Provision

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), and of the order regulating the handling of milk in the Northern Louisiana marketing area (7 CFR Part 966), it is hereby found and determined that:

(a) The following provision of § 966.51(a) of the order will not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act until the order can be amended on the basis of the evidence presented at a public hearing held April 19 and 20, 1960: "Through June 30, 1960".

(b) Notice of proposed rule making, public procedure thereon, and 30 days notice of effective date hereof are impractical, unnecessary, and contrary to the public interest in that:

(1) This suspension order is necessary in view of the order provision which terminates the Class I price as of June 30, 1960. The Class I price was considered at a hearing held at Shreveport, Louisiana, on April 19 and 20, 1960. Evidence on the record indicates that the annual level of Class I prices provided in the order is appropriate in the immediate months ahead and should accordingly be maintained until amendment action can be taken.

(2) The time required for the performance of the several procedural steps which must be followed before an amendment can be issued, precludes the possibility of making an amendment to the order effective before the termination date of June 30, 1960.

(3) There would be no Class I price, and the pricing and pooling provisions of the order would become inoperative, unless this suspension order is made effective July 1, 1960.

(4) This suspension order is necessary to reflect current marketing conditions and to maintain orderly marketing conditions in the marketing area.

(5) This suspension order does not require of persons affected substantial or extensive preparation prior to the effective date. Therefore, good cause exists for making this order effective July 1, 1960.

It is therefore ordered, That the aforesaid provision of the order is hereby suspended effective July 1, 1960.

(Secs. 1–19, 48 Stat. 31, as amended; 7 U.S.C. 601–674)

Issued at Washington, D.C., this 20th day of June 1960.

CLARENCE L. MILLER,
Assistant Secretary.

Notice of Correction With Respect to Order Amending Order

(Secs. 1–19, 48 Stat. 31, as amended; 7 U.S.C. 601–674)

AUTHORITY: §§ 1018.0 to 1018.111 issued under secs. 1–19, 49 Stat. 31, as amended; 7 U.S.C. 601–674.

§ 1018.0 Findings and determinations.

The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and of the previously issued amendments thereto; and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed, except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) Findings upon the basis of the hearing record. Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held upon certain proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order regulating the handling of milk in the Southeastern Florida marketing area. Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at such hearing and the record thereof, it is found that:

(1) The said order as hereby amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act;

(2) The parity prices of milk, as determined pursuant to section 2 of the Act, are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the said marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the order as hereby amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest;

(3) The said order as hereby amended, regulates the handling of milk in the same manner as, and is applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial or commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

(b) Additional findings. (1) It is necessary in the public interest to make this order amending the order effective not later than July 1, 1960.

(2) The provisions of the said order are known to handlers. The recommended decision of the Deputy Administrator of the Agricultural Marketing Service was issued March 15, 1960, and the decision of the Assistant Secretary containing all amendment provisions of this order, was issued June 2, 1960. The changes effected by this order will not require extensive preparation or substantial alteration in method of operation for handlers. In view of the foregoing, it is hereby found and determined that good cause exists for making this order amending the order effective July 1, 1960, and that it would be contrary to the public interest to delay the effective date of this amendment for 30 days after its publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(c) Determinations. It is hereby determined that:

(1) The refusal or failure of handlers (excluding cooperative associations specified in section 8c(9) of the Act) of more than 50 percent of the milk, which is marketed within the marketing area, to sign a proposed marketing agreement, tends to prevent the effectuation of the declared policy of the Act;

(2) The issuance of this order, amending the order, is the only practical means pursuant to the declared policy of the Act of advancing the interests of producers as defined in the order as hereby amended; and

(3) The issuance of the order amending the order is approved or favored by at least two-thirds of the producers who during the determined representative period were engaged in the production of milk for sale in the marketing area.

Order relative to handling. It is therefore ordered, that on and after the effective date hereof, the handling of milk in the Southeastern Florida marketing area shall be in conformity to and in compliance with the terms and conditions of the order, as hereby amended:

In either case, the market administrator shall give further written notification to the handler promptly upon the termination of the litigation or when the records are no longer necessary in connection therewith.

CLASSIFICATION OF MILK

§ 1018.40 Skim milk and butterfat to be classified.

The skim milk and butterfat required to be reported for pool plants pursuant to § 1018.30(a) shall be classified by the market administrator, pursuant to the provisions of §§ 1018.41 through 1018.45.

§ 1018.41 Classes of utilization.

Subject to the conditions set forth in §§ 1018.42 through 1018.45, the classes of utilization shall be as follows:

(a) Class I milk. Class I milk shall be all skim milk and butterfat:

(1) Disposed of from the plant in the form of milk, skim milk, frozen milk (whole or concentrated), concentrated milk, reconstituted milk, chocolate milk, fortified skim milk up to the weight of an equal volume of unmodified skim milk, and fortified milk up to the weight of an equal volume of unmodified milk of the same butterfat test, and

(2) Not specifically accounted for as Class II milk;

(b) Class II milk. Class II milk shall be all skim milk and butterfat:

§ 1018.43 Transfers.

(a) Skim milk and butterfat transferred to a pool plant in the form of milk products designated as Class I milk pursuant to § 1018.41(a) shall be classified so as to result in the maximum assignment of the producer milk of both handlers to Class I milk within the accounting period used by each handler, and skim milk and butterfat so transferred shall be classified as Class I milk unless the operators of both plants claim utilization thereof in Class II milk in their reports submitted pursuant to § 1018.30: Provided, That the skim milk or butterfat so assigned, to Class II milk shall be limited to the respective amounts thereof remaining in Class II milk at the pool plants of the receiving handler after the subtraction of other source milk and beginning inventory pursuant to § 1018.45;

(b) Skim milk and butterfat transferred in bulk form as milk or skim milk from a pool plant to a nonpool plant, or diverted from a producer's farm to a nonpool plant for the account of a handler shall be classified as Class I milk unless the conditions pursuant to subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph are met and classification pursuant to subparagraph (3) or (4) of this paragraph is claimed by the transferring or diverting handler;

(1) The nonpool plant is located less than 500 miles from the location of the main U.S. Post Office in Boca Raton, Florida, by the shortest hard-surfaced highway distance as determined by the market administrator or is a plant fully regulated under another order issued pursuant to the Act;

(2) The operator of the nonpool plant maintains books and records showing the utilization of all skim milk and butterfat at such plant which are made available if requested by the market administrator for the purpose of verification; and

(3) The skim milk and butterfat in the milk transferred or diverted is classified as Class I milk in an amount not less than the pro rata assignment of such skim milk and butterfat and skim milk and butterfat received at the nonpool plant in milk classified and priced as Class I milk under another Federal order, such pro rata assignment to be to skim milk and butterfat in route disposition from the nonpool plant in forms designated as Class I milk in § 1018.41(a) after subtraction from such disposition of the quantities of skim milk and butterfat, respectively, in milk received at the nonpool plant from dairy farmers who the market administrator determines constitute the regular approved dairy-farmer supply for the nonpool plants, or

(4) If the nonpool plant to which milk is transferred or diverted is a plant fully regulated under another order issued pursuant to the Act, the milk transferred or diverted shall be classified as Class I milk in the same amount as it is classified in the highest price class under such other order, and the remainder shall be Class II milk.

(c) Skim milk and butterfat transferred in bulk form as cream to a nonpool plant shall be classified as Class I milk unless:

(1) The transferring handler claims classification in Class II milk;

(2) The handler gives the market administrator sufficient notice to allow him to verify the shipment;

(3) The operator of the nonpool plant maintains books and records showing the utilization of all skim milk and butterfat at such plant which are made available if requested by the market administrator for the purpose of verification; and

(4) Not less than an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat was actually utilized in the nonpool plant in the use indicated in such report: Provided, That if it is found that an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat was not actually used in such plant during the month in such indicated use, the quantity transferred in excess of such actual use shall be classified as Class I milk.

§ 1018.44 Computation of skim milk and butterfat in each class.

For each month, the market administrator shall correct for mathematical and other obvious errors, the reports submitted by each handler pursuant to § 1018.30(a) and compute the total pounds of skim milk and butterfat, respectively, in Class I milk and Class II milk at all of the pool plants of such handler: Provided, That the skim milk contained in any product utilized, produced or disposed of by the handler during the month shall be considered to be an amount equivalent to the nonfat milk solids contained in such product, plus all of the water originally associated with such solids.

§ 1018.45 Allocation of skim milk and butterfat classified.

(a) For each month or other accounting period as described in paragraph (d) of this section, the pounds of skim milk remaining in each class after making the following computations with respect to the pool plants of each handler, shall be the pounds of skim milk in such class allocated to the producer milk of such handler:

(1) Subtract from the total pounds of skim milk in Class II milk the shrinkage of skim milk in producer milk classified as Class II milk pursuant to § 1018.41(b)(4);

(2) Subtract from the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk in other source milk not priced as Class I milk under another Federal order and received from a plant or dairy farmers located outside the State of Florida: Provided, That if the pounds of skim milk to be subtracted are greater than the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk, the balance shall be subtracted from the pounds of skim milk in Class I milk;

(3) Subtract from the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk in other source milk not priced as Class I milk under another Federal order and received from a plant or dairy farmers located in the State of Florida: Provided, That if the pounds of skim milk to be subtracted are greater than the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk, the balance shall be subtracted from the pounds of skim milk in Class I milk;

(4) Subtract from the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk in other source milk which is priced and pooled as Class I milk under another order except any quantities from a nonpool plant equal to or less than the skim milk in milk or skim milk disposed of from such nonpool plant and not priced and pooled under such other order: Provided, That if the pounds of skim milk to be subtracted are greater than the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk, the balance shall be subtracted from the pounds of skim milk in Class I milk;

(5) Subtract from the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk contained in inventory of milk products in the form of products designated as Class I milk pursuant to § 1018.41(a) on hand at the beginning of the month or other accounting period: Provided, That if the pounds of skim milk in such inventory exceed the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk the balance shall be subtracted from the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class I milk;

(6) Subtract the pounds of skim milk in milk products in the form of products designated as Class I milk pursuant to § 1018.41(a) received from pool plants of other handlers from the pounds of skim milk remaining in the class to which assigned pursuant to § 1018.43(a);

(7) Add to the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk subtracted pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph; and

(8) If the pounds of skim milk remaining in all classes exceed the pounds of skim milk in milk received from producers, subtract such excess from the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class II milk, and then subtract any remaining excess from Class I. Any amount so subtracted shall be called "overage".

(b) Determine the pounds of butterfat in each class to be allocated to producer milk in the manner prescribed in paragraph (a) of this section for determining the allocation of skim milk to producer milk;

(c) Add the pounds of skim milk and the pounds of butterfat in each class calculated pursuant to paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section and determine the percentage of butterfat in the producer milk allocated to each class; and

(d) A handler may account for receipts of milk, utilization of milk and classification of milk, at his plant, for periods within a month if he notifies the market administrator in writing of his intention to use such accounting period not later than the end of every accounting period.

Minimum Prices

§ 1018.50 Class prices.

Subject to the provisions of § 1018.51, the class prices per hundredweight of milk to be paid by each handler shall be as follows:

(a) Class I milk price. The price for Class I milk shall be $7.00 per hundredweight, plus or minus a supply-demand adjustment as provided in paragraph (c) of this section: Provided, That the price shall not exceed by more than $4.00 the price calculated pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section nor be less than the price calculated pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section plus $2.75.

(b) Calculate the higher of the prices computed pursuant to subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph:

(1) To the average of the basic field prices per hundredweight reported to have been paid or to be paid for milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content received from farmers during the preceding month at the following plants or places for which prices have been reported to the market administrator or to the Department:

Present Operator and Location

Borden Co., Mount Pleasant, Mich.
Carnation Co., Sparta, Mich.
Pet Milk Co., Wayland, Mich.
Pet Milk Co., Coopersville, Mich.
Borden Co., Orfordville, Wis.
Borden Co., New London, Wis.
Carnation Co., Richland Center, Wis.
Carnation Co., Oconomowoc, Wis.
Pet Milk Co., New Glarus, Wis.
Pet Milk Co., Bellesville, Wis.
White House Milk Co., Manitowoc, Wis.
White House Milk Co., West Bend, Wis.

Add an amount computed by multiplying the Chicago butter price for the preceding month by 0.625; and

(2) The price per hundredweight computed as follows: Multiply the Chicago butter price for the preceding month by 4.0, add 20 percent thereof, and add to such sum 7.5 times the amount by which the Chicago powder price for the preceding month exceeds 5 cents.

(c) The supply-demand adjustment shall be calculated as follows:

(1) The "supply-demand percentage" for a month means the quantity of producer milk during the second and third preceding months expressed as a percent of the gross Class I disposition of all pool plants during the same months, rounded to the nearest whole percent.

(2) The "standard utilization percentage" for each month means the percentage shown in the right-hand column of the following schedule in the same line with the month in the left-hand column:

Month for which price applies	Months for which utilization is computed	Standard utilization percentage
January	October–November	100
February	November–December	103
March	December–January	105
April	January–February	105
May	February–March	108
June	March–April	112
July	April–May	114
August	May–June	114
September	June–July	112
October	July–August	107
November	August–September	104
December	September–October	100

(3) The "deviation percentage" for a month means the difference between the supply-demand percentage for the month and the corresponding standard utilization percentage, the direction of such deviation to depend on whether it is above or below the standard utilization percentage.

(4) Compute the deviation percentages for the current and two preceding months, and after excluding any deviation percentage which is in the opposite direction from the deviation percentage of a more recent month, compute a sum from the remaining deviation percentages which excludes any amount by which any of such deviation percentages exceeds any of such deviation percentages for a more recent month.

(5) If the current month's supply-demand percentage is less than the corresponding standard utilization percentage, increase the Class I price by the number of cents which is 1½ times the sum computed pursuant to subparagraph (4) of this paragraph (rounding any fraction of a cent to a whole cent); and if the current month's supply-demand percentage is more than the corresponding standard utilization percentage, decrease the Class I price by the number of cents which is 1½ times the sum computed pursuant to subparagraph (4) of this paragraph (rounding any fraction of a cent to a whole cent).

(e) Class II milk price. The Class II price per hundredweight shall be the sum of the amounts computed pursuant to subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph:

(1) Multiply the Chicago butter price by 1.25, add 4 cents and multiply the result by 4; and

(2) Add 2.5 cents to the Chicago powder price and multiply the result by 8.5.

§ 1018.51 Location differentials to handlers.

For that milk which is received from producers at a pool plant located 60 miles or more from the location of the main U.S. Post Office in Boca Raton, by the shortest hard-surfaced highway distance as determined by the market administrator, and which is assigned to Class I milk pursuant to the proviso of this section, when moved to another pool plant, or classified as Class I milk without such movement, the Class I price specified in § 1018.50 shall be reduced at the rate set forth in the following schedule:

	Rate per hundredweight (cents)
Distance (miles):
60 but not more than 70	13.0
For each additional 10 miles or fraction thereof over 70 an additional	1.5

Provided, That for the purpose of calculating such locations differential, milk in the form of any milk product designated as Class I milk pursuant to § 1018.41(a) transferred between pool plants shall be assigned to any remainder of Class II milk in the plant to which transferred after making the calculations prescribed in § 1018.45(a) (1) through (5), and the comparable steps in paragraph (b) for such plant, such assignment to the transferring plants to be made in sequence according to the location differential applicable at each plant, beginning with the plant having the largest differential.

§ 1018.52 Rate of compensatory payment.

(a) Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, the rate of compensatory payment per hundredweight to be paid by pool plants, or by nonpool plants pursuant to § 1018.62(a), shall be calculated as follows:

(1) If the milk is received at a pool plant from a nonpool plant located in the State of Florida, or if the nonpool plant described in § 1018.62(a) is located in the State of Florida, subtract the Class II price from the Class I price adjusted by the Class I location differential at the nonpool plant; or

(2) If the milk is received at a pool plant from a nonpool plant located outside the State of Florida, or if the nonpool plant described in § 1018.62(a) is located outside the State of Florida, subtract the price pursuant to § 1018.50(b) (2) from the Class I price adjusted by the Class I location differential at the nonpool plant.

(b) If other source milk is received at a pool plant in a form other than milk or skim milk, the rate of compensatory payment per hundredweight with respect to such receipts shall be computed by subtracting the Class II price from the Class I price at the plant where such other source milk is received.

§ 1018.53 Use of equivalent prices.

If, for any reason, a price quotation required by this order for computing class prices or for other purposes is not available in the manner described, the market administrator shall use a price determined by the Secretary to be equivalent to the price which is required.

Application of Provisions

§ 1018.60 Producer-handler.

Sections 1018.50 through 1018.53, 1018.61, 1018.62, 1018.70 through 1018.75, and 1018.80 through 1018.86 shall not apply to a producer-handler.

§ 1018.61 Plants where other Federal orders may apply.

Upon determination by the Secretary pursuant to this section, any plant specified in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this section shall be a nonpool plant, except that the operator of such plant shall, with respect to the total receipts and disposition of skim milk and butterfat at the plant, make reports to the market administrator at such time and in such manner as the market administrator may require and allow verification of such reports by the market administrator:

(a) Any plant meeting the requirements of a pool plant pursuant to § 1018.11(b) but not pursuant to § 1018.11 (a) which, if it were not a pool plant under this part, would be fully subject to the classification and pooling provisions of another order issued pursuant to the Act;

(b) Any plant meeting the requirements of a pool plant pursuant to § 1018.11(b) but not pursuant to § 1018.11(a) at which all receipts of skim milk and butterfat during the month would be priced and pooled under the terms of another order(s) issued pursuant to the Act if such plant were not a pool plant under this order: Provided, That such pricing and pooling results in all skim milk and butterfat disposed of from the plant in the form of milk and skim milk during the month being Class I milk under the terms of another order(s) issued pursuant to the Act; and

(c) Any plant which does not dispose of a greater volume of Class I milk on routes in the southeastern Florida marketing area than in the marketing area regulated pursuant to such other order.

§ 1018.62 Handlers operating nonpool plants.

On or before the 25th day after the end of each month, each handler (except as provided in § 1018.60) operating a nonpool plant from which Class I milk is disposed of on routes in the marketing area shall pay to the market administrator for deposit into the producer-settlement fund the amount calculated pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section unless the handler elects to pay the amount computed pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section:

(a) Multiply the quantity of milk received by such handler which was disposed of in the marketing area on routes as Class I milk during the month by the rate of compensatory payment pursuant to § 1018.52; or

(b) Any plus amount resulting from the following computation: from an amount equal to the value of milk which would be computed pursuant to § 1018.70 for such month if the plant were a pool plant, adjusted by the butterfat differential pursuant to § 1018.73, deduct the gross payments made by such handler to dairy farmers for milk approved by a duly constituted health authority as described in § 1018.7.

§ 1018.63 Person producing milk.

The person who produces milk shall be considered to be the person who is responsible for the milk production enterprise on a continuing basis as to management and risk.

Determination of Uniform Prices to Producers

§ 1018.70 Computation of the obligation of each handler.

For each month, the market administrator shall compute the value of producer milk for each handler as follows:

(a) Multiply the quantity of producer milk in each class computed pursuant to § 1018.45 by the applicable class price as adjusted by the location differentials pursuant to § 1018.51, and total the resulting amounts;

(b) Add an amount computed by multiplying the pounds of any overage deducted from either class pursuant to § 1018.45 (a)(8) and (b) by the applicable class price adjusted by the butterfat differential specified in § 1018.73;

(c) Add the amounts computed pursuant to subparagraph (1) and (2) of this paragraph:

(1) Multiply the difference between the Class II price for the preceding accounting period and the Class I price for the month by the hundredweight of skim milk and butterfat remaining in Class II milk after the calculations pursuant to § 1018.45(a)(6) and the corresponding step of § 1018.45(b) for the preceding accounting period, or the hundredweight of skim milk and butterfat subtracted from Class I milk pursuant to § 1018.45(a)(5) and the corresponding step of § 1018.45(b) for the current accounting period, whichever is less; and

(2) Amounts computed as follows:

(i) Multiply the rate of compensatory payment pursuant to § 1018.52(a)(1) by the quantity of skim milk and butterfat computed pursuant to subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph which does not exceed the quantity of skim milk and butterfat, respectively, subtracted from Class II milk pursuant to § 1018.45(a)(3) and the corresponding step of (b) for the preceding accounting period; (ii) multiply the rate of compensatory payment pursuant to § 1018.52(a)(2) by any remainder of the quantity computed pursuant to subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph which does not exceed the quantity of skim milk and butterfat respectively, subtracted from Class II milk pursuant to § 1018.45(a)(2) for the preceding accounting period; and (iii) calculate the hundredweight of skim milk and butterfat subtracted from Class I milk pursuant to § 1018.45(a)(5) and the corresponding step of (b), which are in excess of the sum of the quantity of skim milk and butterfat, respectively, on which a payment is applicable pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph and the quantity of skim milk and butterfat assigned in the preceding accounting period to Class II milk pursuant to § 1018.45(a)(4) and the corresponding step of (b); and

(d) Add an amount computed by multiplying the hundredweight of skim milk and butterfat subtracted from Class I milk pursuant to § 1018.45(a)(2) and (3) by the applicable rate determined by § 1018.52: Provided, That this provision shall not apply in any month in which more than 95 percent of producer milk in all handlers' plants is classified as Class I milk.

§ 1018.71 Aggregate value used to determine producer prices.

For each month, the market administrator shall compute an aggregate value from which to determine the uniform prices for base milk and excess milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content, at the market, as follows:

(a) Combine into one total the values computed pursuant to § 1018.70 for the producer milk of all handlers who submitted reports prescribed in § 1018.30 and who are not in default of payments pursuant to § 1018.80 and § 1018.82;

(b) Add an amount equal to the sum of the deductions to be made from producer payments for location differentials pursuant to § 1018.74; and

(c) Add an amount equal to one-half of the unobligated balance on hand in the producer-settlement fund.

§ 1018.72 Computation of uniform base and excess prices.

For each month the market administrator shall compute the uniform prices per hundredweight for base milk and excess milk, each of 4.0 percent butterfat content, at the market, as follows:

(a) Compute the total value, on a 4.0 percent butterfat basis, of excess milk for all handlers whose receipts are included in the computation pursuant to § 1018.71 as follows: (1) Multiply the hundredweight quantity of such milk which does not exceed the total quantity of producer milk assigned to Class II milk in the pool plants of such handlers by the applicable Class II price plus 4 cents, (2) multiply the remaining hundredweight quantity of excess milk by the Class I milk price, and (3) add together the resulting amounts;

(b) Divide the total value of excess milk obtained in paragraph (a) of this section by the total hundredweight of such milk, and subtract not less than 4 cents nor more than 5 cents. The resulting figure shall be the uniform price for excess milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content at the market;

(c) Subtract the value of excess milk obtained in paragraph (a) of this section from the aggregate value of producer milk computed pursuant to § 1018.71;

(d) Divide the amount calculated pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section by the total hundredweight of base milk included in these computations; and

(e) Subtract not less than 4 cents nor more than 5 cents from the price computed pursuant to paragraph (d) of this section. The resulting figure shall be the uniform price for base milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content at the market.

§ 1018.73 Butterfat differential to producers.

The applicable uniform prices to be paid each producer shall be increased or decreased 7.5 cents for each one-tenth of one percent which the average butterfat content of his milk is above or below 4.0 percent, respectively.

§ 1018.74 Location differential to producers.

The applicable uniform prices computed pursuant to § 1018.72 to be paid for base milk and excess milk received at a pool plant located 60 miles or more from the location of the main U.S. Post Office in Boca Raton by the shortest hard-surfaced highway distance, as determined by the market administrator, shall be reduced according to the location of the pool plant where such milk was received, at the rates set forth in § 1018.51.

§ 1018.75 Notification of handlers.

On or before the 11th day after the end of each month, the market administrator shall mail to each handler, at his last known address, a statement showing:

(a) The amount and value of his producer milk in each class and the total thereof;

(b) The uniform prices for base and excess milk computed pursuant to § 1018.72, and the butterfat differentials;

(c) The amount and value of his base milk and excess milk, respectively, and the totals thereof; and

(d) The amounts to be paid by such handler pursuant to §§ 1018.82, 1018.85, and 1018.86, and the amount due such handler pursuant to § 1018.83.

PAYMENTS

§ 1018.80 Time and method of payment for producer milk.

(a) Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, each handler shall make payment to each producer from whom milk is received as follows:

(1) On or before the 20th day of each month to each producer who did not discontinue shipping milk to such handler before the 15th day of the month, an amount equal to not less than the base price for the preceding month less 20 percent, multiplied by the hundredweight of milk received from such producer during the first 15 days of the month, less proper deductions authorized by such producer to be made from payments due pursuant to this paragraph;

(2) On or before the 5th day of the following month to each producer who did not discontinue shipping milk to such handler before the last day of the month, an amount equal to not less than the base price for the preceding month less 20 percent, multiplied by the hundredweight of milk received from such producer after the 15th and through the last day of the month, less proper deductions authorized by such producer to be made from payments due pursuant to this paragraph; and

(3) On or before the 15th day of the following month, to each producer an amount equal to not less than the uniform prices for base milk and excess milk pursuant to § 1018.72, adjusted by the butterfat and location differentials to producers, multiplied by the respective hundredweight of base milk and excess milk received from such producer, subject to the following adjustment: (i) Less payments made to such producer pursuant to subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph, (ii) less marketing service deductions made pursuant to § 1018.85, (iii) plus or minus adjustments for errors made in previous payments made to such producer, and (iv) less proper deductions authorized in writing by such producer: Provided, That if by the date specified, such handler has not received full payment from the market administrator pursuant to § 1018.83 for such month, he may reduce pro rata his payments to producers by not more than the amount of such underpayment and payments to producers shall be completed thereafter not later than the date for making payments pursuant to this paragraph next following after the receipt of the balance due from the market administrator;

(b) Upon receipt of a written request from a cooperative association which the Secretary determines is authorized by its members to collect payment for their milk and receipt of a written promise to reimburse the handler the amount of any actual loss incurred by him because of any improper claim on the part of the association, each handler shall on or before the second day prior to each date on which payments are due individual producers, pay the cooperative association for milk received from the producer-members of such association as determined by the market administrator during the period for which payment is made, an amount equal to not less than the total due such producer-members as determined pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section;

(c) Each handler who received milk from producers for which payment is to be made to a cooperative association pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section shall report to such cooperative association or to the market administrator for transmittal to such cooperative association for each such producer as follows:

(1) On or before the 25th day of the month, the total pounds of milk received during the first 15 days of the month;

(2) On or before the 10th day of the following month: (i) The total pounds of milk received during the month, (ii) the pounds of milk received each day, together with the butterfat content of such milk, (iii) the total pounds of base milk and excess milk, (iv) the amount or rate and nature of any authorized deductions to be made from payments, and (v) the amount and nature of payments due pursuant to § 1018.84.

§ 1018.81 Producer-settlement fund.

The market administrator shall establish and maintain a separate fund known as the "producer-settlement fund" into which he shall deposit all payments made by handlers pursuant to § 1018.82 and out of which he shall make all payments pursuant to § 1018.83: Provided, That any payments due to any handler shall be offset by any payments due from such handler.

§ 1018.82 Payments to the producer-settlement fund.

On or before the 12th day after the end of each month, each handler shall pay to the market administrator any amount by which the value of his producer milk as computed pursuant to § 1018.70 is greater than the amount owed by him for such milk at the uniform prices determined pursuant to § 1018.72, adjusted by the producer location differentials: Provided, That to this amount shall be added one-half of one percent of any amount due the market administrator pursuant to this section for each month or portion thereof that such payment is overdue: And provided further, That the requirement as to date of payment pursuant to this section shall be considered to have been met if the payment is made by mail postmarked not later than the required payment date.

§ 1018.83 Payments out of the producer-settlement fund.

On or before the 13th day after the end of each month, the market administrator shall pay to each handler any amount by which the total value of his producer milk, computed pursuant to § 1018.70, is less than the amount owed by him for such milk at the uniform prices determined pursuant to § 1018.72, adjusted by the producer location differentials. If, at such time, the balance in the producer-settlement fund is insufficient to make all payments pursuant to this section, the market administrator shall reduce uniformly such payments and shall complete such payments as soon as the funds are available.

§ 1018.84 Adjustment of accounts.

Whenever audit by the market administrator of any reports, books, records, or accounts or other verification discloses errors resulting in moneys due (a) the market administrator from a handler, (b) a handler from the market administrator, or (c) any producer or cooperative association from a handler, the market administrator shall promptly notify such handler of any amount so due and payment thereof shall be made on or before the next date for making payments set forth in the provisions under which such error occurred.

§ 1018.85 Marketing services.

(a) Except as set forth in paragraph (b) of this section, each handler, in making payments to producers for milk pursuant to § 1018.80, shall deduct 4 cents per hundredweight, or such lesser amount as may be prescribed by the Secretary, and shall pay such deductions to the market administrator on or before the 15th day after the end of the month. Such money shall be used by the market administrator to provide market information and to check the accuracy of the testing and weighing of their milk for producers who are not receiving such services from a cooperative association pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section; and

(b) In the case of producers who are members of a cooperative association which the Secretary has determined is actually performing the services set forth in paragraph (a) of this section, each handler shall (in lieu of the deduction specified in paragraph (a) of this section) make such deductions from the payments to be made to producers as may be authorized by the membership agreement or marketing contract between the cooperative association and its members. On or before the 15th day after the end of each month, the handler shall pay the aggregate amount of such deductions to the cooperative association, furnishing a statement showing the amount of the deductions and the quantity of milk on which the deduction was computed for each producer.

§ 1018.86 Expense of administration.

On or before the 15th day after the end of each month, each handler shall pay to the market administrator, 4 cents or such lesser amount as the Secretary may prescribe, for each hundredweight of butterfat and skim milk contained in (a) producer milk, and (b) other source milk allocated to Class I milk pursuant to § 1018.45(a) (2) and (3) and the corresponding step in § 1018.45(b), or

(c) Class I milk disposed of on routes in the marketing area from a nonpool plant for which the obligation to the producer-settlement fund is determined pursuant to § 1018.62(a);

(d) Receipts of milk from dairy farmers, or total Class I milk, whichever is greater, at a nonpool plant which elects to have its obligation computed pursuant to § 1018.62(b); and

(e) With respect to payments pursuant to paragraphs (a), (b), (c), and (d) of this section, if a handler uses more than one accounting period in a month, the rate of payment per hundredweight for such handler shall be the rate for monthly accounting periods multiplied by the number of accounting periods in the month, or such lesser rate as the Secretary may determine is demonstrated as appropriate in terms of the particular costs of administering the additional accounting periods.

§ 1018.87 Termination of obligations.

The provisions of this section shall apply to any obligations under this part for the payment of money.

(a) The obligation of any handler to pay money required to be paid under the terms of this part shall, except as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, terminate 2 years after the last day of the month during which the market administrator receives the handler's utilization report on the milk involved in such obligation, unless within such two-year period the market administrator notifies the handler in writing that such money is due and payable. Service of such notice shall be complete upon mailing to the handler's last known address, and it shall contain, but need not be limited to, the following information:

(1) The amount of the obligation;

(2) The months during which the milk, with respect to which the obligation exists, was received or handled; and

(3) If the obligation is payable to one or more producers or to an association of producers, the names of such producers or association of producers, or if the obligation is payable to the market administrator, the account for which it is to be paid;

(b) If a handler fails or refuses, with respect to any obligation under this part, to make available to the market administrator or his representatives all books and records required by this part to be made available, the market administrator may, within the two-year period provided for in paragraph (a) of this section, notify the handler in writing of such failure or refusal. If the market administrator so notifies a handler, the said two-year period, with respect to such obligation, shall not begin to run until the first day of the month following the month during which all such books and records pertaining to such obligation are made available to the market administrator or his representative;

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, a handler's obligation under this part to pay money shall not be terminated with respect to any transaction involving fraud or willful concealment of a fact, material to the obligation, on the part of the handler against whom the obligation is sought to be imposed; and

(d) Any obligation on the part of the market administrator to pay a handler any money which such handler claims to be due him under the terms of this part shall terminate two years after the end of the month during which the payment (including deduction or offset by the market administrator) was made by the handler, if a refund on such payment is claimed unless such handler, within the applicable period of time, files, pursuant to section 8c(15)(A) of the act, a petition claiming such money.

BASE RATING

§ 1018.90 Computation of daily base for each producer.

Subject to the rules set forth in § 1018.91, a daily base, effective for 12 months beginning February 1 of each year, shall be computed for each producer by dividing the total pounds of milk received from such producer at all pool plants during the base earning months of August through December immediately preceding by the number of days beginning with the first day of delivery by such producer during such months through the last day of December, inclusive, or by 120, whichever is greater: Provided, That any producer who, during the preceding months of August through December, delivered his milk to a nonpool plant which subsequently became a pool plant shall be assigned a base in the same manner calculated from his deliveries during such August–December period to such plant: And provided further, That for the period beginning with March 1, 1960, and through January 31, 1961, the daily base for each producer shall be computed by dividing the total pounds of milk received from such producer at all pool plants during the base earning months of August 1959 through January 1960, inclusive, by the number of days from the first day of delivery during such months through the last day of January, or by 150, whichever is greater, subject also to the first proviso of this section applied to the August 1959 through January 1960 period instead of the August–December period.

§ 1018.91 Base rules.

The following rules shall apply in connection with the establishment and assignment of bases:

(a) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (b) of this section, the market administrator shall assign a base as calculated pursuant to § 1018.90 to each person for whose account milk was delivered to plants as described in § 1018.90 during the months of August through December (August through January for bases effective March 1, 1960): Provided, That any producer who has not earned a base pursuant to § 1018.90 or any producer who elects to relinquish such base by giving written notice to the market administrator, shall be assigned a base each month equal to the percentage of his deliveries specified in the following schedule:

	Percentage
February	50
March	50
April	50
May	55
June	55
July	60
August	70
September	70
October	65
November	60
December	55
January	55

(b) Assignment and transfer of any base shall be subject to the following rules:

(1) An entire base (except one computed pursuant to the proviso of paragraph (a) of this section) may be transferred from a person holding such base to any other person, effective as of the end of any month during which an application for such transfer is received by the market administrator, such application to be on forms approved by the market administrator and signed by the baseholder, or his heirs, and by the person to whom such base is to be transferred: Provided, That if a base is held jointly, the entire base shall be transferable only upon the receipt of such application signed by all joint holders, or their heirs, and by the person to whom such base is to be transferred.

(2) If milk received as producer milk under the name of more than one person is produced on, in, or by use of the same milking barns or premises, the base or bases assigned to such persons as producers shall not exceed the base assignable if such milk were produced by one person using the same facilities.

(3) A base may be divided among members of a partnership, among members of the immediate family of the baseholder, or among stockholders of a corporation at dissolution of the corporation, such division to be effective as of the end of any month during which an application for such division is received by the market administrator on forms approved by the market administrator and signed by persons making such division.

(4) A person who has transferred a base computed from milk deliveries to pool plants during a base earning period may not have a base assigned to him on a percentage of his deliveries pursuant to the proviso of paragraph (a) of this section until after the end of the period to which the transferred base applies.

(5) A producer who has made milk deliveries to pool plants during the immediately preceding base earning period may elect to have his base computed from his milk deliveries to pool plants in the second preceding base earning period, if he so notifies the market administrator prior to the month in which such election will apply.

§ 1018.92 Announcement of established bases.

On or before January 25th of each year, the market administrator shall notify each producer, and the handler receiving milk from such producer, of the producer's daily base to be effective for the 12-month period, beginning February 1 of such year: Provided, That for the period March 1960 through January 1961, each producer's base shall be announced on or before February 25, 1960.

EFFECTIVE TIME, SUSPENSION, OR TERMINATION

§ 1018.100 Effective time.

The provisions of the part, or any amendment thereto, shall become effective at such time as the Secretary may declare and shall continue in force until suspended or terminated.

§ 1018.101 Suspension or termination.

The Secretary shall, whenever he finds that any or all provisions of this part, or any amendment thereto, obstruct or do not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act, terminate or suspend the operation of any or all provisions of this order or any amendment thereto.

§ 1018.102 Continuing obligations.

If, upon the suspension or termination of any or all provisions of this part, or any amendment thereto, there are any obligations thereunder, the final accrual or ascertainment of which requires further acts by any person (including the market administrator), such further acts shall be performed notwithstanding such suspension or termination.

§ 1018.103 Liquidation.

Upon the suspension or termination of any or all provisions of this part, the market administrator, or such other liquidating agent as the Secretary may designate, shall, if so directed by the Secretary, liquidate the business of the market administrator's office, dispose of all property in his possession or control, including account receivable, and execute and deliver all assignments or other instruments necessary or appropriate to effectuate any such disposition. If a liquidating agent is so designated, all assets, books, and records of the market administrator shall be transferred promptly to such liquidating agent. If, upon such liquidation, the funds on hand exceed the amounts required to pay outstanding obligations of the office of the market administrator and to pay necessary expenses of liquidating and distribution, such excess shall be distributed to contributing handlers and producers in an equitable manner.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

§ 1018.110 Agents.

The Secretary may, by designation in writing, name any officer or employee of the United States to act as his agent and representative in connection with any of the provisions of this part.

§ 1018.111 Separability of provisions.

If any provision of this part, or its application to any person or circumstances, is held invalid, the application of such provision, and of the remaining provisions of this part, to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

Issued at Washington, D.C., this 20th day of June 1960, to be effective on and after the 1st day of July, 1960.

CLARENCE L. MILLER,
Assistant Secretary.

Title 20—EMPLOYEES BENEFITS

Chapter II—Railroad Retirement Board

PART 208—ELIGIBILITY FOR AN ANNUITY

PART 237—INSURANCE ANNUITIES AND LUMP SUMS FOR SURVIVORS

Current Connection With Railroad Industry

Pursuant to the general authority contained in section 10 of the act of June 24, 1937 (50 Stat. 314, 45 U.S.C. 228j), § 208.5 of Part 208 (20 C.F.R. 208.5) and § 237.102(c) of Part 237 (20 CFR 237.102(c)) of the Regulations under such act are amended by Board Order 60-99, dated June 8, 1960, to read as follows:

§ 208.5 Current connection with the railroad industry.

(a) An individual will have had a current connection with the railroad industry at the time an annuity begins to accrue to him if he will have had a period of 30 consecutive calendar months which meets the following requirements: First, that period must have ended before an annuity begins to accrue to him in accordance with Part 214 of this chapter. Second, during that period he must have been in service as an employee in at least 12 calendar months. Third, if there was any interval between the end of the 30-month period and the month in which an annuity begins to accrue to him, he must not, in that interval, have been engaged in any regular employment other than service for an employer. (For statutory provisions, see § 237.101 of this chapter.)

(b) For the purposes of this part and § 225.5 of this chapter, "regular employment" shall mean full- or part-time employment for remuneration by an individual for a person (as defined in § 201.1 (j) of this chapter) on a continuing or recurring basis. Self-employment shall not be considered "regular employment." An individual performing employment for remuneration, whether or not under a contract, shall be deemed to be in the employ of a person unless such employment is performed as a part of his independently established trade, business or occupation. An individual shall be deemed to have been engaged in "regular employment" in the interval between the end of the last 30-month period in which he had been in service as an employee in 12 calendar months and the month in which an annuity begins to accrue to him if he worked for one or more persons in any three consecutive calendar quarters wholly or partially within such interval and earned wages of at least $300 for work in each of any two consecutive calendar quarters wholly or partially within such interval even though such two quarters do not fall within a three-consecutive-calendar-quarter period of work.

(c) A determination as to whether or not an individual will have had a current connection with the railroad industry made on or after June 8, 1960, shall be made under the provisions of this section. In any case in which a disability annuity under § 208.7(a)(3), a minimum annuity under § 225.5 of this chapter, or a spouse's annuity under § 232.202(c) of this chapter has previously been denied because the individual did not have a current connection with the railroad industry under the provisions of this section as in effect prior to June 8, 1960, the decision denying the claim in whole or in part may be reopened and reconsidered under the provisions of this section: Provided, however, That any annuity or increase in annuity for which an individual may be found entitled shall not be retroactive more than 12 months before the date of such reopening.

§ 237.102 Completely insured status.

(c) Current connection with the railroad industry.

(1) A deceased individual will have had a current connection with the railroad industry at the time of his death if he will have had a period of 30 consecutive calendar months which meets the following requirements: First, that period must have ended before an annuity had begun to accrue to him in accordance with Part 214 of this chapter, or before the month in which he died if that occurred first. Second, during that period he must have been in service as an employee in at least 12 calendar months. Third, if there was any interval between the end of the 30-month period and the month in which an annuity began to accrue to him, or the month in which he died if that occurred first, he must not, in that interval, have been engaged in any regular employment other than service for an employer. For the purposes of this paragraph, "regular employment" shall mean full- or part-time employment for remuneration by an individual for a person (as defined in § 201.1(j) of this chapter) on a continuing or recurring basis. Self-employment shall not be considered "regular employment." An individual performing employment for remuneration, whether or not under a contract, shall be deemed to be in the employ of a person unless such employment is performed as a part of his independently established trade, business or occupation. An individual shall be deemed to have been engaged in "regular employment" in the interval between the end of the last 30-month period in which he had been in service as an employee in 12 calendar months and the month in which an annuity had begun to accrue to him, or the month in which he died if that occurred first, if he worked for one or more persons in any three consecutive calendar quarters wholly or partially within such interval and earned wages of at least $300 for work in each of any two consecutive calendar quarters wholly or partially within such interval even though such two quarters do not fall within a three-consecutive-calendar-quarter period of work.

(2) A deceased individual will have also had a current connection with the railroad industry at the time of his death for the purposes of this part if:

(i) He was neither fully nor currently insured under the Social Security Act, but would otherwise have a completely or partially insured status under the Railroad Retirement Act; or

(ii) He had no wage quarters of coverage.

(3) A determination as to whether or not a deceased individual will have had a current connection with the railroad industry made on or after June 8, 1960 shall be made under the provisions of this paragraph.

(Sec. 10, 50 Stat. 314, 45 U.S.C. 228j)

[26 CFR Part 16]

EXCESS PROFITS ON ARMY CONTRACTS FOR AIRCRAFT

Setoffs of Deficiencies in Profit Against Excess Profits

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act, approved June 11, 1946, that the regulations set forth in tentative form below are proposed to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate, of the Secretary of the Army or his delegate, and the Secretary of the Air Force or his delegate. Prior to the final adoption of such regulations, consideration will be given to any data, views, or arguments pertaining thereto which are submitted in writing, in duplicate, to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention: T:P, Washington 25, D.C., within the period of 30 days from the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Any person submitting written comments or suggestions who desires an opportunity to comment orally at a public hearing on these proposed regulations should submit his request, in writing, to the Commissioner within the 30-day period. In such a case, a public hearing will be held and notice of the time, place, and date will be published in a subsequent issue of the FEDERAL REGISTER. The proposed regulations are to be issued under the authority contained in section 3791 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 (53 Stat. 467; 26 U.S.C. 3791).

[SEAL] DANA LATHAM,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

In order to conform the Excess Profits Regulations (26 CFR (1939) Part 16), relating to excess profits on Army contracts for aircraft, to the decision in Emerson Electric Manufacturing Company (1957) 28 T.C. 1090, and to make certain clarifying changes, such regulations are amended as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Section 16.5 is amended by revising paragraph (c) (2) and (3) to read as follows:

(2) The amount of any net loss allowable as a credit in determining the excess profit for the income-taxable year (see § 16.9); and

(3) The amount of any deficiency in profit allowable as a credit in determining the excess profit for the income-taxable year (see § 16.9). The amount remaining after such subtraction is the amount of excess profit for the income-taxable year.

PAR. 2. Section 16.6 is amended by revising the example to read as follows:

Example. On September 1, 1939, the B Corporation, which keeps its books and makes its Federal income tax returns on a calendar year basis, entered into a contract for the construction of Army aircraft coming within the scope of the act, the total contract price of which was $200,000. On March 10, 1940, the corporation entered into another such contract, the total contract price of which was $40,000. Both contracts were completed within the calendar year 1940, the first at a cost of $155,000 and the second at a cost of $45,000. During the year 1940, the B Corporation also completed at a deficiency in profit of $2,000 a contract entered into after April 3, 1939, for the construction of naval aircraft coming within the scope of 10 U.S.C. 2382 (formerly section 3 of the Act of March 27, 1934 (48 Stat. 505)). For the year 1939, the B Corporation sustained a net loss of $1,500 and a deficiency in profit of $1,000 on all contracts and subcontracts entered into after April 3, 1939, for Army aircraft coming within the scope of the act and completed within the calendar year 1939. For the year 1939, the B Corporation also sustained a net loss of $1,000 on a contract, entered into after April 3, 1939, and completed within the calendar year 1939, for naval aircraft coming within the scope of 10 U.S.C. 2382 (formerly section 3 of the Act of March 27, 1934 (48 Stat. 505)). For purposes of the Federal income tax, the net income of the B Corporation for the year 1940, on which the tax was paid, amounted to $96,000, which included the total net profit of $40,000 upon the two contracts entered into on September 1, 1939, and March 10, 1940. The excess profit liability is $4,332, computed as follows:

Total contract prices:
Contract No. 1	$200,000
Contract No. 2	40,000
		$240,000
Less: Cost of performing contracts:
Contract No. 2	45,000
		200,000
Net profit on contracts		40,000
Less:
12 percent of total contract prices (12 percent of $240,000)	$28,800
Deficiency in profit (in naval aircraft contracts) in 1940	2,000
Net loss (in Army aircraft contracts) from 1939	1,500
Net loss (in naval aircraft contracts) from 1939	1,000
Deficiency in profit (in Army aircraft contracts) from 1939	1,000
		34,300
Excess profit for year 1940		5,700
Less: Credit for Federal income taxes (Federal income tax on $5,700 at rates for 1940)		1,368
Amount of excess profit payable to the United States		4,332

PAR. 3. Section 16.9 is amended:

(A) By revising paragraphs (a) and (b) to read as follows:

(a) The term "net loss" as used in the act and as applied to contracts and subcontracts for aircraft or portions thereof coming within the regulations prescribed under the act or under 10 U.S.C. 2382 (formerly section 3 of the Act of March 27, 1934 (48 Stat. 505)) means the amount by which the total cost of performing all such contracts and subcontracts for aircraft entered into after April 3, 1939, and completed by a particular contracting party within the income-taxable year exceeds the total contract prices of such contracts and subcontracts. As to the meaning of income-taxable year, see § 16.1.

(b) The term "deficiency in profit", as used in the act and as applied to contracts and subcontracts for aircraft or portions thereof coming within the regulations prescribed under the act or under 10 U.S.C. 2382 (formerly section 3 of the Act of March 27, 1934 (48 Stat. 505)), means the amount by which 12 percent of the total contract prices of all such contracts and subcontracts for aircraft entered into after April 3, 1939, and completed by a particular contracting party within the income-taxable year exceeds the net profit upon all such contracts and subcontracts.

(B) By revising the first sentence of paragraph (c) to read as follows:

(c) A net loss or a deficiency in profit sustained by a contracting party for an income-taxable year is allowable as a credit in computing the contracting party's excess profit on contracts and subcontracts for aircraft coming within the regulations prescribed under the act or under 10 U.S.C. 2382 (formerly section 3 of the Act of March 27, 1934 (48 Stat. 505)) and completed during the four next succeeding income-taxable years.

(C) By revising the example in paragraph (e) to read as follows:

Example. For the calendar year 1939, the A Corporation, which keeps its books and makes its Federal income tax returns on a calendar year basis, sustained a net loss of $30,000 on the contracts and subcontracts for Army aircraft and portions thereof coming within the scope of the act and completed within that year. During the year 1939, the A Corporation also completed contracts for naval aircraft coming within the scope of 10 U.S.C. 2382 (formerly section 3 of the Act of March 27, 1934 (48 Stat. 505)) at a deficiency in profit of $10,000. In 1940, the A Corporation completed similar contracts for Army aircraft totaling $175,000 at a cost of $155,000, whereby the A Corporation realized a net profit of $20,000 but sustained a deficiency in profit of $1,000 (i.e., 12 percent of $175,000, or $21,000, less $20,000). During the year 1940, the A Corporation also completed contracts for naval aircraft coming within the scope of 10 U.S.C. 2382 (formerly section 3 of the Act of March 27, 1934 (48 Stat. 505)) at a net loss of $2,000. In 1941, the A Corporation completed contracts for Army aircraft coming within the scope of the act totaling $400,000 at a cost of $300,000, or at a net profit of $100,000. After deducting from the net profit of $100,000 for the year 1941 the amount of $48,000 (i.e., 12 percent of the total contract price of $400,000), there remains $52,000 in excess profit on the contracts completed in the year 1941. The A Corporation may deduct from such $52,000, in determining the amount of excess profit it must pay for the year 1941 with respect to the contracts completed in such year, the net loss of $30,000 and the deficiency in profit of $10,000 sustained in 1939 on Army and naval aircraft contracts, respectively, and the net loss of $2,000 and the deficiency in profit of $1,000 sustained in 1940 on naval and Army aircraft contracts, respectively.

EXCESS PROFITS ON NAVY CONTRACTS

Setoffs of Deficiences in Profit Against Excess Profits

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act, approved June 11, 1946, that the regulations set forth in tentative form below are proposed to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate and of the Secretary of the Navy or his delegate. Prior to the final adoption of such regulations, consideration will be given to any data, views, or arguments pertaining thereto which are submitted in writing, in duplicate, to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention: T:P, Washington 25, D.C., within the period of 30 days from the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Any person submitting written comments or suggestions who desires an opportunity to comment orally at a public hearing on these proposed regulations should submit his request, in writing, to the Commissioner within the 30-day period. In such a case, a public hearing will be held and notice of the time, place, and date will be published in a subsequent issue of the FEDERAL REGISTER. The proposed regulations are to be issued under the authority contained in section 3791 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 (53 Stat. 467; 26 U.S.C. 3791).

[SEAL] DANA LATHAM,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

In order to conform the Excess Profits Regulations (26 CFR (1939) Part 17), relating to excess profits on Navy contracts for vessels and aircraft, to the decision in Emerson Electric Manufacturing Company (1957) 28 T.C. 1090, and to make certain clarifying changes, such regulations are amended as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Section 17.7 is amended:

(A) By revising paragraph (c) (2) and (3) to read as follows:

(2) The amount of any net loss which was sustained in the same or a prior income-taxable year with respect to contracts or subcontracts for the construction or manufacture of any complete aircraft or any portion thereof, and which is allowable as a credit in determining the excess profit for the income-taxable year with respect to contracts and subcontracts entered into for the construction or manufacture of complete aircraft or any portion thereof (see § 17.10(b)); and

(3) The amount of any deficiency in profit which was sustained in the same or a prior income-taxable year with respect to contracts or subcontracts for the construction or manufacture of any complete aircraft or any portion thereof, and which is allowable as a credit in determining the excess profit for the income-taxable year with respect to contracts and subcontracts entered into for the construction or manufacture of complete aircraft or any portion thereof (see § 17.10(c)).

(B) By revising the example in paragraph (e) to read as follows:

Example. On September 1, 1939, the B Corporation, which keeps its books and makes its Federal income tax returns on a calendar year basis, entered into a contract with the Secretary of the Navy for the construction of naval aircraft coming within the scope of the act, the total contract price of which was $200,000. On March 10, 1940, the B Corporation entered into another such contract, the total contract price of which was $40,000. Both contracts were completed within the calendar year 1940, the first at a cost of $155,000 and the second at a cost of $45,000. During the year 1940, the B Corporation also completed at a deficiency in profit of $2,000 a contract entered into for the construction of Army aircraft coming within the scope of the act. During the year 1940, the B Corporation also completed at a loss of $10,000 two contracts entered into for the construction or manufacture of portions of a naval vessel coming within the scope of the act. For the year 1939, the B Corporation sustained a net loss of $2,500 and a deficiency in profit of $1,000 on all contracts and subcontracts for naval aircraft coming within the scope of the act and completed within the calendar year 1939. For the year 1939, the B Corporation also sustained a net loss of $1,800 on a contract for the construction of Army aircraft coming within the scope of the act which was completed within the calendar year 1939. For the purposes of the Federal income tax, the net income of the B Corporation for the year 1940, on which the tax was paid, amounted to $96,000, which included the net profit of $40,000 upon the contracts entered into on September 1, 1939, and March 10, 1940. The excess profit liability of the B Corporation for 1940 is payable with respect to the contracts for naval aircraft which were completed in 1940. The loss of $10,000 on the contracts for portions of a naval vessel completed in 1940 does not enter into the computation of such liability. Accordingly, the excess profit liability of the B Corporation for 1940 is $2,964 computed as follows:

Total contract prices:
Contract No. 1	$200,000
Contract No. 2	40,000
		$240,000
Less: Cost of performing contracts:
Contract No. 1	155,000
Contract No. 2	45,000
		200,000
Net profit on contracts		40,000
Less:

PAR. 2. Section 17.10 is amended—

(A) By revising paragraphs (b) and (c) to read as follows:

(b) Net loss on contracts and subcontracts for aircraft or portions thereof. In the case of contracts or subcontracts for the construction or manufacture of any complete aircraft or any portion thereof coming within the scope of the act which are completed within an income-taxable year ending after April 3, 1939, the term "net loss" as used in the act and in these regulations means the amount by which the total costs of performing all such contracts and subcontracts completed within such income-taxable year exceeds the total contract prices of such contracts and subcontracts. Such net loss sustained by a contracting party for an income-taxable year ending after April 3, 1939, is allowable as a credit in computing the contracting party's excess profit on contracts and subcontracts for the construction or manufacture of any complete aircraft or any portion thereof which are completed within the four next succeeding income-taxable years.

(c) Deficiency in profit. The term "deficiency in profit" as used in the act and in this part relates to contracts and subcontracts coming within the scope of the act which are for the construction or manufacture of any complete aircraft or any portion thereof and are completed within an income-taxable year ending after April 3, 1939. As so used, the term "deficiency in profit" means the amount by which 12 percent of the total contract prices of such contracts and subcontracts which are completed by a particular contracting party within the income-taxable year exceeds the net profit upon such contracts and subcontracts. A deficiency in profit sustained by a contracting party with respect to such contracts and subcontracts for the construction or manufacture of complete aircraft or any portion thereof and completed within any income-taxable year ending after April 3, 1939, is allowable as a credit in computing the contracting party's excess profit on contracts and subcontracts for the construction or manufacture of complete aircraft or any portion thereof which are completed within the same or the four next succeeding income-taxable years.

(B) By revising example (2) in paragraph (e) to read as follows:

Example (2). For the calendar year 1939, the B Corporation, which keeps its books and makes its Federal income tax returns on a calendar year basis, sustained a net loss of $10,000 and a deficiency in profit of $35,000 upon all contracts and subcontracts for naval aircraft and portions thereof coming within the scope of the act and completed within that year. During the year 1939, the B Corporation also completed contracts for Army aircraft coming within the scope of the Act at a net profit which was $15,000 in excess of 12 percent of the total contract prices of such contracts. On all contracts and subcontracts for naval aircraft coming within the scope of the act and completed within the calendar year 1940, the B Corporation realized a net profit which was $25,000 in excess of 12 percent of the total contract prices of such contracts and subcontracts while sustaining a deficiency in profit of $10,000 on like contracts and subcontracts for Army aircraft. On all contracts and subcontracts for naval aircraft coming within the scope of the act and completed within the calendar year 1941, the B Corporation realized a net profit which was $20,000 in excess of 12 percent of the total contract prices of such contracts. The net loss of $10,000 and deficiency in profit of $35,000 (or a total of $45,000) sustained in 1939 with respect to contracts and subcontracts for naval aircraft completed within that year may be taken as a credit to the extent of $15,000 in computing the excess profit on the contracts and subcontracts for Army aircraft completed in 1939. The remainder of such net loss and such deficiency in profit ($45,000 minus $15,000, or $30,000) may be combined with the deficiency in profit of $10,000 sustained in 1940 on contracts for Army aircraft and taken as a credit to the extent of $25,000 in computing the excess profit on the contracts and subcontracts for aircraft completed during 1940. The sum of such net loss and such deficiency in profit then remaining ($40,000 minus $25,000, or $15,000) may be taken as a credit in computing the excess profit realized on the contracts and subcontracts for aircraft completed in the year 1941.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Agricultural Marketing Service

[7 CFR Part 968]

[Docket No. AO-173-A11]

MILK IN WICHITA, KANSAS, MARKETING AREA

Decision on Proposed Amendments to Tentative Marketing Agreement and to Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held at Wichita, Kansas, on October 6, 1959, pursuant to notice thereof issued on September 24, 1959 (24 F.R. 7876).

Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at the hearing and the record thereof, the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, on May 4, 1960 (25 F.R. 4089; F.R. Doc. 60-4158) filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, his recommended decision containing notice of the opportunity to file written exceptions thereto.

The material issues on the record of the hearing relate to:

1. Need for emergency suspension of a portion of the supply-demand adjustment to Class I price;
2. Revision of the supply-demand adjustment to the Class I price;
3. Cooperative standby plant definition;
4. Standards for qualifying a distributing plant as a pool plant;
5. Revising the method of accounting for the skim milk equivalent of dried or concentrated products;
6. Revision of the Class II (cottage cheese) definition;
7. Inventory accounting;
8. Provisions with respect to unpriced milk; and
9. Administrative provisions.

A proposal to review the level of the Class II (cottage cheese) price was not supported at the hearing and no further reference to it is made herein.

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the material issues are based on evidence presented at the hearing and the record thereof:

1. Suspension action. In a decision signed October 22, 1959, it was determined that conditions were not so acute as to require the requested suspension of § 968.51(a)(3)(ii) pending the complete revision of the supply-demand adjustment to the Class I price. The suspension request was, therefore, denied.

SUPPLY-DEMAND FINDINGS—WICHITA

2. Supply-demand adjustment. Based on evidence of record presented at a hearing held October 6, 1959, the following action should be taken with respect to the supply-demand adjustment to the Class I price:

(1) The seasonality of the norms should be revised.

(2) The present supply-demand limits should be replaced by an upper and lower limit based on the Greater Kansas City Class I price.

(3) The third cumulative step of the rate of adjustment, suspended September 1, 1959, should be reinstated.

(4) The rate of adjustment should continue to be one cent per point of net deviation.

(5) The annual average reserve supply on which the norms are based should continue to be 135 percent of Class I sales.

(6) A ten-point path of zero adjustment should continue to be provided between the maximum and minimum standard utilization percentages in each month.

Seasonality of the standard utilization percentages should be revised to better accommodate changes in the seasonality of production which have occurred in recent years. The seasonal pattern of the norms proposed by the major cooperative serving the market appears to appropriately reflect the recent experience of the market and should therefore be adopted. The proposed standard utilization percentages were developed by graphic observation of the distribution of actual utilization percentages during the period January–February 1954 through July–August 1959. Adoption of the proposed seasonal pattern will provide less minus supply-demand adjustment during the fall months of September, October, November and December. A table comparing the present norms with those recommended herein is as follows:

Delivery period for which price applies	Delivery period used in computation	Recommended percentages		Present order percentages
		Minimum	Maximum	Minimum	Maximum
January	October–November	125	135	126	136
February	November–December	124	134	130	140
March	December–January	125	135	128	138
April	January–February	125	135	126	136
May	February–March	132	142	130	140
June	March–April	136	146	135	145
July	April–May	143	153	141	151
August	May–June	137	147	138	148
September	June–July	131	141	130	140
October	July–August	131	141	130	140
November	August–September	130	140	128	138
December	September–October	126	136	123	133

Handlers proposed that the upper and lower limits of the supply-demand norms be established at plus and minus one standard deviation of the average of the actual utilization of a recent five-year period. This concept of determining norms should not be adopted. The plan would limit supply-demand price adjustments in many cases to periods when supplies relative to sales were further from the norms as now provided in the order and from those recommended herein. If the actual utilization of the five years of data were normally distributed about the average, norms based on plus and minus one standard deviation would result in zero supply-demand adjustment to the Class I price in 68 percent of the cases.

The present limits of plus and minus 45 cents should be replaced with a schedule of minimum and maximum differences from the Class I price established under the order regulating the handling of milk in the Greater Kansas City market. The change in the limits recommended herein is based on the extensive competition between the two markets in both the procurement and sale of milk. One cooperative association of producers operates a distributing plant under the Wichita order and a supply plant under the Greater Kansas City order. Another Greater Kansas City handler has extensive sales in the recently expanded Wichita market. There is also an extensive overlapping of the two milksheds. The stated Class I differential in the Wichita order is $1.65 in all 12 months of the year. The Kansas City Class I differential is $1.15 in the months of April, May, June, and July and $1.45 in the other 8 months of the year for an average of $1.35. Appropriate limits to the Wichita supply-demand, subject to further variation depending on the action of the Kansas City supply-demand adjustment, can be accomplished by setting the limits of the Wichita Class I price at the Kansas City Class I price plus 25 cents as a floor and plus 85 cents as a ceiling during the months of April, May, June, and July. During the months of August through March, the floor should be the Kansas City price minus 10 cents and the ceiling the Kansas City price plus 50 cents. Establishing this upper and lower limit on the Wichita supply-demand adjustment would have provided an average lower limit Class I price of $4.59 and an average upper limit Class I price of $5.19 during the year 1959 on a 3.8 percent butterfat basis. Official notice is hereby taken of the Wichita and Kansas City Class I prices for October, November, and December 1959.

Another issue considered at the hearing related to the average level of producer receipts which are needed to meet Class I sales and provide an adequate level of reserve supply. The standard utilization percentages in the present order reflect actual experience during the period December 1957 through November 1958. Testimony was received to the effect that the utilization percentages of 125, 125, and 135 for the months of September, October, and November, 1958, respectively were not an accurate indication of the supply-sales relationships in the market since out-of-area sales of bulk milk were substantial during this period. While it may be true that greater reserve supplies are now needed to meet the Class I requirements of local plants because of their 5- and 6-day bottling operations and that it is not therefore feasible to utilize week end surpluses for out-of-area sales, evidence shows that at the level of prices which prevailed during the period since 1958, supplies have been more than adequate to fill the Class I requirements of the market. In these circumstances, it appears appropriate to maintain the same annual average level of reserve supply as is presently provided for in the order. This can be achieved by adjusting the mid-points of the proposed norms to incorporate their seasonality at the same time keeping the annual average reserve equal to 135.4 percent of Class I sales.

Another variable in the supply-demand adjustment is the rate of adjustment per point of indicated oversupply or undersupply. The adjustment should continue to exert an active influence on the Class I price level. Only an active supply-demand adjustment will appropriately reflect changes in the supply and demand conditions in the market. The rate of adjustment should therefore continue at one cent per point of net deviation and be cumulative to the extent that adjustments in the same direction occur for a period not to exceed three months.

Consideration was also given at the hearing to the use of the ratio of producer receipts to Class I sales in the first and second months preceding the pricing month as an indicator of actual market utilization. The present order uses the second and third month preceding the pricing month as an indication of market over or under-supply in relation to the standards. Use of the second and third months experience as presently contained in the order appears more appropriate than the use of the first and second months experience since the supply-demand adjustment can be announced.[1] It is concluded that the utilization of the second and third month preceding the pricing month should continue to be used to indicate the current supply-demand situation.

The supply-demand adjustment to the Wichita Class I price became effective for the first time on May 1, 1959. Without the suspension of the third cumulative step of the rate of adjustment, the reduction would have averaged minus 18 cents per month for the 12-month period May 1959 through April 1960. With the suspension of the third step made effective September 1, 1959, the average per month for the 12-month period was minus 13 cents. With the modifications provided herein the supply-demand adjustment for the same 12 months would have averaged minus 17 cents per month. During this period the Greater Kansas City floor and ceiling would not have acted to limit the supply-demand adjustment as recommended. Official notice is hereby taken of the Wichita and Kansas City supply-demand adjustments and Class I prices as announced for October 1959 through April 1960.

3. Cooperative standby plant. The present Wichita order defines two different types of dairy plant operations which may become pooled. The first would be a fluid milk processing and distributing plant from which a requisite proportion of the total receipts from approved dairy farmers are distributed on routes. The second operation described is that of a country or supply plant. This operation may be designated as a pool plant through the shipment of a required percentage of total receipts to approved processing and distributing plants which serve the market.

It was proposed that a third pool plant provision be written in the order to allow a standby plant, operated by a cooperative association, to be pooled on the basis of the over-all performance of the association rather than on the basis of specific shipments from the plant.

Such a standby plant was being constructed by the Wichita Milk Producers Association at the time of the hearing. When completed, the plant will be operated as an auxiliary supply and surplus disposal operation which supplements the principal function of the cooperative in supplying the needs of other handlers serving the Wichita market.

It appears that special consideration should be given to an operation which functions to equalize the supply and demand for milk and therefore tends to promote the orderly marketing of milk in Wichita. It should be noted that the standby plant will be handling member producer milk already associated with the market. To the extent that the new cooperative facilities can also be used to develop Class I sales out of the Wichita area, all producers in the market will benefit therefrom.

To accommodate a standby plant as described above, the order should be amended to provide that a plant operated by a cooperative association be pooled during any month in which 60 percent or more of the milk delivered during the month by approved dairy farmers who are members of such an association is delivered directly or is transferred by the association to pooled distributing plants of other handlers.

4. Pool plant standards. Testimony was received regarding the need to modify present pooling requirements of the order with respect to distributing plants. It was proposed that the month of July be included as one of the flush production months in which a plant be pooled if 25 percent of the total receipts were disposed of as Class I and 10 percent of the total receipts were disposed of on routes in the marketing area. The present order specifies these minimum percentages of association with the market during the months of March through June inclusive. In the months of lower supply, presently specified as July through February, the requirements are that 35 percent of receipts be utilized as Class I and 15 percent be disposed of on routes in the marketing area.

It was pointed out that July is typically a month when Class I sales decline and production varies greatly from year to year. In July 1959, one plant failed to qualify because Class I sales were less than 35 percent of Grade A receipts. The producers delivering at such a plant were not pooled for that month.

A further proposal was received to change the percent of a plant's receipts which must be sold in the marketing area from 15 percent to 10 percent during the months of August through February. This change was deemed necessary to reduce the danger that the Arkansas City Cooperative Association should fail to be pooled. This cooperative has long established route sales outside the present market and could have difficulty meeting the 15 percent in-area requirement. This would be particularly true if the bulk tank receipts should continue to increase at the association plant. It should be noted that a plant would still be required to dispose of 35 percent of its total receipts from approved dairy farmers as Class I during the months of August through February in order to be pooled.

It is concluded that the order should be amended to include the month of July in the period when lower pooling requirements apply and to reduce the percent of in-area route sales from 15 to 10 percent during the months of August through February.

[1] Before the beginning of the pricing month, thereby furnishing advance notice to both producers and handlers.

Handlers proposed that if a plant met the pool requirements in any one month it should also be pooled in the next month following. This proposal should not be adopted for two reasons: Firstly, a plant not regularly associated with the market could be pooled for one additional month after the termination of a military contract or some other sales situation of short duration. Secondly, this proposal violates the concept that a plant should demonstrate current association with the market on an objective basis from month to month.

5. Classification and accounting. It was proposed that if any of the water contained in the milk from which a product is made is removed before the product is utilized or disposed of, the pounds of skim milk used or disposed of in such a product should be an amount equivalent to the nonfat solids contained in such a product plus all of the water originally associated with such solids.

The present order provides for the skim milk equivalent of concentrated products used to produce cottage cheese. Skim equivalent accounting also occurs with reconstituted or recombined Class I products by virtue of water actually being added back to the solids. On the other hand, solids used in the fortification of any Class I fluid product are presently accounted for on the basis of the actual number of pounds of solids used.

These two methods of accounting result in different costs for identical solids which cannot be distinguished as to their ultimate use. The order should be amended to provide for the accounting of all receipts and disposition on the same basis. The skim milk equivalent provides the basis upon which uniform accounting may be accomplished and insure local producer milk the priority of Class I utilization.

6. Cottage cheese. Under present order provisions, cottage cheese is considered as Class II utilization only if it is made in plants from which distribution is made in those portions of the marketing area where cottage cheese is required to be made from Grade A milk. Such area presently includes the City of Wichita, where a city ordinance with respect to milk and milk products is now in effect, and the territory within three miles of the city limits, which is covered by a resolution of the Sedgwick County Board of County Commissioners. The Class II price is 80 cents per hundredweight above the Class III price.

It was proposed that Class II include only that milk used to produce cottage cheese actually sold within the territories requiring cottage cheese to be made from Grade A sources. This would involve a substantial reduction in Class II use since the handlers involved sell a sizeable proportion of the cottage cheese they make outside of Wichita and the 3-mile limit. The proposal was based on the fact that outside the 3-mile limit, the cottage cheese must be sold in competition with cottage cheese made from cheaper sources of milk. Such competition would include those plants regulated under the Wichita order which do not sell cottage cheese within the 3-mile limit, and handlers regulated under other Federal orders.

The original decision to provide a separate classification for milk used to produce cottage cheese was based in large part on the fact that Grade A milk was required for the production of cottage cheese sold in and around Wichita. In practice, the handlers made their cheese for sale in territories beyond the 3-mile limit in the same facilities and so required Grade A milk for that portion of their output as well as for the portion sold within the 3-mile limit.

Apparently this has continued to be the case even though it involves classification as Class II at a price 80 cents over the Class III price. Data of record show that Class II use in August 1959 (the latest data available at the time of the hearing) was 1,553,777 product pounds. This compares with 1,581,243 in August 1958 and 1,354,500 in August 1957. The latter figure reflects the production of cottage cheese by the same group of handlers prior to amendment of the order, effective June 1, 1958, to provide a separate class for cottage cheese.

In view of the continued reliance of this group of handlers upon Grade A milk for their entire output of cottage cheese, no changes should be made in the classification or pricing of milk so used. All the milk used to produce cottage cheese in facilities approved for the sale of cottage cheese in jurisdictions where it is required to be made from Grade A milk should continue to be Class II.

7. Inventory accounting. Provisions of the present Wichita order classify month-end inventories of fluid milk products (products which either usually become Class I upon disposition or are unprocessed milk, skim milk or cream) as Class III utilization subject to a further charge if allocated to a higher utilization the following month. The reclassification charge, however, is applicable to only that portion of inventory which was allocated as producer milk in Class III the month preceding. In these circumstances, some month-end inventory representing other source receipts can be used in a higher class the following month without incurring a reclassification charge.

In order to maintain uniformity of minimum prices to all handlers it is concluded that the order should be amended to equalize prices with those which apply to current receipts of producer milk or other source milk when opening inventory of other source milk is allocated to a higher class of utilization.

The reclassification charge, however, should apply only to other source inventories of fluid milk products which were not previously priced under another Federal order.

8. Provisions with respect to unpriced milk. Evidence presented at the hearing indicated the need for an objective basis to be used in determining the extent to which producer milk is available in the market. The present order requires that the market administrator determine the availability of producer milk and the conditions under which a handler should be charged for the use in Class I of other source milk not subject to the pricing provisions of another Federal order.

In view of the expanded market and the increased difficulty in determining the needs of the market, the market administrator should be relieved from making the decision with respect to the availability of producer milk.

The order should be amended to provide that no charge be made on unpriced, other source milk used in Class I in any month in which the supply of producer milk is less than 120 percent of the Class I utilization in the market.

9. Administrative provisions. Certain sections of the order should be redrafted to incorporate conforming and clarifying changes and to facilitate application of its various provisions.

The market administrator should be allowed to reduce any amount due a handler from the producer settlement fund by the amount of any unpaid balances due the market administrator from such a handler to avoid unnecessary administrative inconvenience.

The marketing service charge should be changed to provide a maximum of six cents per hundredweight. The present order provides for a maximum of four cents which is not adequate in view of the current cost of performing the sample testing and weight verification program in the expanded marketing area. Should the proposed rate exceed the actual cost of performing these services, the Secretary may provide for a lesser amount.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. Briefs and proposed findings and conclusions were filed on behalf of certain interested parties in the market. These briefs, proposed findings and conclusions and the evidence in the record were considered in making the findings and conclusions set forth above. To the extent that the suggested findings and conclusions filed by interested parties are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions set forth herein, the requests to make such findings or reach such conclusions are denied for the reasons previously stated in this decision.

General findings. The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and of the previously issued amendments thereto; and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed, except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) The tentative marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to Section 2 of the Act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(c) The tentative marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Rulings on exceptions. In arriving at the findings and conclusions, and the regulatory provisions of this decision, each of the exceptions received was carefully and fully considered in conjunction with the record evidence pertaining thereto. To the extent that the findings and conclusions, and the regulatory provisions of this decision are at variance with any of the exceptions, such exceptions are hereby overruled for the reasons previously stated in this decision.

Marketing agreement and order. Annexed hereto and made a part hereof are two documents entitled respectively, "Marketing Agreement Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Wichita, Kansas Marketing Area", and "Order Amending the Order Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Wichita, Kansas Marketing Area", which have been decided upon as the detailed and appropriate means of effectuating the foregoing conclusions.

It is hereby ordered, That all of this decision, except the attached marketing agreement, be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The regulatory provisions of said marketing agreement are identical with those contained in the order as hereby proposed to be amended by the attached order which will be published with this decision.

Determination of representative period. The month of April 1960, is hereby determined to be the representative period for the purpose of ascertaining whether the issuance of the attached order amending the order regulating the handling of milk in the Wichita, Kansas, marketing area, is approved or favored by producers, as defined under the terms of the order as hereby proposed to be amended, and who, during such representative period, were engaged in the production of milk for sale within the aforesaid marketing area.

Issued at Washington, D.C., this 17th day of June 1960.

CLARENCE L. MILLER,
Assistant Secretary.

Order [1] Amending the Order Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Wichita, Kansas, Marketing Area

§ 968.0 Findings and determinations.

The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and of the previously issued amendments thereto; and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed, except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) Findings upon the basis of the hearing record. Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held upon certain proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order regulating the handling of milk in the Wichita, Kansas, marketing area. Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at such hearing and the record thereof, it is found that:

(1) The said order as hereby amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act;

(2) The parity prices of milk, as determined pursuant to section 2 of the Act, are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the said marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the order as hereby amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(3) The said order as hereby amended, regulates the handling of milk in the same manner as, and is applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial or commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Order relative to handling. It is therefore ordered, that on and after the effective date hereof, the handling of milk in the Wichita, Kansas, marketing area shall be in conformity to and in compliance with the terms and conditions of the aforesaid order, as hereby amended, and the aforesaid order is hereby amended as follows:

§ 968.10 [Amendment]

1. Revise § 968.10(a) to read as follows:

(a) During any of the months of March, April, May, June or July within which such plant disposes of as Class I milk an amount equal to 25 percent or more of such plant's total receipts of milk from approved dairy farmers and disposes of as Class I milk on routes in the marketing area an amount equal to 10 percent or more of such plant's total receipts from approved dairy farmers;

2. Revise § 968.10(b) to read as follows:

(b) During any of the other months within which such plant disposes of as Class I milk an amount equal to 35 percent or more of such plant's total receipts of milk from approved dairy farmers and disposes of as Class I milk on routes in the marketing area an amount equal to 10 percent or more of such plant's total receipts from approved dairy farmers;

3. Renumber present § 968.10(d) to § 968.10(e).

4. Insert a new § 968.10(d) to read as follows:

(d) Which is operated by a cooperative association and 60 percent or more of the milk delivered during the current month by approved dairy farmers who are members of such association, is delivered directly or is transferred by the association to pool plants as described in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section.

§ 968.45 [Amendment]

4a. Change the period at the end of the first paragraph in § 968.45 to a colon and add the following proviso: "Provided, That if any of the water contained in the milk from which a product is made is removed before the product is utilized or disposed of by a handler, the pounds of skim milk used or disposed of in such product shall be considered to be an amount equivalent to the nonfat milk solids contained in such product, plus all of the water originally associated with such solids."

§ 968.51 [Amendment]

5. Revise § 968.51(a) to read as follows:

(a) Class I milk. The price per hundredweight shall be the basic formula price for the preceding month plus $1.65 during all months of the year, plus or minus a supply-demand adjustment computed as follows: Provided, That the Class I price so computed shall be not less than the Class I price computed for the same period pursuant to Federal Order No. 13 (Greater Kansas City) minus ten cents during each month of the period August through March and plus twenty-five cents for each of the months of April through July nor more than the Kansas City Class I price plus fifty cents during each of the months of the period August through March and plus eighty-five cents for each of the months of April through July.

6. In § 968.51(a)(2)(iii), revise the tabulation to read as follows:

Delivery period for which price applies	Delivery period used in computation	Percentages

(3) For a minus "net deviation percentage" the Class I price shall be increased and for a plus "net deviation percentage" the Class I price shall be decreased as follows:

(i) One cent times each such percentage point of net deviation; plus

[1] This order shall not become effective unless and until the requirements of § 900.14 of the rules of practice and procedure governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders have been met.

(ii) One cent times the lesser of:

(a) Each such percentage point of net deviation, or

(b) Each percentage point of net deviation of like direction (plus or minus, with any net deviation percentage of opposite direction considered to be zero for purposes of computations of this subparagraph) computed pursuant to subparagraph (2) of this paragraph for the month immediately preceding; plus

(iii) One cent times the least of:

(a) Each such percentage point of net deviation;

(b) Each percentage point of net deviation of like direction computed pursuant to subparagraph (2) of this paragraph for the month immediately preceding, or

(c) Each percentage point of net deviation of like direction computed pursuant to subparagraph (2) of this paragraph for the second preceding month.

§ 968.61 [Amendment]

8. Revise § 968.61(b) to read as follows:

(b) Any plant which would be subject to the classification and pricing provisions of another order issued pursuant to the Act unless such plant qualifies as a pool plant pursuant to the provisions of § 968.10(c) or § 968.10(d).

9. Revise § 968.70 to read as follows:

§ 968.70 Net pool obligations of handlers.

The net pool obligation for milk received during each month by each handler shall be computed as follows:

(a) Multiply the pounds of milk in each class computed pursuant to § 968.46(c) by the applicable respective class prices and add together the resulting amounts;

(b) Add an amount computed by multiplying the pounds of overage deducted from each class pursuant to § 968.46(a)(7) and the corresponding step of § 968.46(b) by the applicable respective class prices;

(c) Add any amount obtained through multiplying by the difference between the Class III price for the preceding month and the Class I price for the current month the lesser of:

(1) The hundredweight of milk subtracted from Class I pursuant to § 968.46(a)(4) and the corresponding step of § 968.46(b); or

(2) The hundredweight of producer milk classified as Class III utilization (except as shrinkage) for the preceding month;

(d) Add an amount obtained through multiplying by the difference between the Class III price for the preceding month and the Class II price for the current month the lesser of:

(1) The hundredweight of milk subtracted from Class II pursuant to § 968.46(a)(4) and the corresponding step of § 968.46(b); or

(2) The hundredweight of producer milk classified as Class III utilization (except as shrinkage) for the preceding month less the hundredweight of milk subtracted from Class I pursuant to § 968.46(a)(4) and the corresponding step of § 968.46(b).

(e) During any month in which the total receipts of producer milk are more than 120 percent of the total Class I utilization at all pool plants, add an amount equal to the difference between the values (subject to butterfat and location differentials) at the Class I price and the Class III price with respect to:

(1) Other source milk subtracted from Class I pursuant to § 968.46(a)(2) and the corresponding step of § 968.46(b).

(2) Milk in inventory subtracted from Class I pursuant to § 968.46(a)(4) and the corresponding step of § 968.46(b) which is in excess of the sum of:

(i) The quantity of milk for which a payment is computed pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section; and

(ii) The quantity of milk subtracted from Class III pursuant to § 968.46(a)(3) and the corresponding step of § 968.46(b) for the month preceding.

(f) During any month in which the total receipts of producer milk are more than 120 percent of the total Class I utilization at all pool plants, add an amount equal to the difference between the values (subject to butterfat and location differentials) at the Class II price and the Class III price with respect to:

(1) Other source milk subtracted from Class II pursuant to § 968.46(a)(2) and the corresponding step of § 968.46(b).

(2) Milk in inventory subtracted from Class II pursuant to § 968.46(a)(4) and the corresponding step of § 968.46(b) which is in excess of the sum of:

(i) The quantity of milk for which a payment is computed pursuant to paragraph (d) of this section; and

(ii) The quantity of milk subtracted from Class III pursuant to § 968.46(a)(3) and the corresponding step of § 968.46(b) for the month preceding.

§ 968.82 [Amendment]

10. In § 968.82, substitute a period for the colon and delete the proviso which reads as follows: "Provided, That the market administrator shall offset any such payment due to any handler against payments due from such handler."

§ 968.84 [Amendment]

11. Add new paragraph (c) to § 968.84 to read as follows:

(c) Any amount due a handler pursuant to this section may be reduced by the amount of any unpaid balances due the market administrator from such handlers pursuant to §§ 968.82, 968.83, 968.85, 968.86 or 968.87.

§ 968.86 [Amendment]

12. Revise § 968.86(a) to read as follows:

(a) Except as set forth in paragraph (b) of this section, each handler shall deduct 6 cents per hundredweight, or such lesser amount as the Secretary may prescribe, from the payments made to each producer other than himself pursuant to § 968.80(a) with respect to all milk of such producer received by such handler during the month and shall pay such deductions to the market administrator on or before the 12th day after the end of such month. Such moneys shall be used by the market administrator to verify weights, samples and tests of milk received from, and to provide market information to such producers. The market administrator may contract with a cooperative association or cooperative associations for the furnishing of the whole or any part of such services.

[Docket No. AO-179-A19]

MILK IN NORTHEASTERN OHIO MARKETING AREA

Decision on Proposed Amendments to Tentative Marketing Agreement and to Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held at Mansfield, Ohio, on March 29, 1960, pursuant to notice thereof issued on March 9, 1960 (25 F.R. 2106).

Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at the hearing and the record thereof, the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, on May 20, 1960 (25 F.R. 4588), filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, his recommended decision containing notice of opportunity to file written exceptions thereto.

The material issue on the record of the hearing related to the supply-demand adjustment of the Class I price.

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the material issues are based on evidence presented at the hearing and the record thereof:

1. The supply-demand adjustment of the Class I price.

The supply-sales relationship used as a basis for adjustment of the Class I price should be that of the combined receipts and sales of the North Central Ohio and Northeastern Ohio markets. The standard utilization percentages, deviations from which result in price adjustments, should be revised to reflect the changed seasonal patterns of utilization and the level of reserve supply required by present marketing practices.

The North Central Ohio Class I price is now maintained in a fixed alignment with that of Northeastern Ohio and it is concluded that such alignment should be maintained. North Central Ohio handlers make substantial route sales in the Northeastern Ohio marketing area.

While Northeastern Ohio handlers do not have any substantial amount of route sales in the North Central Ohio marketing area, they do supply supplemental milk in many months. The North Central Ohio procurement area lies entirely within the procurement area of the Northeastern Ohio market and producers can readily shift from one area to the other. Presently supplies of milk associated with the Northeastern Ohio pool and sales by handlers regulated under the Northeastern Ohio order determine the supply-demand adjustment of the Class I price for both orders. Intermarket competition for supplies or sales may readily affect the Class I price in both markets without any change in the overall supply or sales volumes merely by transfer of supply or sales from one market to the other. A number of handlers operating multiple plants have plants regulated under each order. The decision of such a handler to transfer sales from one of his plants to another can affect the Class I price in both markets. Since the competition is such as to require fixed alignment of Class I prices, it is appropriate that the ratio of total producer receipts to gross Class I sales should be the basis for adjustment of Class I prices to supply-demand conditions in both orders.

The inclusion of the receipts and sales of the North Central Ohio area in the computation of the supply-demand adjustment for the Northeastern Ohio order requires an adjustment in the annual level and the seasonal pattern of the standard utilization percentages. The addition of the North Central Ohio receipts and sales in the computation of the Northeastern Ohio supply-demand adjustor would have decreased the annual level of the ratio of supply to sales from 139 to 136 in both 1958 and 1959 which would have increased the Class I price in both markets. Milk supplies in the area have increased faster than Class I sales. The Northeastern Ohio supplies were 132 percent of sales in 1957, 139.2 in 1958 and 139.7 in 1959. The supplies of milk have also been ample for the North Central Ohio area. Under these circumstances an increase in the annual average of the Class I price is not appropriate under the standards of the Act. Therefore, the annual average of the standard utilization percentages should be reduced from 132 to 129. This reduction of the annual average will approximately reflect the change in the utilization percentages caused by the addition of the North Central Ohio receipts and sales. The seasonal pattern also has been slightly modified to reflect the pattern of utilization of the combined markets. The following table shows the present and revised standard utilization percentages:

	Present standard	Revised standard
January	128	125
February	126	125
March	128	126
April	129	127
May	130	128
June	140	137
July	148	145
August	141	138
September	127	124
October	126	122
November	128	124
December	130	126

It was proposed that the North Central Ohio Class I price be further adjusted by the average adjustment of the supply-demand adjustment of the Columbus, Ohio, and Dayton-Springfield, Ohio, markets or that the North Central Ohio order provide for an independent supply-demand adjustor. These proposals would disrupt the fixed alignment of the Class I prices between the Northeastern Ohio and North Central Ohio markets which is essential in maintaining orderly marketing conditions. Therefore, any adjustment to the North Central Ohio Class I price which would not maintain the fixed alignment between the markets is denied.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. Briefs and proposed findings and conclusions were filed on behalf of certain interested parties in the market. These briefs, proposed findings and conclusions, and the evidence in the record were considered in making the findings and conclusions set forth above. To the extent that the suggested findings and conclusions filed by interested parties are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions set forth herein, the requests to make such findings or to reach such conclusions are denied for the reasons previously stated in this decision.

General findings. The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and of the previously issued amendments thereto; and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed, except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) The tentative marketing agreement and the order as hereby proposed to be amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act.

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the Act, are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order as hereby proposed to be amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(c) The tentative marketing agreement and the order as hereby proposed to be amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commerical activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Rulings on exceptions. In arriving at the findings and conclusions, and the regulatory provisions of this decision, each of the exceptions received was carefully and fully considered in conjunction with the record evidence pertaining thereto. To the extent that the findings and conclusions, and the regulatory provisions of this decision are at variance with any of the exceptions, such exceptions are hereby overruled for the reasons previously stated in this decision.

Annexed hereto and made a part hereof are two documents entitled, respectively, "Marketing Agreement Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Northeastern Ohio Marketing Area" and "Order Amending the Order Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Northeastern Ohio Marketing Area," which have been decided upon as the detailed and appropriate means of effectuating the foregoing conclusions.

It is hereby ordered, That all of this decision, except the attached marketing agreement, be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The regulatory provisions of said marketing agreement are identical with those contained in the order as hereby proposed to be further amended by the attached order which will be published with this decision.

Determination of representative period. The month of April 1960 is hereby determined to be the representative period for the purpose of ascertaining whether the issuance of the attached order amending the order, regulating the handling of milk in the Northeastern Ohio, marketing area, is approved or favored by producers, as defined under the terms of the order as hereby proposed to be amended, and who, during such representative period, were engaged in the production of milk for sale within the aforesaid marketing area.

Issued at Washington, D.C., this 20th day of June 1960.

CLARENCE L. MILLER,
Assistant Secretary.

Order[1] Amending the Order Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Northeastern Ohio Marketing Area

§ 975.0 Findings and determinations.

The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and of the previously issued amendments thereto; and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed, except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) Findings upon the basis of the hearing record. Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held upon certain proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order regulating the handling of milk in the Northeastern Ohio, marketing area. Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at such hearing and the record thereof, it is found that:

(1) The said order as hereby amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act;

(2) The parity prices of milk, as determined pursuant to section 2 of the Act, are not reasonable in view of the

(3) The said order as hereby amended, regulates the handling of milk in the same manner as, and is applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial or commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Order relative to handling. It is therefore ordered, that on and after the effective date hereof the handling of milk in the Northeastern Ohio, marketing area shall be in conformity to and in compliance with the terms and conditions of the order, as hereby amended:

1. Delete § 975.51(a) (1) and (2) and substitute therefor the following:

(1) Divide the total quantity of milk received from producers defined in § 975.10 and in § 995.12 of the order regulating the handling of milk in the North Central Ohio marketing area during the first and second months preceding by the gross quantity of milk utilized as Class I (adjusted for intermarket and interhandler transfers) at pool plants defined in § 975.8 and in § 995.9 of the order regulating the handling of milk in the North Central Ohio marketing area, in the same two months, multiply the result by 100, and round to the nearest whole number. The result shall be known as the "current utilization percentage."

[Docket No. AO-301-A1]

MILK IN WESTERN COLORADO MARKETING AREA

Notice of Recommended Decision and Opportunity To File Written Exceptions to Proposed Amendments to Tentative Marketing Agreement and to Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of the filing with the Hearing Clerk of this recommended decision of the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, with respect to proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement, and order regulating the handling of milk in the Western Colorado marketing area. Interested parties may file written exceptions to this decision with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., not later than the close of business the 3d day after publication of this decision in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The exceptions should be filed in quadruplicate.

Preliminary statement. The hearing on the record of which the proposed amendments, as hereinafter set forth, to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, were formulated, was conducted at Grand Junction, Colorado, on May 16, 1960, pursuant to notice thereof which was issued April 15, 1960 (25 F.R. 3422).

The material issues on the record of the hearing relate to:

1. Class I price.

2. The classification and pricing of other milk.

On the basis of the record of this hearing a provision under which all class prices would have expired May 31, 1960, has been suspended, effective June 1, 1960, pending completion of amendment action on the record.

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the material issues are based on evidence presented at the hearing and the record thereof:

1. The method of determining the Class I price should be continued unchanged at this time.

The Western Colorado Class I price is determined by adding $2.05 each month to the basic formula price for the preceding month. The order provided that this price be effective for the first 18 months of order operation (December 1958 through May 1960) in order to afford a review of the pricing provisions after the order had been in operation a full year.

Producers proposed that these Class I pricing provisions be continued. A handler witness supported their continuation and no testimony was offered in opposition to their continuation.

For an early three months of operation of the order, January, February and March 1959, from 86.5 to 91.7 percent of producer milk was used as Class I milk, the weighted three-month average being 89.2 percent. For the same months of 1960 Class I utilization ranged from 88.6 to 90.2 percent, with a weighted average of 89.3 percent. The ratio of milk supplies to fluid sales has thus maintained a very stable relationship.

Since promulgation of the Western Colorado order, Federal milk marketing orders have been issued for the Great Basin (Salt Lake City) and Colorado Springs-Pueblo areas. Substantially larger volumes of milk are priced under these orders than under the Western Colorado order. The 1959 average Class I price of the Western Colorado order was $5.077, as compared to the $5.25 initial Class I price of the Great Basin order. The Colorado Springs-Pueblo order adds a $2.20 Class I differential to a basic formula price identical with that in the Western Colorado order, so that the Class I price under that order exceeds the Western Colorado price by 15 cents per hundredweight. These orders have not been in effect sufficient time to evaluate their effect on the Western Colorado market.

The question of providing a new expiration date was raised at the hearing, but such action does not appear necessary. Should a significant change occur in the relationship of milk supplies to Class I sales in this market it is evident that there will be opportunity to reconsider pricing provisions at a future hearing. It is therefore concluded that the Class I pricing provisions may be continued without a fixed expiration date.

2. Class II milk should include all of the skim milk and butterfat heretofore defined as Class II milk and Class III milk. The Class II price should be the basic formula price for the current month.

Class II milk now includes all skim milk and butterfat used to produce ice cream, frozen desserts, ice cream mix, frozen dessert mix, yogurt, eggnog, aerated cream, skim condensed milk, whole condensed milk and cottage cheese. Class III is skim milk and butterfat: (1) Used to produce any product other than a fluid milk product or products designated as Class II; (2) in inventory of fluid milk products on hand at the end of the month; (3) accounted for as livestock feeds; (4) in skim milk dumped after prior notification to and opportunity for verification by the market administrator; (5) in shrinkage not to exceed 2 percent of skim milk and butterfat received directly from producers; and (6) in shrinkage of other source milk.

The Class II price under the order is now the basic formula price plus 20 cents. The basic formula price is the higher of (1) the midwest condensery pay price for milk received from dairy farmers during the month, or (2) a butter-powder formula price. The Class III price is the butter-powder formula price minus 13 cents.

The Western Colorado Milk Producers Association proposed that Class II milk and Class III milk be combined into one use class to be designated as Class II and priced at the basic formula level. In support of this proposal producer and handler witnesses stated that it would encourage the use of more Grade A milk by local plants in the manufacturing of ice cream and cottage cheese.

There has been a very substantial reduction during the past year in the amount of milk utilized by pool plants in the manufacture of ice cream. Milk not utilized in fluid milk products, ice cream or cottage cheese must be transported substantial distances to be manufactured into those products now designated as Class III.

In the marketing area there are three nonpool plants making ice cream, two of which also make cottage cheese. The only manufacture of Class III products in the marketing area is butter. However, butter plants buy only cream. Consequently, there is no market for Class III milk as such in the marketing area. In view of the limited outlets for excess milk in this market it is important that handlers accept and utilize the maximum quantities of producer milk for cottage cheese and ice cream.

Health authorities in the marketing area do not require that milk utilized in other than Class I products be obtained from approved Grade A sources. Milk from any source may be used in the various dispositions heretofore contained in Class II or Class III. Grade A milk not needed for fluid disposition in the Western Colorado market must compete for sales with milk from ungraded sources. Lowering the price to the level herein provided will price producer milk at a competitive level for use in these products. It is concluded, therefore, that the price of milk in all such dispositions should be fixed at the same level and be classified as Class II at the basic formula price. Such pricing of milk for manufacturing uses approximates that in the nearby Federal order markets of Great Basin and Colorado Springs-Pueblo.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. Briefs and proposed findings and conclusions were filed on behalf of certain interested parties in the market. These briefs, proposed findings and conclusions and the evidence in the record were considered in making the findings and conclusions set forth above. To the extent that the suggested findings and conclusions filed by interested parties are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions set forth herein, the requests to make such findings or reach such conclusions are denied for the reasons previously stated in this decision.

General findings. The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed, except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) The tentative marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the Act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(c) The tentative marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Recommended marketing agreement and order amending the order. The following order amending the order regulating the handling of milk in the Western Colorado marketing area is recommended as the detailed and appropriate means by which the foregoing conclusions may be carried out. The recommended marketing agreement is not included in this decision because the regulatory provisions thereof would be the same as those contained in the order, as hereby proposed to be amended:

§ 980.22 [Amendment]

1. Amend § 980.22(1)(2) to read as follows:

(2) On or before the 6th day of each month the minimum price for Class II milk computed pursuant to § 980.51(b) and the Class II butterfat differential computed pursuant to § 980.52(b) each for the previous month; and

2. Amend § 980.41 to read as follows:

§ 980.41 Classes of utilization.

Subject to the conditions set forth in §§ 980.43 and 980.44, the classes of utilization shall be as follows:

(a) Class I milk. Class I milk shall be all skim milk and butterfat (1) disposed of in the form of fluid milk products except those classified pursuant to paragraph (b)(3) and (4) of this section, or (2) not specifically accounted for as Class II utilization.

(b) Class II milk. Class II milk shall be all the skim milk and butterfat: (1) used to produce any product other than a fluid milk product, (2) in inventory of fluid milk products on hand at the end of the month, (3) accounted for as livestock feed, (4) in skim milk dumped after prior notification to and opportunity for verification by the market administrator, (5) in shrinkage not to exceed 2 percent of skim milk and butterfat received directly from producers, and (6) in shrinkage of other source milk.

3. Amend § 980.43 to read as follows:

§ 980.43 Responsibility of handlers and reclassification of milk.

(a) All skim milk and butterfat shall be Class I unless the handler who first receives such skim milk or butterfat can prove to the market administrator that such skim milk or butterfat should be classified as Class II milk.

(b) Any skim milk or butterfat shall be reclassified if verification by the market administrator discloses that the original classification was incorrect.

4. Amend § 980.44(a) to read as follows:

§ 980.44 Transfers.

Skim milk and butterfat disposed of each month from a fluid milk plant shall be classified:

(a) As Class I milk, if transferred in the form of a fluid milk product to a fluid milk plant of another handler, except a producer-handler, unless utilization in another class is claimed by both handlers in their reports submitted for the month to the market administrator pursuant to § 980.30 subject in either event to the following conditions:

(1) The receiving plant has utilized in such class an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat, respectively; and

(2) Such skim milk and butterfat shall be classified so as to allocate to producer milk the greatest possible total Class I utilization in the two plants;

5. Amend § 980.44(d) (1) and (3) to read as follows:

(1) The transferring-handler claims Class II utilization in a product specified in § 980.41(b);

(3) Not less than an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat was actually used as Class II in such transferor's plant;

6. Amend § 980.45 to read as follows:

§ 980.45 Computation of the skim milk and butterfat in each class.

For each month, the market administrator shall correct for mathematical and for other obvious errors the reports of receipts and utilization for the fluid milk plant(s) of each handler and shall compute the pounds of butterfat and skim milk in Class I milk, and Class II milk for such handler: Provided, That if any of the water contained in the milk from which a product is made is removed before the product is utilized or disposed of by a handler, the pounds of skim milk disposed of in such product shall be considered to be an amount equivalent to the nonfat dry milk solids contained in such product, plus all of the water originally associated with such solids.

7. Amend §980.46 to read as follows:

§ 980.46 Allocation of skim milk and butterfat classified.

After making the computations pursuant to § 980.45 the market administrator shall determine the classification of milk received from producers of fluid milk plant(s) of each handler as follows:

(a) Skim milk shall be allocated in the following manner:

(1) Subtract from the total pounds of skim milk in Class II the pounds of skim milk allocated to shrinkage in skim milk received from producers pursuant to § 980.41(b)(5);

(2) Subtract from the pounds of skim milk remaining in each class, in series beginning with Class II, the pounds of skim milk in other source milk other than that subtracted pursuant to subparagraph (3) of this paragraph;

(3) Subtract from the pounds of skim milk remaining in each class, in series beginning with Class II, the pounds of skim milk in other source milk received from a plant at which the handling of milk is fully subject to the pricing and payment provisions of another marketing agreement and order issued pursuant to the Act;

(4) Subtract from the pounds of skim milk remaining in each class, the pounds of skim milk received from other fluid milk plants according to its classification as determined pursuant to § 980.44(a);

(5) Subtract from the pounds of skim milk remaining in each class, in series beginning with Class II, the pounds of skim milk contained in inventory of fluid milk products on hand at the beginning of the month;

(6) Add to the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class II the pounds of skim milk subtracted pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph; and

(7) Subtract from the pounds of skim milk remaining in each class any amount by which the pounds of skim milk remaining in both classes exceed the pounds of skim milk in milk received from producers in series beginning with Class II. Such excess shall be called "overage".

MILK IN NORTH CENTRAL OHIO MARKETING AREA

Decision on Proposed Amendments to Tentative Marketing Agreement and to Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held at Mansfield, Ohio, on March 29, 1960, pursuant to notice thereof issued on March 9, 1960 (25 F.R. 2106).

Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at the hearing and the record thereof, the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, on May 20, 1960 (25 F.R. 4588), filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, his recommended decision containing notice of opportunity to file written exceptions thereto.

The material issues on the record of the hearing related to:

1. The supply-demand adjustment of the Class I price;
2. The Class II milk price and the need for emergency action with respect thereto;
3. The rules for regulation of plants doing business in other marketing areas;
4. The quota forming months;
5. Expansion of the marketing area; and
6. The shrinkage allowance on bulk tank deliveries.

Issue number 2 was decided by the Assistant Secretary in his decision of April 12, 1960 (25 F.R. 3337), and this decision is restricted to the remaining issues.

Finding and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the material issues are based on evidence presented at the hearing and the record thereof:

1. The supply-demand adjustment of the Class I price. The supply-sales relationship used as a basis for adjustment of the Class I price should be that of the combined receipts and sales of the North Central Ohio and Northeastern Ohio markets.

The North Central Ohio Class I price is now maintained in a fixed alignment with that of Northeastern Ohio and it is concluded that such alignment should be maintained. North Central Ohio handlers make substantial route sales in the Northeastern Ohio marketing area. While Northeastern Ohio handlers do not have any substantial amount of route sales in the North Central Ohio marketing area, they do supply the North Central Ohio handlers with supplemental milk in many months. The North Central Ohio procurement area lies entirely within the procurement area of the Northeastern Ohio market and producers can readily shift from one area to the other. Presently supplies of milk associated with the Northeastern Ohio pool and sales by handlers regulated under the Northeastern Ohio order determine the supply-demand adjustment of the Class I price for both orders. Intermarket competition for supplies or sales may readily affect the Class I price in both markets without any change in the overall supply or sales volumes merely by transfer of supply or sales from one market to the other. A number of handlers operating multiple plants have plants regulated under each order. The decision of such a handler to transfer sales from one of his plants to another can affect the Class I price in both markets. Since the competition is such as to require fixed alignment of Class I prices, it is appropriate that the ratio of total producer receipts to gross Class I sales should be the basis for adjustment of Class I prices to supply-demand conditions in both orders.

It was proposed that the North Central Ohio Class I price be further adjusted by the average adjustment of the supply-demand adjustment of the Columbus, Ohio, and Dayton-Springfield, Ohio, markets or that the North Central Ohio order provide for an independent supply-demand adjustor. These proposals would disrupt the fixed alignment of the Class I prices between the Northeastern Ohio and North Central Ohio markets which is essential in maintaining orderly marketing conditions. Therefore, any adjustment to the North Central Ohio Class I price which would not maintain the fixed alignment between the markets is denied.

3. Regulation of plants doing business in other marketing areas. Provision should be included that the Secretary, by a determination, may retain under regulation of the North Central Ohio order a plant disposing of a greater volume of fluid milk products in the marketing area of another order than in the North Central Ohio area.

The order presently requires that any plant which would be subject to regulation under another order be exempt (except for reporting) from the North Central Ohio order unless such plant has disposed of more fluid milk products in the North Central Ohio area than in the area of the other order in the current month and each of the three preceding months.

The North Central Ohio marketing area is comprised of five political subdivisions which are geographically separated. The marketing area includes only territory in which Grade A milk ordinances are in effect. As a consequence there is considerable intervening territory not included in the marketing area, but in which certain regulated handlers do a substantial proportion of their business.

One plant now regulated under the North Central Ohio order has substantial disposition of fluid milk products in the Northeastern Ohio marketing area. Prior to January 1959 this plant was regulated under Order 75 (then applicable to the Cleveland, Ohio, marketing area) as a supply plant. It was proposed that this plant be permitted to credit to its sales in the North Central Ohio area substantial dock sales to vendors who operate routes in the adjacent area not included in the marketing area so that its identity with the North Central Ohio area might be maintained.

A simple method of handling the matter is to provide that regulation of plants doing business in other marketing areas be as presently provided unless the Secretary determines that the applicable order should more appropriately be determined on some other basis. A provision to this effect is included in the Northeastern Ohio order. It provides greater opportunity for review of the circumstances in individual cases than would otherwise be provided. It is concluded that such a provision should be included in this order.

4. The quota forming months should be advanced one month to September through November.

Handlers proposed that the quota forming months should be August or September through November rather than October through December.

A review of the order data shows that in 1957 September was the second shortest month of production in relation to Class I sales (November was 95.1 percent and September was 94.1 percent). In 1958 and 1959 September has been the shortest in relationship to sales. The general upward trend in production during this period makes the shortest months appear somewhat earlier than seasonal influences alone would account for. However, it is plain that producers have responded to the incentive of the quota plan and that at least one month earlier quota forming period should be adopted in order to encourage larger production in September and less in December. August should not be included as a quota forming month because the relationship of producer receipts to Class I sales during this month have been adequate.

The importance of advance planning by producers in conforming to the seasonal incentives provided by the quota plan should be recognized. Accordingly, the use of September through November as quota forming months should be delayed until September 1, 1961.

5. Expansion of the marketing area. The marketing area should be expanded to include the Marion Correctional Institution at Marion, Ohio.

The present marketing area is defined to include all the territory in the counties of Allen and Richland and the cities of Findlay, Marion and Tiffin. It was proposed that the Marion Correctional Institute, located just outside the city limits of Marion, Ohio, be included in the marketing area.

This institution is under the direction of the Department of Mental Hygiene and Correction of the State of Ohio which requires that the fluid milk products that it purchases must be from Grade A sources. The present marketing area is covered by health regulations patterned after the U.S. Public Health Services Code for Grade A milk. The health requirements that cover the Marion Correctional Institute are the same as those that now apply throughout the marketing area.

The Marion Correctional Institute presently purchases its supply of milk on contracts awarded for a period of three months. In the past year North Central Ohio handlers have held the contract for six months. The other six months the contract was awarded to handlers regulated under the Columbus, Ohio, order. Prior to the past year North Central Ohio handlers served the institution in nearly all months.

In view of the health requirements of the Marion Correctional Institute, its location adjacent to a city of the marketing area, and the past history of sales by regulated handlers it is concluded that the North Central Ohio marketing area should be expanded to include the Marion Correctional Institute. Such action will prevent loss of sales historically associated with the market to handlers not subject to regulation of any order.

6. The shrinkage allowance on bulk tank deliveries. There should be no increase in the present shrinkage allowance for plants having all their milk supplies delivered in bulk tank trucks.

It was proposed that plants having their entire receipts of producer milk delivered by bulk tank trucks should have a shrinkage allowance of three percent. The present order provides for a two percent shrinkage allowance to all plants.

Handlers proposed the increase in the shrinkage allowance because there is sometimes a difference between the stick measurement at the farm and the actual weight of the milk taken in at the plant. However, the regulated plants under the North Central Ohio order receiving all their milk in bulk have not experienced more shrinkage on the average than plants receiving their milk in cans or in a combination of cans and bulk. In 1959 plants receiving their milk supplies in bulk experienced an average shrinkage of 1.42 percent of skim milk and 2.36 percent of butterfat; plants receiving their entire supply in cans had a shrinkage of 1.25 percent of skim milk and 2.41 percent of butterfat, and plants receiving both can and bulk milk experienced shrinkage of 1.41 percent of skim milk and 1.25 percent of butterfat. The market showed an average of a 1.37 percent loss on skim milk and 2.09 percent loss on butterfat during 1959. Past market experience has shown that the two percent allowance now provided in the order is appropriate. Therefore, it is concluded that the proposed increase in the shrinkage allowance should be denied.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. Briefs and proposed findings and conclusions were filed on behalf of certain interested parties in the market. These briefs, proposed findings and conclusions, and the evidence in the record were considered in making the findings and conclusions set forth above. To the extent that the suggested findings and conclusions filed by interested parties are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions set forth herein, the requests to make such findings or to reach such conclusions are denied for the reasons previously stated in this decision.

General findings. The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and of the previously issued amendments thereto; and all of the said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed, except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) The tentative marketing agreement and the order as hereby proposed to be amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the Act, are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order as hereby proposed to be amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome mil.., and be in the public interest; and

(c) The tentative marketing agreement and the order as hereby proposed to be amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Rulings on exceptions. In arriving at the findings and conclusions, and the regulatory provisions of this decision, each of the exceptions received was carefully and fully considered in conjunction with the record evidence pertaining thereto. To the extent that the findings and conclusions, and the regulatory provisions of this decision are at variance with any of the exceptions, such exceptions are hereby overruled for the reasons previously stated in this decision.

Annexed hereto and made a part hereof are two documents entitled, respectively, "Marketing Agreement Regulating the Handling of Milk in the North Central Ohio Marketing Area", and "Order Amending the Order Regulating the Handling of Milk in the North Central Ohio Marketing Area", which have been decided upon as the detailed and appropriate means of effectuating the foregoing conclusions.

It is hereby ordered, That all of this decision, except the attached marketing agreement, be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The regulatory provisions of said marketing agreement are identical with those contained in the order as hereby proposed to be further amended by the attached order which will be published with this decision.

Determination of representative period. The month of April 1960 is hereby determined to be the representative period for the purpose of ascertaining whether the issuance of the attached order amending the order, regulating the handling of milk in the North Central Ohio marketing area, is approved or favored by producers, as defined under the terms of the order as hereby proposed to be amended, and who, during such representative period, were engaged in the production of milk for sale within the aforesaid marketing area.

Issued at Washington, D.C., this 20th day of June 1960.

CLARENCE L. MILLER,
Assistant Secretary.

Order[1] Amending the Order Regulating the Handling of Milk in the North Central Ohio Marketing Area

(a) Findings upon the basis of the hearing record. Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held upon certain proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order regulating the handling of milk in the North Central Ohio marketing area. Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at such hearing and the record thereof, it is found that:

(1) The said order as hereby amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act;

(2) The parity prices of milk, as determined pursuant to section 2 of the Act, are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the said marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the order as hereby amended are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest;

(3) The said order as hereby amended, regulates the handling of milk in the same manner as, and is applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial or commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held;

(4) All milk and milk products handled by handlers, as defined in the order as hereby amended, are in the current of interstate commerce or directly burden, obstruct, or affect interstate commerce in milk or its products; and

(5) It is hereby found that the necessary expense of the market administrator for the maintenance and functioning of such agency will require the payment by each handler, as his pro rata share of such expense, 3 cents per hundredweight or such amount not to exceed 3 cents per hundredweight as the Secretary may prescribe, with respect to (a) producer milk (including milk of handlers own production), (b) other source milk allocated to Class I, and (c) Class I milk disposed of in the marketing area by a distributing plant not a pool plant.

Order relative to handling. It is therefore ordered, that on and after the effective date hereof the handling of milk in the North Central Ohio marketing area shall be in conformity to and in compliance with the terms and conditions of the order, as hereby amended:

3. Delete § 995.80 and substitute therefor the following:

§ 995.80 Plants subject to other Federal orders.

The provisions of this part except §§ 995.30, 995.31, 995.32, and 995.33 shall not apply to a distributing plant or a supply plant during any month in which the milk at such plant would be subject to the classification and pricing provisions of another order issued pursuant to the Act, unless such plant qualified as a pool plant pursuant to § 995.9 and a greater volume of fluid milk products is disposed of from such plant to retail or wholesale outlets and to pool plants in the North Central Ohio marketing area than in the marketing area regulated pursuant to such other order during the current month and each of the three months immediately preceding, unless the Secretary determines that the applicable order should more appropriately be determined on some other basis.

[F.R. Doc. 60-5760; Filed, June 22, 1960; 8:48 a.m.]

[1] This order shall not become effective unless and until the requirements of § 900.14 of the rules of practice and procedure governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders have been met.

(b) The quantities of skim milk and butterfat contained in or represented by fluid milk products received from pool plants;

(c) The quantities of skim milk and butterfat contained in other source milk;

(d) The quantities of skim milk and butterfat contained in producer milk diverted to nonpool plants pursuant to § 1035.16;

(e) Inventories of fluid milk products on hand at the beginning and end of the month; and

(f) The utilization of all skim milk and butterfat required to be reported pursuant to this section, including a separate statement of the disposition of Class I milk outside the marketing area.

§ 1035.31 Other reports.

(a) Each producer-handler shall make reports to the market administrator at such time and in such manner as the market administrator may prescribe.

(b) Each handler, except a producer-handler, shall report to the market administrator in detail and on forms prescribed by the market administrator:

(1) On or before the 20th day after the end of the month for each of his pool plants his producer payroll for such month which shall show for each producer; (i) His name and address, (ii) the total pounds of milk received from such producer, (iii) the number of days, if less than the entire month, for which milk was received from such producer, (iv) the average butterfat content of such milk and (v) the net amount of such handler's payment, together with the price paid and the amount and nature of any deductions.

(2) On or before the first day other source milk is received in the form of any fluid milk product at his pool plant, his intention to receive such product, and on or before the last day such product is received, his intention to discontinue receipt of such product;

(3) Prior to his diversion of producer milk to a nonpool plant, his intention to divert such milk, the proposed date or dates of such diversion and the plant to which such milk is to be diverted; and

(4) Such other information with respect to his utilization of butterfat and skim milk as the market administrator may prescribe.

§ 1035.32 Records and facilities.

Each handler shall maintain and make available to the market administrator or to his representative during the usual hours of business such accounts and records of his operations, together with such facilities as are necessary for the market administrator to verify or establish the correct data with respect to:

§ 1035.33 Retention of records.

All books and records required under this order to be made available to the market administrator shall be retained by the handler for a period of 3 years to begin at the end of the month to which such books and records pertain: Provided, That if, within such 3-year period, the market administrator notifies the handler in writing that the retention of such books and records is necessary in connection with a proceeding under section 8c(15)(A) of the Act or a court action specified in such notice, the handler shall retain such books and records, or specified books and records until further written notification from the market administrator. In either case, the market administrator shall give further written notification to the handler promptly upon the termination of the litigation or when the records are no longer necessary in connection therewith.

CLASSIFICATION

§ 1035.40 Skim milk and butterfat to be classified.

The skim milk and butterfat which are required to be reported pursuant to § 1035.30 shall be classified each month by the market administrator, pursuant to the provisions of §§ 1035.41 through 1035.46.

§ 1035.41 Classes of utilization.

Subject to the conditions set forth in § 1035.44 the classes of utilization shall be as follows:

(a) Class I milk. Class I milk shall be all skim milk (including reconstituted skim milk) and butterfat (1) disposed of in the form of fluid milk products and (2) not accounted for as Class II or Class III milk.

(b) Class II milk. Class II milk shall be all skim milk (including the skim milk equivalent of concentrated products) and butterfat used to produce cottage cheese, ice cream and ice cream mix.

(c) Class III milk. Class III milk shall be (1) skim milk and butterfat used to produce any product other than those products designated as Class I or Class II pursuant to paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section; (2) skim milk and butterfat contained in inventory of fluid milk products on hand at the end of the month, and (3) skim milk and butterfat in shrinkage allocated to receipts of approved milk and other source milk (except milk diverted to a nonpool plant pursuant to § 1035.16) but not in excess of 2 percent of such receipts of skim milk and butterfat, respectively.

§ 1035.42 Shrinkage.

The market administrator shall allocate shrinkage over a handler's receipts as follows:

(a) Compute the total shrinkage of skim milk and butterfat at each approved plant; and,

(b) Prorate the resulting amounts between the receipts of skim milk and butterfat in approved milk and other source milk.

§ 1035.43 Responsibility of handlers and reclassification of milk.

All skim milk and butterfat shall be Class I milk unless the handler who first receives such skim milk or butterfat can prove to the market administrator that such skim milk or butterfat should be classified otherwise.

§ 1035.44 Transfers.

Skim milk or butterfat disposed of from a pool plant shall be classified:

(a) As Class I milk, if transferred in the form of fluid milk product to a pool plant of another handler, except a producer-handler, unless lower classification is claimed by both handlers in the reports submitted by them to the market administrator pursuant to § 1035.30: Provided, That the receiving handler has utilization in such class of an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat respectively: And provided further, That if either or both handlers have received other source milk, the skim milk or butterfat so transferred shall be classified at both plants so as to allocate the greatest possible Class I milk utilization to the producer milk of both handlers.

(b) As Class I milk, if transferred to a producer-handler in the form of a fluid milk product;

(c) As Class I milk, if transferred or diverted in the form of a fluid milk product to a nonpool plant more than 150 miles by the shortest highway distance as determined by the market administrator from the nearest point in the marketing area;

(d) As Class I milk, if transferred or diverted in the form of a fluid milk product in bulk to a nonpool plant located not more than 150 miles by the shortest highway distance as determined by the market administrator from the nearest point in the marketing area unless:

(1) The transferring or diverting handler claims a lower classification in his report submitted to the market administrator pursuant to § 1035.30 for the month within which such transaction occurred;

(2) The operator of such nonpool plant maintains books and records showing the utilization of all skim milk and butterfat at his plant which are made available, if requested by the market administrator for the purpose of verification; and

(3) The skim milk and butterfat in the fluid milk products (except in ungraded cream disposed of for manufacturing uses) disposed of from such nonpool plant do not exceed the receipts of skim milk and butterfat in milk received during the month from dairy farmers who the market administrator determines constitute the regular source of supply from such plant: Provided, That any skim milk or butterfat in fluid milk products (except in ungraded cream disposed of for manufacturing uses) disposed of from the nonpool plant which is in excess of receipts from such dairy farmers shall be assigned to the fluid milk products so transferred or diverted and classifies as Class I milk: And provided further, That if the total skim milk and butterfat in fluid milk products which were transferred by all handlers to such nonpool plant from plants subject to the classification and pricing provisions of this order and other orders issued pursuant to the Act, during the month is more than the skim milk and butterfat available for assignment to Class I milk pursuant to the preceding proviso hereof, assigned to Class I milk at an approved plant shall be not less than that obtained by prorating the assignable Class I milk at the transferee plant over the receipts at such plant from all plants subject to the classification and pricing provisions of this and other orders issued pursuant to this Act.

§ 1035.45 Computation of the skim milk and butterfat in each class.

For each month, the market administrator shall correct for mathematical and for other obvious errors the reports of receipts and utilization for each pool plant and shall compute the pounds of butterfat and skim milk in each class at such plant: Provided, That if any of the water contained in the milk from which a product is made is removed before the product is utilized or disposed of by a handler, the pounds of skim milk disposed of in such product shall be considered to be an amount equivalent to the nonfat milk solids contained in such product, plus all of the water originally associated with such solids in the form of whole milk.

§ 1035.46 Allocation of skim milk and butterfat classified.

After making the computations pursuant to § 1035.45, the market administrator shall determine the classification of producer milk at the pool plants of each handler each month as follows:

(a) Skim milk shall be allocated in the following manner:

(1) Subtract from the total pounds of skim milk in Class III milk the pounds of skim milk assigned to producer milk pursuant to § 1035.41(c)(2);

(2) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in each class, in series beginning with the lowest priced utilization, the pounds of skim milk in other source milk received in the form of fluid milk products which were not subject to the Class I pricing provisions of an order issued pursuant to the Act;

(3) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in each class, in series beginning with the lowest priced utilization, the pounds of skim milk in other source milk other than that received in the form of fluid milk products;

(4) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class III milk an amount equal to such remainder, or the product obtained by multiplying the pounds of skim milk in producer milk by 0.05, whichever is less;

(5) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in each class, in series beginning with Class III milk, the pounds of skim milk in other source milk received in the form of fluid milk products which are subject to the Class I pricing provisions of another order issued pursuant to the Act;

(6) Add to the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class III milk the pounds of skim milk subtracted pursuant to subparagraph (4) of this paragraph;

(7) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in each class the skim milk in fluid milk products received from the pool plants of other handlers according to the classification of such products as determined pursuant to § 1035.44(a);

(8) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in each class, in series beginning with Class III milk, the pounds of skim milk contained in inventory of fluid milk products on hand at the beginning of the month;

(9) Add to the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class III milk the pounds of skim milk subtracted pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph and if the remaining pounds of skim milk in both classes exceed the pounds of skim milk contained in producer milk, subtract such excess from the remaining pounds of skim milk in series beginning with Class III. Any amount of excess so subtracted shall be called "overage".

(b) Butterfat shall be allocated in accordance with the same procedure prescribed for skim milk in paragraph (a) of this section.

(c) Determine the weighted average butterfat content of producer milk remaining in each class computed pursuant to paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section.

MINIMUM PRICES

§ 1035.50 Basic formula price.

The higher of the prices computed pursuant to paragraphs (a) or (b) of this section, rounded to the nearest whole cent, shall be known as the basic formula price.

(a) The average of the basic or field prices per hundredweight reported to have been paid or to be paid for milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content received from farmers during the month at the following plants or places for which prices have been reported to the market administrator or the Department:

(b) Class II milk price. The Class II milk price shall be the Class III price for the month, plus 40 cents.

(c) Class III milk. The Class III price shall be determined by the market administrator as follows:

(2) Multiply by 8.2 the weighted average of carlot prices for nonfat dry milk solids for human consumption, spray process, f.o.b. manufacturing plants in the Chicago area as published for the period from the 26th day of the immediately preceding month through the 25th day of the current month;

(3) Add into one sum the amounts obtained in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph; and

(4) Subtract 75.2 cents therefrom.

§ 1035.52 Butterfat differentials to handlers.

For milk containing more or less than 3.5 percent butterfat, the class prices for the month calculated pursuant to § 1035.51 shall be increased or decreased, respectively, for each one-tenth percent butterfat at the appropriate rate, rounded to the nearest one-tenth cent, determined as follows:

(a) Class I milk. Multiply the Chicago butter price for the current month by 0.120.

(b) Class II milk. Multiply the Chicago butter price for the current month by 0.115.

For approved milk which is received at an approved plant located 60 miles or more from the Post Offices of Detroit Lakes and Thief River Falls, Minnesota, and Bismarck, Breckenridge, Grafton, Minot and Williston, North Dakota, by the shortest hard-surfaced highway distance as determined by the market administrator, and which is classified as Class I milk, the price specified in § 1035.51 shall be reduced by 10 cents for the first 75 miles or less and by 1.5 cents for each additional 10 miles or fraction thereof that such plant is from the nearest of the Post Offices of Detroit Lakes and Thief River Falls, Minnesota, and Bismarck, Breckenridge, Grafton, Minot and Williston, North Dakota: Provided, That for the purpose of calculating such location differential, fluid milk products which are transferred between approved plants shall be assigned to any remainder of Class III milk in the transferee-plant after making the calculations prescribed in § 1035.46(a)(4), and the comparable steps in § 1035.46(b) for such plant, such assignment to transferor plants to be made in sequence according to the location differential applicable at each plant, beginning with the plant having the largest differential.

§ 1035.54 Use of equivalent price.

If for any reason a price quotation required by this order for computing class prices or for other purposes is not available in the manner described, the market administrator shall use a price determined by the Secretary to be equivalent to the price which is required.

APPLICATION OF PROVISION

§ 1035.60 Producer-handlers.

Sections 1035.40 through 1035.46, 1035.50 through 1035.54, 1035.70 through 1035.73, and 1035.80 through 1035.89, shall not apply to a producer-handler.

§ 1035.61 Plants subject to other Federal orders.

The provisions of this order shall not apply to a distributing plant or a supply plant during any month in which such plant would be subject to the classification and pricing provisions of another order issued pursuant to the Act unless: Such plant is qualified as a pool plant pursuant to § 1035.12(a) and a greater volume of fluid milk products is disposed of from such plant to retail or wholesale outlets (excluding pool plants) in the Minnesota-North Dakota marketing area than in the marketing area regulated pursuant to such other order: Provided, That the operator of a distributing plant or a supply plant which is exempt from the provisions of this order pursuant to this section shall, with respect to the total receipts and utilization or disposition of skim milk and butterfat at the plant, make reports to the market administrator at such time and in such manner as the market administrator may require (in lieu of the reports required pursuant to § 1035.30) and allow verification of such reports by the market administrator.

§ 1035.62 Handler operating an approved plant which is not a pool plant.

Each handler who operates an approved plant which is not a pool plant during a month, shall in lieu of the payments required pursuant to §§ 1035.80 to 1035.85, pay to the market administrator, for the producer-settlement fund, on or before the 25th day after the end of such month, the amount resulting from the computation of paragraph (a) of this section unless the handler elects the computation specified in paragraph (b) of this section.

(a) The product of the quantity of milk received by such handler which was (1) disposed of during the month in the marketing area on routes as Class I milk by the difference between the applicable Class I and the Class III prices or (2) used to produce cottage cheese, ice cream and ice cream mix so disposed of as Class II by the difference between the Class II and Class III prices.

(b) Any plus amount resulting from the following computation: From an amount equal to the net pool obligation which would be computed pursuant to § 1035.70 for such handler for such month if such handler operated a pool plant deduct the gross payments made by such handler to approved dairy farmers for milk received during such month.

§ 1035.63 Rate of payment on unpriced milk.

The rate of payment per hundredweight to be made by handlers on unpriced other source milk allocated to Class I milk or Class II milk shall be any plus amount obtained by subtracting from the Class I price and the Class II price, adjusted by the Class I and Class II butterfat and location differentials applicable at a pool plant of the same location as the nonpool plant supplying such other source milk;

(a) During the months of April, May and June the Class III price adjusted by the Class III butterfat differentials, and

(b) During the months of July through March, the uniform price adjusted by butterfat and location differentials.

DETERMINATION OF UNIFORM PRICES TO PRODUCERS

§ 1035.70 Computation of value of milk for each handler.

The value of approved milk received during each month by each handler shall be a sum of money computed by the market administrator as follows:

(a) Multiply the pounds of milk in each class by the applicable class price and add together the resulting amounts;

(b) Add the amounts computed by multiplying the pounds of overage deducted from each class pursuant to § 1035.46(a)(9) and the corresponding step of (b) by the applicable class prices;

(c) Add the amount equal to the difference between the Class I and Class III prices or the Class II and Class III prices, respectively for the current month, for skim milk and butterfat in inventory which is subtracted from Class I or Class II pursuant to § 1035.46(a)(8) and the corresponding step of § 1035.46(b) which is not in excess of the skim milk and butterfat remaining in Class III milk in the previous month pursuant to § 1035.46 (a)(5) and the corresponding step of § 1035.46(b).

(d) Add an amount calculated by multiplying the hundredweight of skim milk and butterfat subtracted from Class I milk pursuant to § 1035.46(a) (2) and (3) and the corresponding step of (b), by the rate of payment on unpriced milk determined pursuant to § 1035.63 at the nearest nonpool plant from which an equivalent amount of other source skim milk or butterfat was received: Provided, That if the source of any Class I products at a pool plant is not clearly established or if such skim milk is in the form of nonfat dry milk solids they shall be considered to have been received from a source at the location of the pool plant where it is classified.

§ 1035.71 Computation of aggregate value used to determine uniform prices.

For each month the market administrator shall compute an aggregate value from which to determine uniform prices per hundredweight for producer milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content, as follows:

(a) Combine into one total the values computed pursuant to § 1035.70 for all handlers who made the reports prescribed in § 1035.30 for such month, except those in default of payments required pursuant to § 1035.84 for the preceding month;

(b) Add or subtract for each one-tenth percent that the average butterfat content of producer milk represented by the values included under paragraph (a) of this section is less or more, respectively, than 3.5 percent, an amount computed by multiplying such differences by the butterfat differential to producers, and multiplying the result of the total hundredweight of producer milk;

(c) Add an amount equal to the sum of the location differential deductions to be made pursuant to § 1035.82; and

(d) Add an amount equal to one-half of the unobligated cash balance in the producer-settlement fund.

§ 1035.72 Computation of uniform price.

For each of the months of July through December the market administrator shall compute a uniform price for producer milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content, as follows:

(a) Divide the aggregate value computed pursuant to § 1035.71 by the total hundredweight of producer milk included in such computations; and

(b) Subtract not less than 4 cents nor more than 5 cents from the price computed pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section. The resulting figure shall be the uniform price for producer milk.

§ 1035.73 Computation of price for base milk.

For each of the months of January through June the market administrator shall compute a price per hundredweight for base milk received from producers as follows:

(a) From the aggregate value computed pursuant to § 1035.71 subtract an amount computed by multiplying the total pounds of excess milk included in these computations by the price for Class III milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content computed pursuant to § 1035.51(b);

(b) Divide the resulting sum by the total hundredweight of base milk included in these computations; and

(c) Subtract not less than 4 cents nor more than 5 cents per hundredweight from the price computed pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section. The result shall be known as the "price for base milk" of 3.5 percent butterfat content.

PAYMENT FOR MILK

§ 1035.80 Time and method of payment.

On or before the 12th day after the end of each month, each handler shall make payment for milk received from producers or cooperative associations as follows:

(a) For each of the months of July through December, both inclusive, to each producer for milk, for which payment is not made to a cooperative association pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section, at not less than the uniform price computed in accordance with § 1035.72 adjusted pursuant to §§ 1035.81, 1035.82, and 1035.87.

(b) For each of the months of January through June, both inclusive, to each producer for milk, for which payment is not made to a cooperative association pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section, at not less than the price for base milk computed in accordance with § 1035.73 with respect to base milk received from such producer, and at not less than the Class III price computed pursuant to § 1035.51(b) with respect to excess milk received from such producer, adjusted pursuant to §§ 1035.81, 1035.82 and 1035.87.

(c) Upon receipt of a written request from a cooperative association which the market administrator determines is authorized by its members to collect payment for their milk, each handler shall pay to the cooperative association on or before the 13th and 26th days of each month, in lieu of payments pursuant to paragraphs (a) and (b), respectively, of this section an amount equal to the sum of the individual payments otherwise payable for such producer milk. The foregoing payment shall be made with respect to milk of each producer whom the cooperative association certifies is a member effective on and after the first day of the calendar month next following receipt of such certification through the last day of the month next preceding receipt of notice from the cooperative association of a termination of membership or until the original request is rescinded in writing by the cooperative association.

(d) In making the payments to producers pursuant to paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, each handler shall furnish each producer or cooperative association from whom he has received milk with a supporting statement in such form that it may be retained by the producer, which shall show:

(1) The month and identity of the handler and of the producer;

(2) The minimum rate or rates at which payment to the producer is required pursuant to the order;

(3) The rate which is used in making the payment, if such rate is other than the applicable minimum rate;

(4) The amount or the rate per hundredweight and nature of each deduction claimed by the handler; and

(5) The net amount of payment to such producer or cooperative association.

§ 1035.81 Butterfat differentials to producers.

The applicable uniform prices to be paid each producer pursuant to § 1035.80 shall be adjusted for each one-tenth of one percent which the butterfat content of his milk is above or below 3.5 percent, respectively, at the rate determined by multiplying the total pounds of butterfat in the producer milk allocated to Class I, Class II, and Class III milk during the month pursuant to § 1035.46 by the respective butterfat differential for each class, dividing the sum of such values by the total pounds of such butterfat, and rounding the resulting figure to the nearest one-tenth of a cent.

§ 1035.82 Location differentials to producers.

(a) The uniform price for producer milk received at a pool plant located 60 miles or more from the Post Offices of Detroit Lakes and Thief River Falls, Minnesota, and Bismarck, Breckenridge, Grafton, Minot and Williston, North Dakota, by the shortest hard-surfaced highway distance as determined by the market administrator shall be reduced by 10 cents for the first 75 miles or less and 1.5 cents for each additional 10 miles or fraction thereof that such plant is from the nearest of the Post Offices of Detroit Lakes and Thief River Falls, Minnesota, and Bismarck, Breckenridge, Grafton, Minot and Williston, North Dakota; and

(b) The uniform price for producer milk received at a pool plant outside the base zone shall be increased 40 cents.

§ 1035.83 Producer-settlement fund.

The market administrator shall establish and maintain a separate fund known as the "producer-settlement fund" into which he shall deposit all payments made by handlers pursuant to §§ 1035.84 and 1035.86 and out of which he shall make all payments to handlers pursuant to §§ 1035.85 and 1035.86: Provided, That the market administrator shall offset any payment due any handler against payments due from such handler.

§ 1035.84 Payments to the producer-settlement fund.

On or before the 12th day after the end of each month each handler shall pay to the market administrator the amount by which the obligation pursuant to § 1035.60 of such handler to producers for milk received at a pool plant is less than the value of such producer milk pursuant to § 1035.70: Provided, That to this amount shall be added one-half of one percent of any amount due the market administrator pursuant to this section for each month or any portion thereof that such payment is overdue.

§ 1035.85 Payments out of the producer-settlement fund.

On or before the 13th day after the end of each month, the market administrator shall pay to each handler the amount by which the obligation pursuant to § 1035.80 of such handler for producer milk received during the month exceeds the value of such producer milk pursuant to § 1035.70: Provided, That if the balance in the producer-settlement fund is insufficient to make all payments pursuant to this section, the market administrator shall reduce uniformly such payments and shall complete such payments as soon as the necessary funds are available. A handler who has not received the balance of such payments from the market administrator shall not be considered in violation of § 1035.80 if he reduces his payments to producers by not more than the amount of the reduction in payment from the producer-settlement fund.

§ 1035.86 Adjustment of accounts.

Whenever verification by the market administrator of reports or payments of any handler discloses errors in payments to or from the producer-settlement fund, the market administrator shall promptly bill such handler for any unpaid amount and such handler shall, within 15 days of such billing, make payments to the market administrator of the amount so billed. Whenever verification discloses that payment is due from the market administrator to any handler, the market administrator shall, within 15 days, make such payment to such handler. Whenever verification by the market administrator of the payment by a handler to any producer or to a cooperative association discloses payment of an amount less than is required by § 1035.80, the handler shall make up such payment to the producer or cooperative association not later than the time of making payment next following such disclosure.

§ 1035.87 Marketing services.

(a) Except as set forth in paragraph (b) of this section, each handler in making payment to producers pursuant to § 1035.80 shall deduct 5 cents per hundredweight or such lesser amount as the Secretary may prescribe with respect to producer milk received by such handler (except such handler's own farm production) during the month and shall pay such deductions to the market administrator on or before the 15th day after the end of such month. Such money shall be used by the market administrator to verify or establish weights, samples, and tests of milk received from producers and to provide producers with market information. Such services shall be performed in whole or in part by the market administrator or by an agent engaged by and responsible to him.

(b) In the case of producers for whom a cooperative association is actually performing, as determined by the Secretary, the services set forth in paragraph (a) of this section, each handler shall make in lieu of the deductions specified in paragraph (a) of this section, such deductions as are authorized by such producers and on or before the 15th day after the end of such month pay over such deductions to the cooperative association rendering such services.

§ 1035.88 Expenses of administration.

As his prorata share of the expense of administration hereof, each handler shall pay to the market administrator on or before the 15th day after the end of the month for such month 4 cents per hundredweight, or such lesser amount as the Secretary may prescribe with respect to butterfat and skim milk contained in (a) producer milk, including such handler's own production, (b) other source milk at a pool plant which is allocated to Class I milk pursuant to § 1035.46, and (c) approved milk received at a nonpool plant: Provided, That if payment for such milk is not made pursuant to § 1035.80(b) the expense of administration payable pursuant to this section shall be applicable only to the Class I milk disposed of in the marketing area (except to a pool plant) from such plant.

§ 1035.89 Termination of obligations.

The provisions of this section shall apply to any obligation under this order for the payment of money.

(a) The obligation of any handler to pay money required to be paid under the terms of this order shall, except as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, terminate two years after the last day of the calendar month during which the market administrator receives the handler's utilization report on milk involved in such obligation, unless within such two-year period the market administrator notifies the handler in writing that such money is due and payable. Service of such notice shall be complete upon mailing to the handler's last known address, and it shall contain, but need not be limited to, the following information:

(1) The amount of the obligation;

(2) The month(s) during which the milk, with respect to which the obligation exists, was received or handled; and

(3) If the obligation is payable to one or more producers or to an association of producers, the name of such producer(s) or association of producers, or if the obligation is payable to the market administrator, the account for which it is to be paid.

(b) If a handler fails or refuses, with respect to any obligation under this order, to make available to the market administrator or his representative all books and records required by this order to be made available, the market administrator may, within the two-year period provided for in paragraph (a) of this section, notify the handler in writing of such failure or refusal. If the market administrator so notifies a handler, the said two-year period with respect to such obligation shall not begin to run until the first day of the calendar month following the month during which all such books and records pertaining to such obligation are made available to the market administrator or his representative.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, a handler's obligation under this order to pay money shall not be terminated with respect to any transaction involving fraud or willful concealment of a fact, material to the obligation, on the part of the handler against whom the obligation is sought to be imposed.

(d) Any obligation on the part of the market administrator to pay a handler any money which such handler claims to be due him under the terms of this order shall terminate two years after the end of the calendar month during which the milk involved in the claim was received if an underpayment is claimed, or two years after the end of the calendar month during which the payment (including deduction or set-off by the market administrator) was made by the handler if a refund on such payment is claimed, unless such handler within the applicable period of time files pursuant to section 8c(15)(a) of the Act, a petition claiming such money.

Determination of Base

§ 1035.95 Daily base.

The daily base for each producer shall be the amount obtained by dividing the total pounds of producer milk received from such producer by all handlers during the months of August through November immediately preceding, by the number of days from the first day of delivery by such producer during such months to the last day of November inclusive, less the number of days for which no deliveries are made, but not less than 100 days.

§ 1035.96 Base rules.

The following rules shall apply in connection with the establishment of bases.

(a) A base shall apply to deliveries of milk by the producer for whose account that milk was delivered during the months of August through November;

(b) An entire base shall be transferred from a person holding such base to any other person effective as of the first day of any month following receipt by the market administrator of an application for such transfer. Such application shall be on a form approved by the market administrator and shall be signed by the baseholder and by the person to whom such base is transferred: Provided, That if a base is held jointly, the entire base shall be transferable only upon receipt of such application signed by all joint holders.

(c) For each producer from whom milk was received by a handler on less than 100 days during the months of August to November, both inclusive, or who commences the delivery of milk to a handler during the months of January to June, the daily base shall be computed by multiplying his average daily deliveries during each of the months of January to June, both inclusive by the following percentages: January and February, 60 percent; March and April, 50 percent; and May and June, 40 percent.

(d) Any producer for whom a base has been established pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section, may relinquish such base for the following base period by notifying the market administrator prior to January 31 of each year. The daily base of such producers shall then be determined pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section.

§ 1035.97 Announcement of established bases.

On or before January 1 of each year, the market administrator shall notify each producer and the handler receiving milk from such producer, of the daily base established by such producer.

§ 1035.103 Liquidation after suspension or termination.

Upon the suspension or termination of any or all provisions of this part the market administrator, or such person as the Secretary may designate, shall if so directed by the Secretary, liquidate the business of the market administrator's office and dispose of all funds and property then in his possession or under his control, together with claims for any funds which are unpaid or owing at the time of such suspension or termination. Any funds collected pursuant to the provisions of this part, over and above the amounts necessary to meet outstanding obligations and the expenses necessarily incurred by the market administrator or such person in liquidating such funds, shall be distributed to the contributing handlers and producers in an equitable manner.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

[47 CFR Part 3]

[Docket No. 13596; FCC 60-699]

STANDARD BROADCAST STATIONS

Notice of Inquiry

In the matter of inquiry into amendment of Part 3 of the Commission's rules and technical standards to permit standard broadcast stations to operate with full carrier and single sideband, Docket No. 13596 (RM-156).

1. On December 31, 1959, Kahn Research Laboratories, Inc., Freeport, Long Island, filed a petition for rule making (RM-156) requesting an amendment of Part 3 of the Commission's rules to permit standard broadcast stations to operate with a "compatible single-sideband system of modulation" known as CSSB.

2. In support of the request, petitioner urges that the adoption of its proposal would benefit both broadcasters and the public; that the single sideband transmission system will permit reception on existing receivers without any modification; that the resulting signal will be more listenable; and that the improvement over the present system has "been foreshadowed through voluminous data compiled by means of developmental broadcasting." Petitioner claims that the proposed mode of operation will result in improved high frequency response, increased signal to noise ratio, reduction in co-channel and adjacent channel interference, reduction in television receiver radiation interference, and reduction of certain types of fading distortion.

3. Several standard broadcast stations[1] have in the past been authorized to conduct experiments in order to test the CSSB system and to gather data regarding this type of operation in the standard broadcast band. This data and the information made available by the petitioner indicate that the proposal has sufficient merit to warrant further inquiry. However, they are not conclusive with regard to establishing the advantages claimed for the system and in some very important respects do not throw any light on the problems involved. For example, little information is available with respect to the advantage claimed in the reduction of selective fading. No information or data is available with respect to the potential of interference to other stations.

4. Before deciding upon the desirability of instituting rule making and in order to provide time in which parties may gather data and information necessary for such a proceeding, we believe that it would be appropriate and useful to afford all interested parties an opportunity to submit such data and views as they feel should be taken into account.

5. Written comments may be filed on or before September 30, 1960.

[1] KDKA, Pittsburgh, WSM, Nashville, WGBB, Freeport, L.I., WABC, New York, N.Y., and WMGM, New York, N.Y.

6. Authority for the institution of this proceeding is found in sections 303(c) and 403 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.

7. In accordance with the provisions of § 1.54 of the Commission's rules, an original and 14 copies of all statements, briefs, or comments shall be furnished the Commission.

8. Data and views are desired, in particular, on the following issues:

(a) Is there a sufficient interest in single sideband operation in the broadcast band by the public and broadcasters to warrant the institution of rule making?

(b) What are the methods available for obtaining single sideband operation which are compatible with present operation, and what are the advantages and disadvantages of each?

(c) Are there any supporting data or measurements to support the claimed advantages and to evaluate the disadvantages of the methods?

(d) Is there a potential of greater interference to existing stations from such operation? If so, what means may be taken to reduce this interference to the level encountered by the present assignments and method of transmission, and with such reductions what are the advantages to these systems?

(e) What burdens are placed on existing receivers relative to tuning, bandwidth, quality, etc., in order to receive signals equal in quality to that possible under the present method of transmission?

(f) What parameters should be adopted in order to derive the maximum benefit of the proposed operation and to insure no greater level of interference to existing stations?

(g) What would be the effect on the coverage of a station operating under the proposed system and proposed standards?

(h) What co-channel and adjacent channel ratios of desired to undesired signals should be applied in the evaluation of proposals to utilize this system to insure that other stations will receive protection from interference equivalent to that afforded such stations by conventionally modulated stations under § 3.182(w) of the Commission's rules?

(i) In what respects is the proposed operation contrary to the terms of the North American Regional Broadcasting Agreement (NARBA)?

9. The comments should be in the form of technical data and measurements which in general may be obtained in a laboratory without the need for radiation through space. In the event radiation is necessary, consideration will be given to requests for experimentation for limited periods of time.

Adopted: June 15, 1960.

Released: June 20, 1960.

[SEAL] BEN F. WAPLE,
Acting Secretary.

DELEGATION OF AUTHORITY TO ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION

1. Authority. This amended delegation of authority to the Atomic Energy Commission is issued pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, Executive Order 10480 (18 F.R. 4939) as amended, Defense Mobilization Order I–7 (18 F.R. 5366) as amended, and Department of Commerce Order 152 (18 F.R. 6503) as amended.

2. General. The Atomic Energy Commission is delegated the authority to make allotments of controlled materials and to apply or assign to others the right to apply DO ratings and allotment numbers with respect to contracts and delivery orders to meet programs authorized by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization for or through the Atomic Energy Commission.

3. Construction equipment and materials and capital equipment. With respect to construction equipment, construction materials and capital equipment, the authority delegated to the Atomic Energy Commission to assign to others the right to apply DO ratings and allotment numbers is limited to:

(a) Prime or subcontractors on orders for delivery of construction equipment specifically required to support authorized programs of the Atomic Energy Commission (1) where such equipment will be the property of the Atomic Energy Commission, (2) when there has been a determination that the contractor is fully utilizing his existing construction equipment to meet rated orders for construction and (3) when there has been a determination that the construction equipment cannot be obtained from Atomic Energy Commission reserves and that the contractor has exhausted all reasonable efforts to obtain new or used construction equipment on an unrated basis;

(b) Prime or subcontractors (except suppliers of electric power service) on orders for delivery of construction materials and capital equipment, except construction equipment, required by the contractor (1) for use in the construction (including maintenance, repair and operating supplies required for on-site construction operations) of a plant or facility or addition thereto which, upon completion, will be operated exclusively or primarily for Atomic Energy Commission purposes, or (2) for use in the operation of a plant or facility which is operated exclusively for Atomic Energy Commission purposes;

(c) Persons other than prime or subcontractors (except suppliers of electric power service) on orders for delivery of construction materials and capital equipment, except construction equipment, where the Atomic Energy Commission has determined in each case that the delivery of such materials or equipment on schedule is necessary and provides the only reasonable and practical means to meet authorized programs of the Atomic Energy Commission, and that such persons are making maximum use of plants or facilities otherwise available to meet Atomic Energy Commission requirements.

(d) As used in this delegation, the term "construction equipment" means any item (exclusive of parts thereof) listed in List A of BDSA Order M–43A.

4. DX authority. (a) The Atomic Energy Commission is also delegated the authority to apply or assign to others the right to apply DX ratings and DX allotment numbers to contracts and delivery orders to meet those programs designated as eligible for DX program rating by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, including but not limited to research and development, construction and production under such programs.

(b) Subject to the following conditions, the Atomic Energy Commission is also delegated the authority to apply or assign to others the right to apply DX ratings and DX allotment numbers to contracts and delivery orders to meet programs other than those designated as eligible for DX program rating by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization:

(1) The Atomic Energy Commission will redelegate such authority to only its General Manager who will redelegate such authority to only the Director, Division of Construction and Supply, Atomic Energy Commission, and the Director, Division of Construction and Supply, Atomic Energy Commission, will redelegate such authority for use by only one other delegate within the Atomic Energy Commission.

(2) The use of DX ratings and DX allotment numbers will be limited to those cases in which the following determinations have been made: (i) The necessity for obtaining the materials or products is of such a compelling or urgent nature that failure to use a DX rating or a DX allotment number will result in serious dislocation of construction or operating programs; and (ii) the extreme urgency for materials or products does not permit utilization of coordinated authorization procedures for the issuance of DX ratings and DX allotment numbers established within BDSA; and (iii) the materials or products cannot be obtained when needed by the use of DO ratings and non-DX allotment numbers.

(3) The Atomic Energy Commission will furnish to the Office of Industrial Mobilization, BDSA, immediately after issuance, a copy of each action authorizing the use of a DX rating or a DX allotment number.

5. Limitations of authority. (a) This delegation shall not be used for material purchased from exclusively retail establishments except in emergency situations to prevent imminent stoppage.

(b) This delegation shall be exercised within the limits of such program determinations or other quantitative restrictions as may be established by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, in accordance with regulations and orders of BDSA, and in accordance with such instructions (including instructions to forms), record-keeping and reporting requirements, and directives as may be issued from time to time by BDSA.

6. Certifications. In making allotments of controlled materials and in applying ratings and allotment numbers, as the case may be, the certification prescribed by the appropriate regulation or order of BDSA shall be used. In assigning to others the right to exercise this authority, the following certification shall be used:

> By authority of the Business and Defense Services Administration, the right is hereby assigned to (description of scope of assignment).

This certification shall be authenticated with the signature of an authorized official of the Atomic Energy Commission or its delegate agency.

7. Redelegations. Subject to the specific limitations provided in this delegation, the authority granted by this delegation may be redelegated (a) within the Atomic Energy Commission, and (b) to agencies of the United States administering programs authorized by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization for or through the Atomic Energy Commission. No other redelegations of such authority shall be made without the prior written approval of the Business and Defense Services Administration. Any redelegations of such authority outside of the Atomic Energy Commission shall be made in writing and a copy thereof furnished to the Business and Defense Services Administration.

8. Revocation. All published supplements and all unpublished policy memoranda which were issued by the National Production Authority under NPA Delegation 1 or by the Business and Defense Services Administration under BDSA Delegation 1 are hereby revoked and superseded by this amended delegation.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

Department of the Navy

[No. 22]

CERTAIN CLASSES AND TYPES OF NAVAL VESSELS

Navigational Light Waivers

Certificate of the Secretary of the Navy under sections 143a and 360, Title 33 of United States Code.

All ships are warned that, if U.S. naval vessels are met on the high seas or on navigable waters of the United States during periods when navigational lights may be displayed, they may expect that certain navigational lights of some naval vessels may vary from the requirements of the Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea, 1948, 33 U.S. Code sections 144 to 147d, and rules applicable to the navigable waters of the United States, as to number, position, range of visibility or arc of visibility. These differences are necessitated by reasons of military function or special construction of the naval ships. An example is the aircraft carrier where the two white lights are in most instances on the island superstructure considerably displaced from the center or keel line of the vessel when viewed from ahead. Certain other naval vessels cannot comply with the horizontal separation requirements of the white lights, and the two white lights on even large naval vessels, such as some cruisers, will thus appear to be crowded together when viewed from a distance. Other naval vessels may also have unorthodox navigational light arrangements or characteristics when seen either underway or at anchor.

Naval vessels may also be expected to display certain other lights. These lights include, but are not limited to, different colored recognition light signals, landing lights on carriers, pulsating red lights to indicate speed to other naval ships, and green lights to indicate minesweeping operations. These lights may sometimes be shown in combination with navigational lights.

During peacetime naval maneuvers, naval ships, alone or in company, may also dispense with showing any lights, though efforts will be made to display lights on the approach of shipping.

33 U.S. Code, section 143a and 360, provides that the requirements of the Regulations for Preventing Collisons at Sea, 1948, the Inland Rules, the Great Lakes Rules, and the Western River Rules, as to the number, position, range of visibility, or arc of visibility of lights required to be displayed by vessels, shall not apply to any vessel or class of vessels of the Navy where the Secretary of the Navy shall find or certify that, by reason of special construction or purpose, it is not possible for such vessel or class of vessels to comply with the statutory provisions as to lights.

This waiver certificate consolidates and supersedes all previously approved waivers and includes additional information on waivers. It has been determined that, because of their construction, it is not possible for the classes or types of naval vessels, as hereinafter listed in the attached tabulation, which is made a part hereof, to comply with all of the requirements of the statutes enumerated in sections 143a and 360, Title 33, United States Code.

Now, therefore, I, Fred A. Bantz, Acting Secretary of the Navy, do hereby find and certify that these classes or types of vessels are naval vessels of special construction and that with respect to the position of those certain navigation lights listed on such classes or types of vessels, it is not possible to comply with the requirements of the statutes enumerated in sections 143a and 360, Title 33, United States Code.

Further, I do find and certify that the aforesaid navigation lights where listed conform as closely as feasible to the applicable statutory requirements.

I withdraw herewith all previous certifications issued by me prior to the effective date of this certificate.

I do specify that the effective date of this certificate is June 9, 1960.

Dated at Washington, D.C., this June 9, 1960.

[SEAL] F. A. BANTZ,
Acting Secretary of the Navy.

SUBMARINES

(a) One, twenty-point white light is generally carried in the forward part of the vessel and will not be less than 15 feet above the hull. This light is visible over a maximum arc of 27 points, that is from right ahead to 5½ points (62 degrees) abaft the beam on either side.

(b) A second, twenty-point or other white light is not installed.

(c) Side lights may be visible simultaneously across the bow. The side lights may also be visible 30 degrees abaft the beam.

(d) Not-under-command lights are not installed.

(e) The white light showing to the stern will be visible over a maximum arc of 23 points of the compass, that is from right astern to 11½ points (approximately 126 degrees) to either side. This light is not installed at the stern but may be located from 20 to 190 feet forward of the stern.

(f) The forward anchor light is installed at a height not less than six feet above the hull, and the after anchor light is installed at a height of not less than five feet lower than the forward anchor light; however, it is not installed at the extreme stern of the ship.

NOTES

1. The after range light when carried by naval vessels is a 20-point white light as required by International Rule 2(a)(ii).

2. The arc of visibility of the after 20-point white light on certain heavy cruisers (CA) may be obstructed by as much as one point when viewed from ahead.

3. On aircraft carriers (CVA and CVS) and aircraft carrier types (LPH and T-AKV), the following additional variations exist:

a. The two 20-point white lights are located at a maximum distance of 89 feet to the left of the keel line when viewed from ahead. (This distance is measured perpendicularly from the keel line to the two white lights.)

b. The forward anchor lights are located at a maximum of 8 feet vertically below the uppermost continuous deck (two lights at the same level). These lights are located forward and on either side of the vessel.

c. The after anchor lights are located a maximum of 31 feet vertically below the uppermost continuous deck (two lights at the same level). These lights are located aft and on either side of the vessel.

4. On certain utility landing craft (LCU) only one 20-point white light is installed and is located in the afterpart of the ship. Also in certain of these ships, the 20-point white light is located 11 feet or less to the left of the keel line when viewed from ahead.

5. On 94-feet aircraft rescue boats (no hull classification) and motor-torpedo boats (PT), the 20-point white light is located at a maximum of 14 feet below the required height (based on International Rule 2(a)(iii)).

6. On motor-torpedo boats (PT) the lower towing light is located at a maximum of 4 feet below the required height (based on International Rule 3(a)).

7. 57-feet minesweeping boats (MSB), 50-feet minesweepers (MS) and 36-feet minesweeping launches (MSL) when engaged in mine operations will carry the required day signals and underwater task lights (based on International Rule 4 (a) and (c)). However, the underwater task lights will be carried at a 3-feet separation on 36-feet minesweeping launches (MSL). Day shapes will be carried as follows:

36' MSL—15" diameter shape—1 foot separation of shapes.

50' MS—15" diameter shape—1 foot separation of shapes.

57' MSB—18" diameter shape—4 feet separation of shapes.

8. On self-propelled crane (no hull classification) considerable reduction in the all around visibility of anchor lights exists. Two sets of "not under command" lights are installed, one set on either side of the superstructure (based on International Rule 4(a)).

9. Great Lakes—Naval vessels operating on the Great Lakes shall carry their navigational lights and shapes at the positions complying with the Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea, 1948, except as follows. For naval vessels under 150 feet in length requiring only one white light under the Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea, 1948, an additional all around white light will be carried which in some cases may be carried less than 50 feet abaft the forward light. In addition, the after white range light required by Rule 3(c), Great Lakes Rules, is a 20-point white light, so fixed as to show the light 10 points on each side of the vessel, that is, from right ahead to two points abaft the beam on either side. These vessels will, however, carry the white light stern light required by Rule 10, Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea, 1948, to light the vessels aft. At anchor these vessels will display in lieu of the two lights forward and two lights aft, Rule 9, Great Lakes Rule, a single all around white anchor light forward and a single all around white anchor light aft located in accordance with Rule 11 (a) and (b), Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea, 1948, as modified for aircraft carriers and aircraft carrier types by Note 3 above. Submarines will be lighted as provided by Table Two.

COLLEGE PARK BROADCASTING CO., INC.

Memorandum Opinion and Order Designating Matter for Evidentiary Hearing

In re matter of assignment of call letters WEAS to College Park Broadcasting Company, Inc., for its standard broadcast station at College Park, Georgia, Docket No. 13594.

1. The Commission has before it for consideration (1) a Petition For Reconsideration, filed on April 1, 1960, pursuant to section 405 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, by WEAS, Inc. (petitioner hereinafter), licensee of standard broadcast Station WGUN, Decatur, Georgia (1010 kc, 50 kw, 10 kw (CR), D), directed against the Commission's action of March 3, 1960, in assigning the call letters WEAS to College Park Broadcasting Company, Inc. (College Park hereinafter), licensee of standard broadcast Station WEAS, College Park, Georgia (1570 kc, 1 kw, D); and (2) a reply thereto, filed by College Park on April 18, 1960.

2. Certain background information is helpful to an understanding of the instant matter. From 1947 to November 1959, WEAS, Inc. (petitioner herein) was the licensee of Station WEAS, Decatur, Georgia. In November 1959, at petitioner's request, the call letters were changed to WGUN. In March 1959, College Park began operation of its new station, WCPK at College Park, Georgia.

On March 3, 1960, pursuant to the request of College Park, the Commission assigned the call letters WEAS to replace the then existing call letters WCPK.

3. Petitioner alleges that the call letters "WEAS" should not have been assigned to College Park since the service areas of Stations WGUN and WEAS overlap; that both stations are in competition with each other, deriving their revenues from the same advertisers in Decatur, Atlanta, College Park, East Point, and other communities making up the metropolitan area of Atlanta; that although petitioner changed its call letters to WGUN, its corporate name remains the same, (WEAS, Inc.); that during the past 12 years, it has spent thousands of dollars building up the good will and audience rating of its station in the Atlanta market; that the assignment of its former call letters to another station in the same market within so short a period of time after it relinquished them will cause injury to it; that the confusion in the minds of the listeners in the area will seriously damage its audience rating and diminish its advertising revenues; that the mail of WEAS, Inc. and Station WEAS in College Park, is already becoming confused and involved; that further, since petitioner's legal corporate name still remains WEAS, Inc., any use of that name in a competitive business is a violation of the laws of the State of Georgia, of the United States of America, and is in conflict with Federal decisions; and that the Commission upon reconsideration vacate or stay the effective date of its action of March 3, 1960, in assigning the call letters "WEAS" to College Park and for such other relief as may be appropriate under the circumstances.

4. In reply to the above petition, College Park contends that there is no competition between WEAS and WGUN since WGUN primarily serves Atlanta listeners while WEAS serves College Park, East Point and Hapeville, Georgia; that the 2 mv/m contour of WEAS covers only a minor portion of the city of Atlanta; that the majority of the WEAS revenue comes from College Park, East Point and Hapeville; that there is believed to be no firm in these cities served by WEAS, which advertises over WGUN, nor any active soliciting for advertising in said cities, by WGUN; that petitioner, when it used the call letters "WEAS", specialised in what is known as the three R's in programming (rural, race and religion); that when petitioner changed its programming format drastically, it also changed its call letters to WGUN; that, on the other hand, WEAS, College Park is basically a popular music and news station, which is an entirely different type of programming; that accordingly, there cannot be any confusion in the minds of the listeners as to what station is being heard; that the difference in the city of identification also precludes confusion; that the mail of the two stations became confused only once and even then it was merely misdirected by the Post Office; that, moreover, the corporate name of WEAS, Inc. is not being infringed upon by the use of the call letters "WEAS" by College Park; that there is no property right in call letters once they have been discarded by a licensee; that an attempt to preserve two sets of call letters by using one corporate name and a different set of call letters should be precluded by the Commission; that the principal reason for changing the call letters from WCPK to WEAS was that "between the call letters and the city identification, at least two of these three communities [East Point and College Park] could be included"; that in view of the foregoing, the instant request of WGUN must be considered improper.

5. We first consider whether petitioner has standing pursuant to section 405 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, to seek reconsideration of the Commission's action of March 3, 1960. College Park contends that the assignment of call letters is not a "decision, order or requirement * * * made by the Commission in any proceeding" and accordingly, petitioner, as a matter of law, has no standing to file this petition. This contention is without merit for the Commission in the case of In re Matter of Valley Broadcasting Co. (KWOW), 13 Pike and Fischer RR 208a, 208d, stated "* * * We are prepared to assume for the purposes of the case before us, that the issuance of call letters is a 'decision, order or requirement' within the meaning of section 405 of the Act and that such action may be the subject of a petition for reconsideration." Moreover, in view of the facts that WGUN is an existing station contending that there is an overlap of the primary service areas of Stations WGUN and WEAS and since petitioner has made a sufficient showing to establish that it is a "person aggrieved or whose interests are adversely affected" by said call letter assignment, within the meaning of section 405 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, we find that petitioner has the requisite standing to file the instant Petition for Reconsideration pursuant to said section. In re Matter of Valley Broadcasting Co. (KWOW), supra; See also Intercontinental Broadcasting Corp., 17 Pike and Fischer RR 588 (1958).

6. Commission records indicate that the 2 mv/m contour of Station WEAS, College Park, lies entirely within the 2 mv/m contour of Station WGUN, Decatur; that, accordingly, the area being primarily served by WEAS is also within the primary service area of WGUN; and that said area includes College Park, East Point, and Hapeville as well as the southernmost portion of the metropolitan district of Atlanta, Georgia. In view of the fact that WGUN operated within the area which is presently being served by the College Park station for approximately 12 years, under the call letters WEAS, the Commission is of the opinion that a substantial question obtains as to whether WEAS should change its call letters to avoid confusion. Accordingly, we believe that the matter should be designated for hearing on the issue specified below and that the burden of proceeding on said issue, with respect to the introduction of evidence and proof will rest upon the College Park Broadcasting Company, Inc., licensee of Station WEAS, College Park, Georgia. We do not, however, believe that we should stay the effective date of our action of March 3, 1960, in assigning the call letters "WEAS" to College Park.

7. In view of the foregoing: It is ordered, That, pursuant to section 405 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, petitioner's instant petition for reconsideration of the above-referenced assignment of call letters "WEAS" is granted to the extent provided for below and is denied in all other respects; that said assignment of call letters is designated for evidentiary hearing at the offices of the Commission in Washington, D.C., on the following issue: To determine whether the call letters WEAS, used by Station WGUN, at Decatur, Georgia, until November 1959, and assigned to College Park Broadcasting Company, Inc., on March 3, 1960, for its standard broadcast station at College Park, Georgia, results in confusion, and if so, whether the public interest requires that the College Park Broadcasting Company, Inc., select new call letters.

It is further ordered, That, the burden of proceeding with the introduction of evidence and the burden of proof on the issue shall be on College Park Broadcasting Company, Inc.

It is further ordered, That WEAS, Inc., is hereby made a party to the proceeding herein and that:

1. The appearances by the parties intending to participate in the hearing shall be filed not later than July 12, 1960.

2. The hearing on the above issue is to commence at a time and place and before an examiner to be specified in a subsequent order.

3. The parties to the proceeding herein shall have fifteen (15) days after the issuance of the Examiner's decision to file exceptions thereto and seven (7) days thereafter to file replies to any such exceptions.

Adopted: June 15, 1960.

At a session of the Federal Communications Commission held at its offices in Washington, D.C., on the 15th day of June 1960;

The Commission having under consideration the above-captioned application of Pacific Broadcasters Corporation for an extension of time to complete construction of Television Station KBFL, Channel 39, Bakersfield, California; and

It appearing that on December 10, 1958, the Commission granted the application (BPCT-2492) of Pacific Broadcasters Corporation for a permit to construct a new television broadcast station on Channel 39 at Bakersfield; that said action was protested on January 12, 1959; that as a result the application was designated for Oral Argument (Docket No. 12785) and the effective date of the grant postponed; that the Commission's decision denying the protest and affirming the grant was released on August 4, 1959; that the construction permit specified March 30, 1960, as the completion date; that no construction has been commenced; that on February 29, 1960, the applicant filed the above-captioned application; that on May 11, 1960, the applicant was notified by letter that Commission was unable to find that the applicant had been diligent in proceeding with the construction of its station or that it had been prevented from commencing construction by causes not under its control; and that applicant was given an opportunity to reply to said letter and to request a hearing on its application; and

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[File No. 812-1305]

ATLAS CORP. ET AL.

Notice of Filing of Application for Order Exempting Certain Transactions Between Affiliates

JUNE 16, 1960.

Notice is hereby given that Atlas Corporation ("Atlas"), a registered closed-end non-diversified management investment company, Petro-Atlas, Inc. ("Petro"), a wholly-owned subsidiary and affiliate of Atlas, and The Hidden Splendor Mining Company ("Hidden Splendor"), an affiliate of Atlas, have filed a joint application pursuant to section 17(b) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 ("Act") for an order exempting from the provisions of section 17(a) of the Act the proposed sale by Petro to Hidden Splendor of certain oil, gas and mineral leasehold interests located in the States of Utah, New Mexico and Kansas for an aggregate consideration of $1,300,000.

Petro, a Delaware corporation was organized in April 1958 to engage in the acquisition and development of oil and gas properties and property interests. Atlas is the owner of 1,000 shares of common stock, par value of $1.00 per share, of Petro, constituting all the issued and outstanding stock of Petro. In addition, Atlas holds 5 percent demand notes of Petro aggregating $650,000 in principal amount. Petro's producing leasehold interests ("the Properties") are located in the Horseshoe Canyon, Southeast Bisti and North Bisti areas in San Juan County, New Mexico, the Aneth area in San Juan County, Utah, and in Harper County, Kansas. Based upon an estimate of an independent petroleum engineer employed by Petro, the Properties have estimated net proven reserves of 768,950 barrels of crude oil and 4,495,957 Mcf of natural gas. In addition, 2,455,711 net barrels of oil are estimated to be recoverable when secondary recovery methods are applied, and it appears that operators are well on their way toward unitization for this purpose.

Hidden Splendor, a Delaware corporation, was organized to acquire, explore and develop uranium mining properties and property interests and to engage in the general business of a mining company. Atlas is the owner of 3,955,696 shares of common stock, par value of $0.50 per share, of Hidden Splendor, constituting 91.62 percent of the approximately 4,317,465 outstanding shares of such stock on April 20, 1960, and 140,745 shares of preferred stock, par value of $11.00 per share, of Hidden Splendor, constituting 22.06 percent of the approximately 637,690 outstanding shares of such stock on April 20, 1960. In addition, Atlas holds (a) 5½ percent promissory notes of Hidden Splendor aggregating $300,000 in principal amount due October 19, 1962, (b) warrants covering the purchase of 100,000 shares of common stock of Hidden Splendor at $3.00 per share and (c) warrants covering the purchase of 16,464 shares of common stock of Hidden Splendor at $4.45 per share.

Petro proposes to sell the Properties to Hidden Splendor in consideration of the payment to Petro by Hidden Splendor the sum of $1,300,000, payable $1,200,000 in cash and $100,000 by Hidden Splendor's promissory note without interest payable on or before December 1, 1960. Petro will except and exclude from the conveyance of the Properties as a production payment an undivided 35 percent of all the oil, gas and liquid hydrocarbons in and under and that may be produced, saved and sold from the Properties until Petro shall have received the sum of $2,000,000, plus an amount equal to all gross production, severance and other taxes, except Federal and State income taxes, imposed with respect to the production or sale of hydrocarbons allocable to the production payment and paid by Petro. The production payment shall commence only after Hidden Splendor shall have recovered 750,000 barrels of oil from the Properties. Petro will also exclude from the conveyance interests in the Properties insofar as the Properties apply to depths below present producing horizons. The conveyance will include certain equipment, materials and minor supplies owned by Petro in connection with the Properties. Applicants state that the cash consideration payable by Hidden Splendor has been computed as the fair value of the proven drilled and undrilled primary oil and gas reserves of the Properties. The production payment retained by Petro is intended to give Petro a share of any reserves recoverable from certain of the Properties when secondary recovery methods are applied. The assets to be conveyed to Hidden Splendor, including the Properties and the equipment located thereon, had, as of March 31, 1960, an aggregate cost for Federal income tax purposes of $3,467,004 and an aggregate cost for accounting purposes of $2,007,368.

Section 17(a) of the Act prohibits an affiliated person of a registered investment company, or an affiliated person of such a person, from selling to or purchasing from such registered investment company or any company controlled by such registered investment company, any security or other property, subject to certain exceptions, unless the Commission upon application pursuant to section 17(b) grants an exemption from the provision of section 17(a), after finding that the terms of the proposed transaction, including the consideration to be paid, are reasonable and fair and do not involve overreaching on the part of any person concerned, that the proposed transaction is consistent with the policy of each registered investment company concerned, as recited in its registration statement and reports filed under the Act, and is consistent with the general purposes of the Act.

Notice is hereby given that any interested person may, not later than June 30, 1960 at 12:30 p.m., submit to the Commission in writing a request for a hearing on the matter accompanied by a statement as to the nature of his interest, the reason for such request and the issues, if any, of fact or law proposed to be controverted, or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such communication should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D.C. At any time after said date, as provided by Rule 0-5 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the Act, an order disposing of the application herein may be issued by the Commission upon the basis of the showing contained in said application, unless an order for hearing upon said application shall be issued upon request or upon the Commission's own motion.

By the Commission.

[SEAL] ORVAL L. DUBOIS,
Secretary.

CENTURY INVESTORS, INC. ET AL.

Notice and Order for Hearing on Application for Order Exempting Transactions Between Affiliates Incident to Merger and for Order of Exemption

JUNE 16, 1960.

Notice is hereby given that Century Investors, Inc. ("Century") and Webster Investors, Inc. ("Webster"), both Delaware Corporations, registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940 ("Act") as closed-end, non-diversified management investment companies, and American Manufacturing Company, Inc. ("American"), have filed a joint application pursuant to section 17(b) of the Act for an order of the Commission exempting from the provisions of section 17(a) of the Act certain transactions incident to a merger of Century, Webster and American, with American as the surviving corporation under the same name, and that American has filed an application purusant to section 3(b)(2) of the Act for an order declaring that American is not and will not be an investment company upon consummation of the merger.

Description of constituent companies. Century owns 8.6 percent of the capital stock of American and 37.9 percent of the capital stock of Webster. Webster owns 29.6 percent of the capital stock of American. Gurdon W. Wattles, President and a director of Century, Webster and American, owns 59.3 percent of the capital stock of Century, 28.6 percent of the capital stock of Webster and 11.9 percent of the capital stock of American, and a trust of which he is co-trustee and in which he has no beneficial interest owns 13 percent, 1.2 percent and .4 percent of the capital stock of these companies, respectively. The capital stock constitutes the voting securities of the respective companies. Under the definition of an affiliated person contained in section 2(a)(3) of the Act, Wattles, Century, Webster, and American are affiliated persons of each other.

The portfolio of Century consists solely of common stocks of Webster, American and Mergenthaler Linotype Company ("Mergenthaler"). Total assets of Century as of December 31, 1959 adjusted to reflect its common stock investments at market values were approximately $4,823,692.

A major part of Webster's portfolio consists of shares of Class A stock and common stock of American and common stock of Mergenthaler. Webster's assets also include certain short-term corporate debt obligations, mortgage receivables on property sold, a cigar manufacturing plant which is under lease to a cigar manufacturer and receivables from said manufacturer representing the purchase price of a cigar brand sold to it. Webster also owns a contingent asset of an undetermined amount as a result of certain unsettled tax questions. Total assets of Webster as of December 31, 1959 adjusted to reflect its common stock investments at market values were approximately $9,940,898.

American is engaged in the manufacture of natural and synthetic ropes, cords and twines, as well as oakum and packing for the marine, construction and building trades. It is also engaged directly, and through wholly-owned subsidiary companies, in the manufacture and sale of industrial scales and weighers, industrial timers and controls, processing equipment for chemical milling and general process industries, and, to a lesser degree, in furnishing maintenance services for railway passenger cars of certain railroads.

American owns approximately 18 percent of the outstanding capital stock of Mergenthaler. Century and Webster also own approximately 1 percent and 12 percent, respectively, of the capital stock of Mergenthaler. Mergenthaler's principal business is the manufacture and sale of linotype casting machines for printing. American also owns approximately 28 percent of the common stock of Vapor Heating Corporation which is engaged in the manufacture of railroad and industrial steam generators and other industrial products. Total assets of American as of December 31, 1959, adjusted to reflect its investments at market values were approximately $34,286,115. Of this amount 20.8 percent represented market value of the investment in Mergenthaler, 19.2 percent in Vapor Heating Corporation, and 2 percent in Vapor Heating (Canada) Ltd.

The capitalizations of the constituent companies are set forth in the following table:

Title of class	April 21, 1960
	Authorized	Outstanding
Century:	Shares	Shares
Common stock $2 par value	180,000	150,050
Webster:
Common stock $5 par value	300,000	266,530
American:
Class A stock $25 par value	450,000	*225,184
Common stock $12.50 par value	900,000	406,300

*Options to purchase 9,950 shares of Class A stock at prices ranging from $16.63 to $27.79 per share are held by officers and employees.

Options to purchase 11,700 shares of common stock at prices ranging from $14.37 to $20.42 per share are held by officers and employees.

The proposed merger. It is proposed that each share of common stock of Century will be converted into one-tenth share of Class A stock and one and fifteen one-hundredths shares of common stock of American. Each share of common stock of Webster will be converted into one-half share of Class A stock and seventy-two one-hundredths share of common stock of American. Each share of Class A stock and common stock and options to purchase stock of American will remain outstanding. All treasury stock and intercompany holdings of the constituent companies will be cancelled.

The Class A stock of the surviving corporation will be entitled to preferential cumulative dividends at the rate of $1.10 per share per annum; will have one vote per share; will have a par value of $25 per share; will be redeemable at the option of the corporation at any time (after January 1, 1961) upon 30 days' prior notice at $26.50 per share plus accrued dividends; and will be convertible into common stock at specified ratios,[1] but will have no liquidation preference on dissolution.

American will issue to the stockholders of Century and Webster, certificates of contingent interest with respect to 12,821 escrowed shares of common stock of American to represent enhancement in the asset value of the common stock of Webster which may result from a settlement of the tax liabilities relating to certain prior capital losses of Webster. Using a relative asset comparison for the conversion of this contingent asset into shares of common stock of American, a maximum of 12,821 shares of common stock of American would be issued in escrow for delivery, in whole or in part, depending upon the outcome of the tax settlement. Upon the effectiveness of the merger a certificate of contingent interest in 0.04811 of a share of common stock of American will be issued to the holder of each share of common stock of Webster. Since Century is a substantial holder of common stock of Webster and the corporate existence of Century will end upon the merger, certificates of contingent interest in these shares of common stock of American are proposed to be issued directly to the stockholders of Century in the appropriate amount which they would have received had they been direct stockholders of Webster. This will amount to a contingent interest in 0.03236 of a share of common stock of American for each share of Century.

American will not issue to the stockholders of Century and Webster fractional shares. Each holder of a share or shares of stock of Century and Webster entitled to receive a fraction of a share of Class A stock or comomn stock of American will be afforded an opportunity, during a limited period of time (not less than 90 nor more than 180 days following the merger) to consolidate his fractional share interest into one full share of such common stock by purchasing the additional fractional interest required or to sell his fractional interest.

The Boards of Directors of the constituent companies have each adopted the agreement of merger pursuant to the laws of Delaware. The affirmative vote of the holders of record of at least two-thirds of the outstanding shares of stock of Century, Webster and American is required for approval of the proposed merger.

The Delaware statutes, which govern the constituent companies, confer upon the shareholders of corporations proposing to merge or consolidate the right, upon compliance with certain statutory formalities, to require the appraisal of their shares and the payment of the appraised value in cash.

The application states that the proposed basis of exchange was determined after consideration of asset values, earnings and dividends. Various adjustments in asset values and earnings were computed. Applicants state that the proposed basis of exchange gives weight to the adjusted asset values and earnings, dividends, the termination of certain corporate expenses and taxes upon the conclusion of the proposed merger and the present position of each constituent company vis-a-vis the underlying assets and earnings of the combined enterprise.

Statutory standards—section 17. Section 17(a) of the Act prohibits an affiliated person of a registered investment company, or an affiliated person of such a person, from selling to, or purchasing from such registered investment company, or any company controlled by such registered company, any securities or other property, subject to certain exceptions not here pertinent. The Commission, upon application pursuant to section 17(b), shall grant an exemption from the provisions of section 17(a) if it finds that the terms of the proposed transactions, including the consideration to be paid, are reasonable and fair and do not involve overreaching on the part of any person concerned, that the proposed transactions are consistent with the policy of any registered investment company concerned, as recited in its registration statement and reports filed under the Act, and are consistent with the general purposes of the Act.

Application to be deemed not an investment company. The application contains the following representations in support of American's request for an order pursuant to section 3(b)(2) of the Act for an order declaring that it is not now and will not be after the proposed merger an investment company as defined in section 3 of the Act.

American is and always has been engaged in the business of manufacturing cordage, fibers, oakum and packing. Since its merger with Safety Industries, Inc. (Safety), American has expanded its manufacturing to include the additional products mentioned above in connection with the description of the constituent companies. American did not purchase or own securities subsequent to 1939 and prior to 1954 other than those of a subsidiary textile company in the South which was liquidated in 1944. In 1954, due to excess plant capacity and unprofitable operations, American sold certain properties, and in order to diversify its business through direct control of other industrial operations, it began to acquire stocks and to increase its interest in the operations of two industrial companies, Safety and Mergenthaler. Effective January 22, 1960, Safety was merged into American.

American states that its holdings in Mergenthaler should not be viewed as an investment but rather as a means of permitting American to control and engage in the business of that company. Gurdon Wattles, who is President, director and owner of the majority of the outstanding voting stock of Century and the controlling stockholder of Webster and American, spends substantially more than 50 percent of his time on the operations of Merganthaler and its affiliated interests, and Dante E. Broggi, a director of American, also devotes a considerable portion of his time to the affairs of Mergenthaler and its affiliates. At the present time, American contemplates using its resources beyond the requirements of its industrial business for further purchases of Mergenthaler stock.

Mergenthaler and its subsidiaries are engaged in the manufacture and sale of linotype and duplicating machines and linofilm. Mergenthaler owns approximately 28 percent of the outstanding common stock of The Electric Autolite Company which is principally engaged in the manufacture and sale of automotive electrical equipment and automotive parts.

Century, Webster and American together own a total of about 31 percent of the Mergenthaler capital stock. It is claimed that all three of such companies control Mergenthaler, either directly or indirectly. American has six representatives on the Mergenthaler board of directors which consist of eleven members; three of the five remaining directors are operating men and the other two directors are independent. Consequently, American claims that it not only controls Mergenthaler but that through its own officers and directors, it takes an active and important part in the operations of that company.

As a result of the merger of Safety into American, the latter company acquired Safety's holdings in Vapor Heating Corporation ("Vapor (Delaware)"), a Delaware corporation, and Vapor Heating Ltd., a Canadian corporation, which amount to 28 percent and 30 percent of the outstanding stock of these respective companies. An integrated group of other interests owns a larger percentage of the Vapor (Delaware) stock than American owns.

The application states that the value of investment securities of American, represented by the market value at May 20, 1960 of the Mergenthaler and Vapor stocks owned by American, was approximately 46 percent of the book value of American's total assets (excluding Government securities and cash items) as of December 31, 1959, as adjusted to reflect the market value of such investments. American also owns prime commercial paper and installment notes receivable which, if considered to be investment securities, would increase the foregoing ratio of investment securities to approximately 56 percent.

The application further states that the value of investment securities of American, represented by its holdings of the Mergenthaler and Vapor stocks, on the same basis as above but after giving effect to the proposed merger, would be approximately 52 percent of total assets. The prime commercial paper and installment notes receivable, if considered to be investment securities, would increase the ratio of investment securities of American after the merger to approximately 61 percent.

The application also states that a study of the sources of American's present income and of its income on a pro forma basis, giving effect to the proposed merger, is significant. It is stated that for the year ended December 31, 1959, dividends after taxes received by American on the Mergenthaler and Vapor stocks were approximately 38 percent of total net income after taxes of American. The comparable figure pro forma to reflect the merger would be approximately 44 percent.

It appears that the percentages represented by the ratio of investment securities to total assets of American, both before and after the proposed merger, exceed 40 percent, and consequently American is an investment company under the definition contained in section 3(a)(3) of the Act. American asserts, however, that it is entitled to an exemption from the status of an investment company, both before and after the proposed merger, because it is primarily engaged and will after the merger be engaged, in a business or businesses other than that of "investing, reinvesting, owning, holding, or trading in securities" within the meaning of both sections 3(b)(1) and 3(b)(2) of the Act, for the reason that American is primarily and actively engaged in the industrial businesses in which American itself, Safety and Mergenthaler have been engaged over a period of many years. American states it has no intention, after the completion of the proposed merger, to acquire any investment securities other than additional shares of Mergenthaler stock. American has also stated its intention to dispose of its holdings of Vapor (Delaware).

Statutory standards—section 3(b)(2). Section 3(a)(3) of the Act defines an investment company as one which is engaged or proposes to engage in the business of investing, reinvesting, owning, holding, or trading in securities, and owns or proposes to acquire investment securities having a value exceeding 40 percent of the value of the company's total assets (exclusive of Government securities and cash items) on an unconsolidated basis. For purposes of this section, "investment securities" are defined as including all securities except Government securities, securities issued by employees' securities companies and securities issued by majority-owned subsidiaries which are not investment companies.

Section 3(b)(2) of the Act provides, that, notwithstanding section 3(a)(3), the term "investment company" does not include a person whom the Commission upon application finds and by order declares to be primarily engaged in a business or businesses other than that of investing, reinvesting, owning, holding or trading in securities either directly or through majority-owned subsidiaries or through controlled companies conducting similar types of businesses.

It appearing to the Commission that it is appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors that a hearing be held with respect to the application pursuant to sections 17(b) and 3(b)(2);

It is ordered, Pursuant to section 40(a) of the Act, that a hearing on the aforesaid application under the applicable provisions of the Act and of the rules of the Commission thereunder be held on the 7th day of July 1960, at 10:00 a.m., in the offices of the Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D.C. At such time the Hearing Room Clerk will advise as to the room in which such hearing will be held. Any person desiring to be heard or otherwise wishing to participate in the proceedings is directed to file with the Secretary of the Commission his application as provided by Rule XVII of the Commission's rules of practice, on or before the date provided in that Rule setting forth any issues of law or fact which he desires to controvert or any additional issues which he deems raised by this Notice and Order or by such application.

It is further ordered, That James G. Ewell, or any officer or officers of the Commission, designated by it for that purpose, shall preside at said hearing. The officer so designated is hereby authorized to exercise all the powers granted to the Commission under sections 41 and 42(b) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 and to a hearing officer under the Commission's rules of practice.

The Division of Corporate Regulation having advised the Commission that it has made a preliminary examination of the application, and that upon the basis thereof the following matters and questions are presented for consideration, without prejudice to its specifying additional matters and questions upon further examination:

(1) Whether the application filed by Century, Webster and American pursuant to section 17(b) of the Act to exempt the proposed merger of Century, Webster and American (with American as the surviving corporation) from the provisions of section 17(a) of the Act meets the prescribed standards of section 17(b);

(2) Whether American at the present time is and after the proposed merger will be, an investment company within the definition of section 3(a)(3) of the Act;

(3) Whether American is primarily engaged, and will after the merger be primarily engaged, in a business or businesses other than that of an investment company either directly or through majority owned subsidiaries or through controlled companies conducting similar types of businesses.

It is further ordered, That at the aforesaid hearing attention be given to the foregoing matters and questions.

It is further ordered, That the Secretary of the Commission shall give notice of the aforesaid hearing by mailing a copy of this notice and order by registered mail to Century, Webster and American; that applicants shall cause a copy of this notice to be mailed to the stockholders of Century, Webster and American at their last known address on or before June 24, 1960; and that notice to all other persons be given by publication of this Notice and Order in the FEDERAL REGISTER and that a general release of this Commission in respect of this Notice and Order be distributed to the press and mailed to the mailing list for releases.

By the Commission.

INSTITUTIONAL INVESTORS MUTUAL FUND, INC.

Notice of Filing of Application To Modify Orders of Exemption

JUNE 17, 1960.

Notice is hereby given that Institutional Investors Mutual Fund, Inc. ("Applicant"), a registered open-end investment company, has filed an application pursuant to section 6(c) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 ("Act") requesting the modification of existing orders of the Commission to permit Applicant to sell its shares to bank trustees of pension funds for savings bank employees.

Applicant, a New York corporation, was organized as an investment medium for New York State mutual savings banks. Its board of directors consists of trustees and officers of such savings banks. The funds of the Applicant may be invested only in investments eligible for savings banks under the New York State Banking Law, and Applicant is subject to the supervision of, and periodic examinations by, the New York State Banking Department. Applicant has entered into a contract for investment, advisory, custodian, transfer agent, and registrar services with Savings Banks Trust Company, a corporation organized under the Banking Law of the State of New York, all of whose stock is owned by savings banks in New York. Because of the special nature of Applicant's organization and method of operation, the Commission by orders dated April 14, 1953 and August 8, 1955 (Investment Company Act Release Nos. 1856 and 2213) exempted Applicant from the provisions of sections 10(a), 15(c), 17(a)(1), 20(a), 22(d), 22(e) and 24(d) of the Act and Rule 20a-1 promulgated thereunder.

Among the grounds upon which the Commission based its orders was the fact that the stock of Applicant could be owned only by mutual savings banks organized and subject to supervision under the Banking Law of New York. A recent amendment to the New York Banking Law now permits the stock of Applicant to be owned by trustees, other than savings banks, of pension trusts, funds, plans or agreements participated in by one or more savings banks to provide retirement benefits, death benefits or disability benefits for such savings banks' employees. Accordingly, Applicant seeks modification of the existing orders to the extent necessary to permit the sale of its shares to such trustees, as well as to savings banks.

In support of the application, Applicant states that so far as can be foreseen the only eligible shareholders will continue to be institutional investors, subject to supervision by the New York State Banking Department.

Section 6(c) of the Act authorizes the Commission to exempt by order, among other things, any class of transactions from any provision or provisions of the Act if it finds that such exemption is necessary or appropriate in the public interest and consistent with the protection of investors and the purposes fairly intended by the policy and provisions of the Act.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than July 1, 1960, at 5:30 p.m., submit to the Commission in writing a request for a hearing on the matter accompanied by a statement as to the nature of his interest, the reason for such request and the issues, if any, of fact or law proposed to be controverted, or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such communication should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D.C. At any time after said date, as provided by Rule O-5 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the Act, an order disposing of the application herein may be issued by the Commission upon the basis of the showing contained in said application, unless an order for hearing upon said application shall be issued upon request or upon the Commission's own motion.

By the Commission.
